DUMBA SAYS HE ACTED ON ORDERS

Plan to Cripple Munitions Plants Originated in Vienna, Ambassador Tells Lansing.

SITUATION MORE SERIOUS

If Dumba Is Dismissed, Austria May Retaliate by Handing Passports to Penfield.

PRESIDENT DEFERS ACTION

May Wait Until He Gets Photographic Copy of Dumba Letter —Ambassador Silent.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—Action has been deferred by the Government in the case of Dr. Constantin Theodor Dumba, Ambassador of Austria-Hungary, pending consideration by President Wilson of an explanation submitted personally by Dr. Dumba to Secretary Lansing today, with reference to the charge that Dr. Dumba had planned "to disorganize and hold up for months, if not entirely prevent, the manufacture of munitions in Bethlehem and the Middle West." The quotation is from the letter which Dr. Dumba wrote to Count Burian, the Austro-Hungarian Minister for Foreign Affairs, and which was taken from James F. J. Archibald, an American writer, when he arrived at Falmouth, England, in a Dutch steamship on his way to Germany and Austria.

Dr. Dumba, who arrived here this afternoon from Lenox, Mass., told Secretary Lansing that, in warning subjects of Austria and Hungary to quit work in munitions factories, he was acting under orders from his Government. While the Administration does not look leniently on Dr. Dumba's offense, the situation is complicated by a propect, that, if Dr. Dumba is dismissed by the United States, the Government of Austria-Hungary will hand his passports to Frederic C. Penfield, the American Ambassador at Vienna.

The visit of Dr. Dumba to Washington was for the express purpose of making a personal explanation to Secretary Lansing concerning the statements contained in the letter taken from Archibald by the British authorities at Falmouth, and which the Ambassador of the dual monarchy admitted writing. He left Lenox yesterday and spent last night in New York.

Dr. Dumba was with the Secretary of State about half an hour. Just prior to the interview Secretary Lansing had a conference with President Wilson, at which Secretary McAdoo was present. When he left the State Department the Ambassador declined to make any statement for publication. Secretary Lansing also refused to discuss what was said at the interview.

After leaving the State Department Dr. Dumba walked to the Metropolitan Club, but did not enter the building. Instead he walked around the block and went again to the State Department, where he had a conversation with William Phillips, the Third Assistant Secretary of State. Thence he went to the Austro-Hungarian Embassy. He said that he intended to go to New York tonight.

What Dumba Told Lansing.

Dr. Dumba told Secretary Lansing that in proposing to Count Burian a plan "to disorganize and hold up for months" the manufacture of munitions of war in this country he was merely carrying out certain instructions from his Government. These instructions, it was explained, were to notify subjects of Austria and Hungary in the United States that they would be guilty of treason if they worked in plants engaged in manufacturing arms and ammunition for the enemies of Austria-Hungary, and that if they returned to their own country they would be liable to imprisonment for from ten to twenty years, or even death by hanging.

The plan o Dr. Dumba disclosed in the captured letter, it was asserted, was only to persuade subjects of the dual monarchy that they should quit working in munitions factories. In this way, it was admitted, he hoped to keep the factories from furnishing great quantities of munitions to Great Britain, France, and Russia.

It is not known how the Austro-Hungarian Ambassador made this explanation square with the statement in his letter that the plan was "to disorganize and hold up for months, if not entirely prevent, the manufacture of munitions in Bethlehem and the Middle West, which in the opinion of the German Military Attaché is of great importance and amply outweighs the expenditure of the money involved."

The disclosure of the Austrian envoy to Secretary Lansing that he was carrying out instructions from his Government in planning to disorganize the munitions business in the United States has given an aspect to the case which has furnished food for careful thought on the part of the Administration. It is pointed out that any action against Dr. Dumba might be regarded as action against the Government of Austria-Hungary, and would be likely to result in a serious difference between the two Governments. The statement comes from a well-informed source that a demand for the recall of Dr. Dumba would probably result in the dismissal of Ambassador Penfield from Vienna. This would bring about a severance of diplomatic relations between Austria-Hungary and the United States.

Ambassador Appeared Perturbed.

When Dr. Dumba left the office of Secretary Lansing he appeared perturbed. But this state of feeling could not have been due to learning from Secretary Lansing that it had been determined that his usefulness to the Government of the United States had ended. The Secretary of State and the Ambassador parted with assurances from the former that no decision had been reached, and that he would lay the Ambassador's explanation before President Wilson for decision.

It was said tonight that a Cabinet meeting might be held on Friday to determine what course should be pursued in Dr. Dumba's case. There is no doubting, however, from what was learned today, that the Administration has decided that Dr. Dumba has interfered in the domestic affairs of the United States, and that if these were normal times, his departure from this capital would be certain.

The present tension would be relieved if Dr. Dumba should withdraw voluntarily. Apparently he has no intention of adopting that course. He is understood, from what he said to Secretary Lansing today, to take the position that, as he was merely carrying out orders of his Government in arranging his plan to disorganize the munitions business of

Reported Text of Letter Sent by Ambassador Dmnba

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Sept. 7.—The Chicago Herald printed this morning a special cable dispatch from London giving the following as the exact text in English of the Dumba letter seized among the effects of James F. J. Archibald:

New York, Aug. 20, 1915.

My Lord—Yesterday evening Consul General von Nuber received the inclosed aide memoire from the chief editor of the locally known paper, Szabadsag, after a previous conference with him and in pursuance of his proposals to arrange for strikes in the Bethlehem Schwab steel and munitions war factory, and also in the Middle West.

Dr. Archibald, who is well known to your Lordship, leaves today at 12 o'clock on board the Rotterdam for Berlin and Vienna. I take this rare and safe opportunity to warmly recommend the proposal to your Lordship's favorable consideration.

It is my impression that we can disorganize and hold up for months, if not entirely prevent, the manufacture of munitions in Bethlehem and the Middle West, which, in the opinion of the German Military Attaché, is of great importance and amply outweighs the expenditure of money involved.

But even if strikes do not come off, it is probable that we should extort, under the pressure of the crisis, more favorable conditions of labor for our poor, down-trodden fellow-countrymen. In Bethlehem these white slaves are now working for twelve hours a day and seven days a week. All weak persons succumb and become consumptives.

So far as German workmen are found among the skilled hands, a means of leaving will be provided for them.

Besides this, a private German registry office has been established, which provides employment for persons who have voluntarily given up their places, and is already working well. They will also join, and the widest support is assured me.

I beg your Excellency to be so good as to inform me with reference to this letter by wireless telegraphy, replying whether you agree.

DUMBA.

German Airman Flies Over French Line to Pay Tribute to Foe He Calls Hero.

BELFORT, France, Sept. 7.—A German aeroplane flying at a great height appeared last evening over Chavannes, an Alsatian village on the old frontier. The aviator dropped a wreath which bore the inscription: "To Pegoud, who died like a hero, from his adversary."

Th noted French aviator Adolphe Pegoud, while making a reconnaissance recently near Petite Croix, was killed by a German aviator, whom he attacked.

GERMANY MODIFIES SOLDIERS' STANDARD

Will Re-examine Those Previously Rejected as Physically Unfit for Military Service.

LONDON, Wednesday, Sept. 8.—A dispatch to Reuter's Telegram Company from Berlin, coming by way of Amsterdam, says:

"It is officially announced that the military law will be modified to enable the re-examination of those persons previously exempt from military service on account of physical unfitness, with a view to their possible fitness for duty at the present time."

COUNT KILLS HIMSELF WITH ENVOY'S DAUGHTER

Mlle. Van Welderon and Count Aragona Found Dead at the Latter's Villa in Italy.

ROME, Sept. 6, (via Paris, Sept. 7.)—According to newspaper dispatches from Sorrento, Mlle. Odilia van Welderon, the 20-year-old daughter of Baron van Welderon Rengers, the Dutch Minister to Italy, and Count Gioffredo Gaetani dell' Aquila Aragona, have been found dead in the Count's villa at a nearby beach. In the room was found a letter in which they said they could not live without each other, and preferred to die.

The Count, who was a member of a prominent Neapolitan family, was separated from his wife. He was on leave of absence from the front, where he had been fighting with an Alpine regiment in which he was a sub-Lieutenant.

Reports of the tragedy have caused deep regret in diplomatic and Court circles.

KAISER LOSES GRANDCHILD.

Daughter Born to Princess Adalbert Lives Only a Short Time.

LONDON, Sept. 7.—Princess Adalbert, wife of the third son of the German Emperor, gave birth to a daughter Saturday. The child died soon after its birth. The condition of the Princess is reported to be satisfactory.

Prince Adalbert and Princess Adelaide of Saxe-Meiningen were married Aug. 26, 1914. Less than a month later the Prince was reported to have been killed in battle at Brussels, but the rumor proved to have no foundation. In March of this year he was promoted to the rank of Captain in the navy and Major in the army.

CZAR IN COMMAND OF RUSSIA'S ARMY

GERMANS BATTER AT LINES

WIN SUCCESS IN GALICIA

Austro-German Force Active on the Northern Frontier of Serbia in Preparation for Attack.

LONDON, Wednesday, Sept. 8.—The news that Emperor Nicholas had placed himself at the head of his army, which he announced in a telegram to Raymond Poincaré, President of the French Republic, and the visit paid by the French Commander in Chief, General Joffre, to the Italian Army, foreshadow, it is believed in military circles here, stirring events on both the Eastern and Western fronts, in which the armies of all the Allies will co-operate.

It is declared that the Russians already are nearly, if not quite, holding their own against the Austrians and Germans, whose advance at most points has been brought to a stop, and in places are carrying on an active counter-offensive.

Riga remains the danger point, but the fact that the Russians continue to occupy the town after the Germans have advanced to the Dvina, southeast of Riga, leads the military writers to the conclusion that the Russians feel pretty sure of their ability to defend the river, and in time to push sufficiently far westward to relieve the pressure on their forces on the shores of the Gulf of Riga.

Westward of Dvinsk and Vilna the Russian offensive has now held up the Germans for more than a week, and to the military observers those two towns seem safe unless the invaders are able to bring up strong reinforcements. East and southeast of Grodno the Russians have taken up new positions across the River Stchara and its numerous tributaries, and are protecting the network of railways which run eastward and northward to the interior of the country.

To the southeast again, among the forests and swamps to the northeastern edge of the Pripet marshes, a great battle is in progress between the army of Prince Leopold of Bavaria and the troops of the Russian centre, the latter having at last elected to make a stand. Amid the Pripet marshes the German Field Marshal Mackensen is working hard for a decisive result. He reports that he has taken two Russian positions.

Still another battle is being fought for the tangle of fortifications further south, of which Rovno and Dubno remain in the hands of the Russians.

The Austrians and Russians are facing each other across the Sereth River in Galicia, where the fighting is continuous and where the Austrians say they have driven the defenders back along a front of 25 miles. The stands which the Russians are making suggest that their supply of munitions is ample. A Petrograd correspondent says the ammunition shortage of the Russians has been corrected and that while the production is slow it is incessant and growing in activity and method.

Activity is noticed on the part of the Austro-German Army along the northern frontier of Serbia, where the Teutons are strengthening their positions on the Rivers Save and Danube, presumably preparatory to a new offensive movement.

CZAR TELLS POINCARE.

French President Wishes Him Success as Generalissimo.

PARIS, Sept. 7.—In a message to President Poincaré, Emperor Nicholas announces that he has placed himself in command of all the Russian armies.

The message was sent from Tsarkoye-Selo, the Emperor's residence near Petrograd, under date of Sept. 6. It follows:

> In placing myself today at the head of my valiant armies, I have in my heart, Monsieur President, the most sincere wishes for the greatness of France and the victory of her glorious army. NICHOLAS.

President Poincaré sent the following response today:

> I know that your Majesty, in taking command of your heroic armies, intends to continue energetically until final victory, the war which has been imposed upon the allied nations. I address to your Majesty in the name of France my most cordial wishes. RAYMOND POINCARE.

Czar Nicholas's message to President Poincaré announcing that his Majesty has placed himself at "the head of my valiant armies" is likely to have less effect on the active General Staffs of the various nations engaged than it will on the executive part of Russia's military establishment and the people at large. With the Czar's known lack of military training, persons who know Russian bureaucracy and the mind of the people, say that it can be nothing more than a political and sentimental expediency, which, however, is likely to be productive of practical results.

Like the executive head of any State the Czar is not only nominally but actually the head of the forces of the empire. His title is "Head of the Army. His Majesty the Emperor," then follow the Princes and nobles of the realm who go to make up the Czar's military household, many of whom have in addition, commands in the field, but few of whose names have apeparred in the records of the present campaign.

A way down on the list stands the name of the Czar's second cousin, the Grand Duke Nicholas Nichailvitch, and the designation:

"Aide de Camp to his Majesty, the Emperor and Commander in Chief of the Field Army, during the war of 1914 ——."

The Grand Duke Nicholas has received no censure from military critics, either of the Allies or Neutral nations, although those of the latter have deplored the Russian lack of preparation in trained men and munitions—subjects with which the Grand Duke as "Commander in Chief of the Field Army" had nothing to do. His business has been to win victories, or, when these were impossible, to extricate his forces with the minimum loss. His successful retreats have caused English, French, and American experts to designate him a genius in that department of strategy—his tactics had to depend upon the material furnished him.

From the beginning of the war, however, there has been dissatisfaction

Airships Again Raid English Coast Towns; Setting Fires and Causing Some Deaths

LONDON, Wednesday, Sept. 8.—A German air raid on the east coast of England occurred last night. The official statement regarding the raid says:

"Hostile aircraft revisted the eastern counties Tuesday night and dropped bombs. It is known that there have been some fires and some casualties, but particulars are not yet available. The number of the casualties will be communicated to the press as soon as they can be obtained."

The Zeppelin raid last night was the nineteenth on England since the beginning of the war. By them, according to A. J. Balfour, First Lord of the Admiralty, 89 civilians had been killed and over 200 injured.

The last reported raid was on the night of Aug. 17, when Zeppelins visiting the eastern counties killed ten civilians and wounded thirty-six. That raid was the third within eight days, the two previous ones having been on Aug. 12, when six persons were killed, and on Aug. 9, which resulted in fourteen deaths. Previous to the raid of Aug. 9 there had been none since June 15, on which occasion sixteen persons were killed and forty injured, except an ineffectual attempt to drop shells on Harwich early in July.

Just previous to the raid of June 15 the British Government announced that, in the future, it would not permit the places raided to be mentioned in the press, as such information might serve to bring future raiders nearer arsenals or garrisons.

$80,000,000 ARRIVES HERE FROM ENGLAND

Third Shipment by British Government Is Said to Have $66,000,000 in Gold.

$14,000,000 IN SECURITIES

Anglo-French Financial Mission to Arrive Tomorrow to Seek Way to Pay for War Munitions.

The third large shipment of gold and securities sent to New York by the Government of Great Britain in payment of war supplies arrived from Halifax at the depot of the American Express Company at Forty-fifth Street and Lexington Avenue at 9 o'clock last night in a special train.

A dispatch from Portland yesterday said the train carried more than $66,000,000 in gold and about $14,000,000 in securities. This would be more than three times as large a quantity of gold as was contained in either of the first two shipments. It would make the total value of the treasure in gold and securities approximately $80,000,000, or about $25,000,000 more than was contained in either of the first two shipments.

Vice President and General Manager Robert E. M. Cowie of the American Express Company said last night that, while he would not know the amount of gold in the shipment until the cars were opened this morning, he thought there was about $20,000,000.

"We have used seven cars twice before for transporting about $20,000,000 in gold," he said, "and we would not use the same number of cars to transport three times that much gold. I think this shipment is about a duplicate of the others."

While the exact value of the securities in the other two shipments has never been made public, the total value of each shipment on the American Express Company's books is $55,000,000. The securities are stocks and bonds that were held in England. They will be used as collateral for loans with which to pay for war munitions.

Shipments Total $190,000,000.

The dispatch from Portland said:

"The value of the gold and securities brought to Halifax yesterday on the fast cruiser Argyll, and which passed through Maine early today on the way to New York to strengthen British credit, exceeds $80,000,000.

"The gold consists of 11,650,000 English sovereigns, equivalent to about $56,500,000, and $7,850,000 in United States coin. The value of the bonds is about $14,000,000."

If these figures are correct the total value of the gold and securities received here in the three shipments is about $190,000,000, of which $120,000,000 was in gold.

These shipments were expected to strgnethen the sterling exchange market, but the effect on the market has been difficult to trace. The English pound is worth at parity about $4.87. Because of the huge purchases by England of war munitions and other supplies in this country, together with the falling off in her exports, the value of an English pound had fallen to $4.74½ on Aug. 10, when the first shipment of gold and securities was received in this city. It continued to drop until it touched $4.50, but quickly showed an upward trend. The pound sterling was worth $4.66 yesterday morning, but in the afternoon dropped to $4.64½.

It was reported yesterday that New York financiers were pushing forward arrangements for a large Anglo-French loan, and that bankers in Philadelphia, Boston, Chicago, St. Paul, Kansas City, and other large centres would participate.

In Guarded Steel Cars.

The seven steel cars in which the gold arrived were protected by forty armed guards. Unusual precautions were taken to insure safety, because of the fact that it had been generally surmised that more such shipments were coming, and that if enemies of the Allies were anxious to attempt a spectacular stroke they would have plenty of time to form a conspiracy to wreck the gold train.

The route from Portland to New York was different from that taken by the previous shipments. At Portland the train changed engines and left yesterday at 9 o'clock over the Worcester, Nashua & Portland division of the Boston & Maine Railroad. The two previous trains had gone by way of North Lawrence and Lowell to Worcester.

At Worcester the train crews of the Boston & Maine were taken off when the train arrived at 2:35 o'clock yesterday. They were replaced by a crew of the Boston & Albany Railroad and a sleeping car was attached.

As in the case of the two previous gold shipments, a dummy train went ahead in order to be sacrificed, in place of the treasure train, should any bridges or trestles be dynamited. This precaution was originally inspired by the act of Werner Horne, the German reservist, who blew up the international bridge at St. Croix, Me., to stop shipments of munitions to the Allies.

Many Precautions Taken.

Another change which was made to thwart any possible attempt on the treasure was in the destination in this city. The first two shipments went to the depot of the American Express Company at Thirty-third Street and Tenth Avenue. A different set of men from those who unloaded the first two shipments will handle the gold at the depot this morning.

The armed guards who arrived with the train stayed on board last night at the depot. Policemen Greenberg and Lavender were assigned to the special duty of guarding the entrance to the depot.

A detail of mounted police will escort the caravan of motor trucks which will carry the gold to the United States Sub-Treasury this morning. The unloading will behing at 8 o'clock and will be directed by J. R. Chrystie, Superintendent of the express company. The procession of trucks will probably begin before 10 o'clock.

Twenty-five trucks were used in carry-

MILITIA TO PROVE READINESS FOR WAR

Ten Thousand City Guardsmen to Manœuvre Attack on Van Cortlandt Park.

GEN. O'RYAN ISSUES ORDER

Every Man with Every Piece of Equipment Called for War Condition Service.

The extent of New York City's preparedness for defense in war is to be shown by the National Guard in the greatest local military display ever attempted here, under an order issued yesterday by Major Gen. John F. O'Ryan, after a conference with the heads of the various arms of the guard.

Every regiment and company of the guard in the city is ordered to prepare at once for a one-day encampment in Van Courtlandt Park. With none of the splendor of the parade the citizen soldiery will respond in service garb and with all the accessories used in actual war. The encampbent will be held on Saturday, Sept. 25, and it is estimated that 10,000 men will respond to the call.

The National Guard feels a little aggrieved over the enthusiasm shown toward the recent camp of military instruction at Plattsburg, and the evolutions here will be a demonstration of just what the National Guard can do. As an officer in the guard said yesterday: "Most of the men who received a few days' instruction at Plattsburg feel that they are now qualified to be officers, and the public seems to agree with them. The cold fact is that it takes more than a few weeks to make a common soldier, to say nothing of an officer. The coming military show will prove that, and will be an answer to those who wonder what the National Guard does besides parade."

The order of General O'Ryan calls for the greatest turnout of the National Guard ever attempted in this city, for it includes the hospital units, the ambulance corps, and the brigade and division details. The whole day will be given to drill and the demonstration of defense measures. In the afternoon the Governor and his staff and prominiet city officials and invited guests will review the troops. This review will not be the formal review of ceremony, but from the grand stand thte guests will witness the army demonstrating the passage of a command through an enemy's country.

Not a Day For Play.

Many of the commands from outlying parts of the city will begin their journey to Van Cortlandt Park on Friday, or will travel all of Friday night to reach the camp. Each command will bring every item of equipment it owns, including horses, wagons, guns, light and heavy; cooking outfits, tents, and ammunition trains. The only bands that will take part will be those composed of enlisted men and regularly a part of the Guard. The bandsmen will probably have camp duties other than playing music, for it is planned to make the demonstration "serious fighting" and not an occasion for martial music and flying flags. The men will be in service olive drab.

Van Cortlandt Park is to be divided into squares and each square will be assigned to some branch of the service and in its territory will go through the various evolutions assigned to it. There will be work in all squares simultaneously so that the 20,000 or more spectators for whom stands will be provided will have a sort of twenty-ring performance to interest them.

The program calls for the exercises to begin at 10 A. M. There will be physical drill by the Seventh Regiment, wireless demonstration by the First Signal Battery, and a music drill and rough riding by Squadron A. An interesting demonstration will be the building of a pontoon bridge and the firing of land mines by the Demolition Squad of the Twenty-second Engineers. There is also to be an elaborate battle exercise by the Seventy-first Infantry. The men will drill in extended order and will show the method of advancing in the face of heavy fire. The First and Second Field Artillery will combine for a drill. They will use the regular three-inch field pieces of the United States Army service and the demonstration will include indirect firing. A picked company of the Seventy-first will give a practical illustration of the use of the bayonette in modern warfare. This will be followed by a machine gun drill.

Field Hospital Mark.

Field hospital and ambulance work will be shown by the entire hospital service and the three ambulance companies with their twelve ambulances. This demonstration will give the spectator an idea of the difficulties under which a field hospital works in rescuing, giving first aid, and carrying the wounded from the trenches and battlefields under fire.

There is also to be a shelter tent drill, and the comfands will go through the evolutions of breaking camp. At noon this part of the exercises will end with the sounding of the mess call. The noonday meal will be cooked by the company cooks and will be served as in the condition of war.

The most important and perhaps most spectacular part of the day's program will be given in the afternoon, when Governor Whitman and the 2,000 or more invited guests are expected to be present. With the sounding of "break camp" the various units will proceed to the great drill field and there they will form in close order and march away into the woods at the north of the park. They will go north about two miles and then return as though they were an army in war time, advancing through the country of an enemy. The cavalry screen will be thrown forward, the patrols will be thrown out, and every precaution taken to prevent a surprise and to locate a possible enemy. The

OFFICERS ADMIT HESPERIAN HAD GUN; REVELATION MAY LEAD WASHINGTON TO SHIFT POSITION ON ARMED SHIPS

Affidavit of Four Officers of the Hesperian as Issued In Paraphrase by State Department

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 7.—An affidavit, detailing the circumstances of the explosion that caused the sinking of the Allan Line steamer Hesperian and signed by four officers of the vessel, was cabled to the State Department today by Consul Frost at Queenstown. The affidavit was not given out in full but this paraphrase was issued:

> The Hesperian left Liverpool at 7 P. M. on Friday, Sept. 3, and by 8:30 P. M. on Sept. 4 had reached latitude 50 north, longitude 10 west, about eighty miles southwest of Fastnet.
> Dusk was closing in rapidly at the time specified when an explosion took place against the starboard bow No. 2 bulkhead, admitting water into compartments 1 and 2. The vessel sank about ten feet within four hours.
> The explosion occurred within about eight feet of the surface, throwing a mass of water and steel fragments on the deck. From the steel fragments preserved it is indubitable that the explosion was caused by a torpedo and not by a mine. The characteristic odor of high explosive was noticeable.
> No warning of any kind was received by the Hesperian. The track of a torpedo approaching the vessel was not observed by any of the ship's officers. They thought that on account of a failing light it may not have been possible to have seen it. No submarine was sighted before or after the explosion.
> A 6-inch gun mounted on the stern of the Hesperian was painted a service gray, and would not have been conspicuous even at a short distance, and the officers think it could not have been observed at all through a periscope.
> On board the Hesperian were forty Canadian soldiers, including officers, all either invalided or in attendance upon those invalided. These soldiers were all from various Canadian organizations, but were not organized or traveling as a unit.
> No American citizens were among the passengers so far as known. One cabin steward, N. J. Dallas, was an American citizen.
> Very slight panic or confusion existed, and the boats and lifesaving apparatus were in readiness and worked well
> Wireless signals, siren, and rockets brought a British warship in the scene by 9:30, and two other Admiralty vessels before 10:30, but the Hesperian was not under convoy, and had not spoken to an Admiralty ship prior to the torpedoing.

The affidavit was signed by William O. Main, Commander of the Hesperian; Alexander Maxwell, Chief Officer; Charles Richardson, First Officer, and William F. Reid, Second Officer.

SQUADRON SHELLS BELGIAN COAST

German Batteries as Far as Ostend Bombarded—Allied Guns at Nieuport Co-operate.

ARTILLERY DUELS INCREASE

For Thirteenth Day Allies Pound Foe's Trenches Along Whole Battlefront.

LONDON, Wednesday, Sept. 8.—A British squadron has again bombarded German batteries on the coast of Belgium. A dispatch from Dunkirk says that all the positions eastward as far as Ostend were shelled yesterday morning.

According to the night bulletin from Paris the allied batteries at Nieuport co-operated with the warships in shelling Westende.

Aside from this attack, the operations on the western front have as the chief feature a continuation of the heavy bombardment of the German positions by the allied artillery which has been in progress for thirteen days. The gunfire is particularly severe north and south of Arras, near Roye and in the Champagne region.

The night bulletin of the French War Office says:

> Our artillery in the region of Nieuport has co-operated in the bombardment of German coast batteries at Westende by the British fleet.
> A violent cannonade has occurred to the north and south of Arras. At several points our batteries have inflicted grave damage on the enemy organizations.
> In the region of Roye and in Champagne, around Auberive and Perthes, the artillery action has continued with the same intensity as on the preceding days.
> In the Argonne between La Houyette and La Fontaine-aux-Charmes, in the Woevre, to the north of Flirey, and in Lorraine in the region of Besanges and Leintrey, several artillery actions, in which we have held the advantage, are reported.
> The bombardment of a section of Raon l'Etape has been followed on our part by an answering fire on the German cantonments behind the front in the valley of the Rabodeau, (in the Vosges.)

The day bulletin reads:

> There was cannonading and fighting with bombs and hand grenades during a portion of last night around Souchez and in the vicinity of Neuville.
> To the south of Arras in the region of Agny and around Wailly; in the region of Roye, as well as on the plateaux of Quennevières and Nouvron, a violent bombardment of our positions brought forth effective replies from our batteries.
> In the Champagne district, between Auberive and Souain; near Beausejour and in the Vosges in the region of Lusso, both the French and the German artillery showed great activity. The night passed without incident on the remainder of the front.

This statement on Belgian operations has been issued by the Belgian authorities at Havre:

> The night was a quiet one. This morning there was a very violent bombardment of our positions in the vicinity of Dixmude. An unimportant attack by infantry on the Yser Canal was repulsed. In the afternoon an artillery action occurred, which was particularly lively north of Dixmude.

This statement on war operations was made by German Army Headquarters:

> During successful mine attacks against sappers, employed by the enemy east of Dixmude, a certain number of Belgians were taken prisoners. One machine gun was captured.
> North of Souchez the enemy made a feeble attempt at a hand grenade attack. He was completely repulsed.
> A French advance at Sondernach, in the Vosges, ended in a fiasco.
> Brisk artillery duels developed in the Champagne district as well as in that lying between the Meuse and the Moselle.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BRISTOL, England, Sept. 7, (Dispatch to The London Daily News.)—By a unanimous vote today the 610 delegates to the Trade Union Congress, representing nearly 3,000,000 workers, registered their opposition to conscription.

The debate was short, lasting just over an hour and a half, for it was evident from the first that the congress had made up its mind that all the occasion demanded was a plain statement of the case for voluntaryism.

This was lucidly put by the President of the congress, James A. Seddon, who, like nearly every subsequent speaker, condemned in scathing language the organizers of the conscription boom. He said:

"When it comes to a sinister and diabolical attempt to rush the country and force the hand of the Government, it is time for democracy to say no one man, however powerful he may be in the press, shall supplant the free will of the democracy."

Havelock Wilson of the Sailors and Firemen's Union recommended that six of the most prominent newspaper proprietors should be hanged to lampposts.

Ben Tillett made a practical appeal for more munitions instead of more men, but Robert Smillie, a miners' leader, got the heartiest cheer of the whole debate when he rapped out: "If this congress declares, on behalf of organized labor, that it is against conscription, then it will be the duty of organized labor to prevent conscription taking place."

The debate showed that what is uppermost in the mind of labor at the moment is the urgent need for the Government to take trade unionism more fully into its confidence than it has thought fit to do hitherto.

The text of the resolution unanimously carried is as follows:

> We, the delegates to this congress, representing nearly three millions organized workers, record our heaty appreciation of the magnificent response made to the call for volunteers to fight against the tyranny of militarism. We emphatically protest against the sinister efforts of a section of the reactionary press in formulating newspaper policies for party purposes and attempting to foist on this country conscription, which always proves a burden to workers and will divide the nation at a time when absolute unanimity is essential.
> No reliable evidence has been produced to show that the voluntary system of enlistment is not adequate to meet all the empire's requirements. We believe that all the men necessary can and will be obtained through a voluntary system properly organized, and we heartily support and will give every aid to the Government in its present efforts to secure the men necessary to prosecute the war to a successful issue.

On a show of hands the motion was announced by the President to have been carried unanimously. There was great cheering over the result. "Go and tell Northcliffe!" shouted some one at the back of the hall. It was agreed to telegraph the resolution at once to the Prime Minister, Munitions Minister, Lloyd George, and Lord Kitchener, the War Secretary.

BRISTOL, England, Sept. 7.—In his speech to the Trade Union Congress today, moving the resolution against conscriptio, J. A. Seddon protested against

Reports One American Lost on the Hesperian

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Sept. 8.—The Daily Mail says that American Consul Frost at Queenstown has received official intimation that a man named Wolff, aged 21, and born in New Jersey, was lost on the Hesperian.

It has been stated that there were no Americans among the Hesperian's passengers, but that some of the crew were Americans.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—Almost simultaneously with the receipt today from Consul Frost at Queenstown of an affidavit of four officers of the Hesperian, giving their version of the sinking of that vessel and admitting that she carried a six-inch gun mounted on her stern, the fact became known that the State Department had taken up for reconsideration its decision of last Fall regarding the arming of merchantmen. There are indications in official circles that the Government may now change its attitude as to what is to be redarded as constituting an armed merchantman.

The striking phrases of the affidavit of the Hesperian's officers, that this 6-inch gun was painted a service gray and would not have been conspicuous even at a short distance, and could not have been observed at all through a periscope, seem likely to figure prominently in the consideration of the case of the Canadian liner.

In the Government's decision of last Fall it was said that merchantmen leaving American ports might under certain conditions be permitted to mount guns as large as 6-inch calibre on the stern, but only for defense purposes. This policy was adopted at a time when German cruisers were still sailing the seas and preying on the commerce of the Allies, but that was prior to the opening of German submarine attacks upon merchant shipping of neutral and belligerent nations.

In the controversy with the Berlin Government over the submarine warfare, the United States Government has admitted that a merchant vessel that persists in efforts to escape when once challenged for visit and search forcibuy resists the submarine loses its right to immunity from attack without warning and safety of those on board.

The question is now being seriously considered here whether a merchant vessel ought to have complete immunity if it mounts a 6-inch gun in the stern. A weaepon of this size is capable of sinking a submarine, and it is argued in some quarters that the presence of such a gun on a passenger ship might prove not only a temptation to the officers for resisting a submarine, but that even if the gun were not used its presence on the merchantman complicates the circumstances of the case.

It is not contended that the mere presence of a gun that is not used against a submarine can be regarded as forcible resistance such as would strip the merchant vessel of immunity, but it is being seriously considered whether a vessel that assumes to proceed on an innocent voyage can be regarded as having the same status as a merchant vessel that carries no guns.

A vessel which is being convoyed, is regarded in official circles, as not immune from attack. The vessel may be proceeding on an innocetn voyage, but if it accepts convoy, it must be regarded as taking on the character of the convoy, at least during the period that it is convoyed.

Whatever the ultimate attitude of the American Government, as well as that of the Berlin Government, toward the question raised by the affidavit that the Hesperian carried a defense gun, it was learned on high authority today that the presence of invalid Canadian soldiers, unorganized, on the Hesperian, would not be regarded as a material feature of the case. They could not be regarded as a troop movement, such as would give a vessel the status of a transport.

Strong Evidence on Torpedoing.

Entirely aside from its statement concerning the gun, the affidavit signed by the Hesperian's officers is by far the strongest and clearest evidence yet received here as to the circumstances of the sinking of the liner.

The four officers—Capt. William O. Main, commander of the Hesperian; Alexander Maxwell, its chief officer; Charles Richardson, first officer, and William F. Reid, second officer—assert that it is "indubitable" that the explosion which resulted in the loss of the vessel and endangered the lives of passengers and crew "was caused by a torpedo, and not by a mine."

This statement is based partly on the characteristic odor of high explosive noticed after the vessel was struck and partly on the fact that the explosion threw a mass of water and steel fragments on the deck of the Hesperian. Examination of these fragments convinced the officers that they were portions of a torpedo.

The officers also state positiely that no warning was given to the Hesperian and therefore the passengers and crew had no opportunity to escape to places of safety. The affidavit indicates also that the Hesperian did not attempt to escape and made no resistance. There was no occasion for an attempt to escape or to offer resistance for the simple reason that, according to the officers, no submarine was sighted before or after the explosion.

The officers further assert that the Hesperian was not under coyvoy and had not even spoken to any admiralty ship prior to the torpedoing.

Unless this affidavit is upset by later developments, which controvert the statement that the Hesperian was not convoyed, did not resist or attempt to escape and was torpedoed without warning or giving the crew and passengers an opportunity to reach a place of safety, the attack on the Canadian liner is a plain violation of the solemn pledge, given to the United States Government by the German Government in the Bernstein memorandum last Wednesday.

To Examine Steel Fragments.

Though the evidence now in possession of the State Department is already pretty definite, no action will be determined upon until additional information has been received from the London Embassy and Consul Frost.

The fragments of steel found on the deck of the Hesperian after the explosion will be forwarded here, where they will be turned over to the Navy Department for metallurgical and other tests, to determine whether they were parts of a torpedo.

This was the course adopted in the case of the Nebraskan, when it seemed doubtful whether it could be positively established that the vessel struck a mine or was torpedoed. The fragments ofsteel taken from the hull of the Nebraskan were still under examination by the Navy Department when the German Government, after receiving its submarine commander's report, sent word through Ambassador Gerard that the Nebraskan had been torpedoed.

Held Up British Ship with Gun.

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—In connection with the indications today that the United States Government might modify its view as to what constitutes arming a merchant vessel and might hold that the mounting of defense guns, heretofore considered as not arming a ship, would remove the vessel from the noncombatant class, State Department officials pointed out that a 6-inch gun, such as was mounted on the Hesperian, was of sufficient size to sink a submarine. Proof of this fact, officials think, might be construed as a purpose to challenge the German blockaders.

It was pointed out also that the British ship Waimana, mounting a small gun, had been held up for some time at Newport News while the State Depatmnt had ben deciding hr status.

Officials admited that a decision on this point, involving a change in the American procedure toward such ships, would be of far-reaching importance to the international situation arising over the submarine question.

The present purpose of the United States is to take no steps to question th good faith of Germany's recent assurances concerning submarine warfare unless it is shown clearly that the sinking of the Hesperian was in violation of them. This view was made clear by a high official, who explained that President Wilson and Secretary Lansing accepted the assurances of the German Government at their face value.

It was said authoritatively that the American Government was still hopeful that the entire submarine issue with Germany would be cleared up satisfactorily. No final conclusion on the attitude of the Government would be announced, until the Hesperian and Arabic cases had been cleared up and the note on the Lusitania, prepared in Berlin, had been received here.

Ship Not in Government Service.

Ambassador Page cabled the State Department today that the British Admiralty had informed him the Allan liner Hesperian was sailing as an ordinary passenger vessel and had not been in the Government service since the war began.

"There were no troops aboard," the Ambassador's message continued. "Some wounded and invalid soldiers were aboard, travelling on individual tickets as did other passengers."

SAY THE HESPERIAN KEPT ZIGZAGGING

Survivors Report That They Heard a Submarine Was Sighted.

QUEENSTOWN, Sept. 7.—Survivors of the Hesperian who have been interviewed here assert that they learned early on the day of the disaster that a submarine had been sighted, and say that the Hesperian kept a zigzag course thereafter.

Some passengers comment that if a submarine was sighted they are unable to understatnd why more elaborate preparations were not made to put lifebelts and lifeboats in readiness.

Captain Main of the Hesperian left Queenstown for his home in Glasgow last night.

News of the safety of a 10-year-old boy has been received by wireless from an unnamed steamer. The boy is believed to be the missing son of Mrs. Gorog, who, with four daughters, was saved from the Hesperian.

BERLIN STILL AWAITS REPORT ON HESPERIAN

Doesn't See Cause of Friction With Us Even if Liner Was Torpedoed.

From a Staff Correspondent.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Sept. 7.—No official statements on the sinking of the Hesperian are available here yet, and the authorities will have nothing to say until full details are known. The belief is expressed in some quarters that the Hesperian was struck by a floating mine, but if she was torpedoed, official circles believe, the case will not cause renewed American complications.

The alleged conditions on which Germany is ready to make peace, cabled from America, are officially branded as figments of the imagination from A to Z. The Berlin press sees in the American peace tal kan attempt on the part of England to put out peace feelers. The overwhelming majority of all sorts of Germans with whom I have talked, including officers, believe that the war will last at least another year. There is not a particle of evidence of a desire to quite at this stage.

Joy rides for Mohammedan prisoners is the latest war novelty. A large number of captive Mohammedans from the Zossen camp were taken yesterday in sightseeing autos for an airing, including a visit to the Imperial Palace, a ride down the Unter den Linden, through the Tiergarten, and a visit to the new Hindenburg monument, where the Mohammedans were astounded by the wooden Colossus and into which they were allowed to drive iron nails for war charities.

Martial la whas reached its highwater mark with a revolutionary ban on liquor for Berlin. No more spiritous drinks are allowed to be sold after 9 o'clock in the evening, and then only against cash payment and to be consumed on the premises. The stringent ordinance makes illegal even after-dinner liqueurs after 9 o'clock. The penalty is a year's imprisonment or a 10,000-mark fine. A further provision, particularly aimed at the West End resorts and the so-called American bars, absolutely forbids the sale of spirituous liquids at any time where waitresses or barmaids are employed.

ACCUSE VON TIRPITZ OF ORDERING ATTACK

Rumor in Berlin That Hesperian Sinking Was Designed to Block Yielding to Us.

LONDON, Wednesday, Sept. 8.—A dispatch to The Daily Telegraph from Rotterdam says:

"It is freely rumored in Berlin that the sinking of the Allan Line steamer Hesperian was deliberately designed by the party of Admiral von Tirpitz, the German Minister of Marine, to bring to a climax the differences between von Tirpitz and Dr. von Bethmann-Hollweg, the Imperial Chancellor, over the last note to President Wilson concerning the use of submarine boats against liners."

REPORTS SEVENTEEN LOST.

Allan Line Counts 13 Passengers and 4 of Crew Still Missing.

MONTREAL, Sept. 7.—Andrew A. Allan of the Allan Line received a cable today from his Liverpool agent, stating that seventeen persons, thirteen passengers and four of the crew of the steamer Hesperian, lost their lives.

At the time of the attack, the message added, the lifeboats were swung out and lowered to the level of the promenade deck, ready for launching, while all collapsibles were set with the grips off.

LIVERPOOL, Sept. 7.—"No submarine was seen by any one before the ship was struck, nor was any warning given," says an official statement, issued b ythe Allan Line, regarding the steamer Hesperian. This seemingly sets at rest the story that a warning was shouted by a lookout just before the vessel was struck.

The impact of the torpedo was so great, the statement adds, that the vessel stopped as dead as were the engines.

THREE MORE VESSELS SUNK BY SUBMARINE

Big French Freighter Torpedoed Off Western Coast of France—Norwegian Bark Lost.

LONDON, Sept. 7.—Three more ships, one a neutral, have been sunk by German submarines. The French Ministry of Marine today announced that the French steamship Bordeaux had been torpedoed and sunk twelve miles outside the mouth of the Gironde, off the western coast of France. Her crew was saved by a pilot boat.

The Norwegian bark Storesand, which sailed for Iquique, Chile, for Liverpool, has been sunk in the war zone. Her crew was saved and landed along the coast.

The Harris Line steamship Dictator has been sunk, according to a dispatch received today by the Central News. The same report said that the crew of forty-two men were saved.

The Bordeaux belonged to the Compagnie Generale Transatlantique. She was a freighter of 4,530 tons, 370 feet long, and built in 1891. She was last reported as having arrived at Havre on July 13 from St. Nazaire.

The Harrison Line steamer Dictator, 4,116 tons gross and owned in Liverpool, sailed from Pernambuco, Brazil, on Aug. 31 for Cabadelo, Brazil, and as she requires about seventeen days for the voyage to England she could not have reached the war zone several days ago. It is possible that some other Harrison Line steamer or another vessel named Dictator, of which there are several, has been sunk.

The Storesand was a vessel of 1,639 tons. She was built in 1893 and was owned in Christiansand.

SAYS SEAMEN'S ACT FAILS.

Gregory Holds Life-Saving Rule Will Not Affect Many Foreign Ships.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—Charges that the Seamen's act had imposed further burdens on American shipping, putting them at still greater disadvantages in competing with foreign vessels under lighter regulations, are sustained by Attorney General Gregory's opinion, which was made public today. This opinion, dealing only with the section which requires additional life-saving appliances on foreign and domestic ships leaving American ports, upholds the ruling of Solicitor Thurman of the Department of Commerce that the only foreign ships affected by the section are private passenger ships registered in countries not having regulations analogous to those of the United States and not extending a similar courtesy to American inspections.

This ruling will come as a heavy blow to Senator La Follette and his friends, who argued that the requirements as to lifeboats, which have been attacked as burdensome by American shipping interests, would fall just as fully on foreign ships. In that way, they said, the act would really tend to equalize competitive conditions. As Mr. Gregory leaves the meaning of the word "approximate," as used in comparing foreign with American regulations, vague, it is supposed that the old custom will be followed of holding nearly all regulations intended for the same purpose "approximate" to those of the United States.

The pertinent paragraph in Mr. Gregory's ruling is as follows:

"I am of the opinion that when not actually carrying passengers neither foreign cargo nor foreign passenger steam vessels are subject to the provisions of this section. Only foreign private steam vessels, carrying passengers from any port in the United States to any other place or country, are so subject. To this latter rule, however, an exception must be noted in favor of a vessel belonging to a country whose inspection laws at the time of the voyage approximate our own and which accords our vessels like privileges of home inspection, provided such vessel is, first, possessed of an unexpired inspection certificate properly issued and evidencing compliance with such foreign laws, or, second, where its certificate so issued has expired it has properly obtained in lieu thereof from the Secretary of Commerce a special permit to depart from a port of the United States if possessing an expired certificate."

Saunders-Coggeshall Wedding.

Special to The New York Times.

ELIZABETH, N. J., Sept. 7.—The wedding of Miss Helen Coggeshall, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Morton C. Coggeshall of Summit, and Professor Edmond James Saunders, took place this afternoon at the home of the bride's parents. The Rev. Ernest C. Saunders, father of the bridegroom, officiated.

Miss Coggeshall was attended by Mrs. Howard Burras as matron of honor. Radcliffe Heermanee, professor at Princeton University, was the best man. The bridegroom is a graduate of Williams College, class of 1904, and a teacher in the Short Hills School of Summit.

WILSON DEPRECATES HOME STATE BOOM

Thinks It Would Look Like Using Personal Friends to Aid Second-Term Movement.

CONSIDERS IT A POOR TIME

International Situation Too Delicate—Tumulty Asks Kinkead to Cut Out Jersey Indorsement.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—President Wilson has frowned on the intention of some of his Democratic admirers in his own State of New Jersey to give a boost to the movement to renominate him for the Presidency. Through the medium of his Secretary, Joseph P. Tumulty, a fellow-Jerseyman, he has informed Eugene Kinkead, Sheriff of Hudson County, that it would be an embarrassment rather than a help to have an indorsement for a second term come at this time from his own personal friends. Such an indorsement would seem, according to Mr. Tumulty, as if the President were taking advantage of "the extraordinary situation now existing" to gain some personal advantage through an expression of confidence from these friends.

The President's feeling in the matter is apreciated here. It has not been overloked by politicians in Washington that by no public word or act has the President, or anybody, authorized tq speak for him, indicated that Mr. Wilson expected to be his party's candidate for President again. At the same time it has not been overlooked that all the preparations for next year's Democratic Presidential campaign are being made with a view to the candidacy of Mr. Wilson. When the Democratic State Convention of Kentucky recently adopted resolutions at the instance of Senator Ollie James, who is very close to the White House, indorsing the President for a second term, it was taken for granted by the well-informed that this was the beginning of the actual movement to have the President serve as the Democratic standard bearer next year.

Mr. Tumulty sent the letter to Sheriff Kinkead, declining an invitation to attend a meeting of the Hudson County Democratic Committee, scheduled for Sept. 11, on the ground that the meeting's object, as stated in Kinkead's letter, was to indrose the President.

"It was my understanding when we discussed this matter some weeks ago," said Mr. Tumulty in his letter, "that the meeting you had in mind was merely a meeting of the Hudson County Democratic Committee, for which you were anxious to procure the services of Senator Lewis of Illinois as the speaker.

"I had a talk with the President about this matter, and he deeply appreciates the generosity of the suggestion, but New Jersey is his own State, the men who woudl act in this matter are his own personal friends, and he feels that it might seem as if he were taking advantage of the extraordinary situation now existing to gain some personal advantage through such an expression of confidence by them.

"As I said in my letter to State Chairman Grosscup, a year ago, this would be inconsistent with his whole thought and spirit and he shrinks from it as from something that would embarrass him rather than help him.

"I feel confident that you will unstand the spirit in which he says this and that in urging the Democrats of Hudson county not to do this, he is not evading in the least, his deep appreciation. Of course, if your meeting has no cenection with an indorsement of the President and is one to be held under the auspices of the Democratic county committee and shall be participated in by all factions in Hudson county, I will gladly aid you in procuring as a speaker the services of either Senator James or Senator Lewis."

GERMANY REPORTS LOSS OF THE U-27

Admiralty Says Submarine Which Sunk a British Cruiser Has Not Been Heard from Since Aug. 10.

BERLIN, Sept. 7, (via London.)—The Admiralty announced today that the German submarine U-25, which sunk a small British cruiser several weeks ago, has not been heard from since Aug. 10, and probably is lost.

The submarine U-27 had not figured conspicuously in the records of German naval operations. She was built in 1912-13 and had a displacement of 840 tons. She was one of the speediest of the U boats constructed up to 1914, being capable of making seventeen knots above water and twelve knots when submerged. She was equipped with three torpedo tubes. Her complement is not shown in recent naval lists.

MAYOR BELL ON TRIAL.

Indianapolis Executive Faces Court on Election Fraud Charge.

INDIANAPOLIS, Sept. 7.—The defense in the trial of Mayor Joseph E. Bell, who was placed on trial before special Judge W. H. Eichhorn in Criminal Court here today, won a victory this afternoon when the court sustained a motion to unsea seven members of the regular jury panel on the ground that they had not been properly and legally chosen.

"I am of the opinion," said Judge Eichhorn in making his ruling, "that if the motion were overruled no hardship would be worked on the defense, but to avoid any question of irregularity the court will sustain the motion." The jury box was then filled from the special venire.

That the part which a local newspaper is alleged to have taken in the investigation of election irregularities will be made an important phase of the case was indicated by the questions asked prospective jurors. It was intimated by the defense that the indictment against Mayor Bell, which also names Thomas Taggart and 126 others, was drawn in the office of the newspaper and under the supervision of its management. Prosecutor Alvah J. Rucker denied these assertions.

SHIP SUIT FOR $1,100,000.

Asphalt Company Charges Prince Line Violated Contract.

TRENTON, N. J., Sept. 7.—Alleging breach of contract, the United States Asphalt Refining Company of Pierre, S. D., and New York City filed two libel suits here today for $550,000 each against the Prince Line, Limited, owner of the steamship Georgian Prince.

The asphalt company alleges a contract was entered into for five years in 1912 between it and the steamship company through Houlder, Weir & Boyd of 24 State Street, New York, for the transportation of crude oil from Mexico and Europe. The asphalt company was to pay over £1,000 monthly. The steamship returned the latter part of last month from Mexico and discharged a cargo at Carteret, the asphalt company alleges.

Arrangements had been made by the asphalt company to sublet the contract, but the master of the ship refused to take orders to go to Spain, and a violation of the contract was considered to have been committed by such refusal. The company alleges it has paid its installments up to Sept. 17 and has been deprived of the steamship's use. It also alleges the loss of an immense sum of money by reason thereof.

BRIAND ENGINEERED THE CABINET CRISIS

Though a Member, He Schemed to Overthrow Viviani and Become Premier Again.

FALTERED AT LAST MINUTE

Public Sentiment Against Army Changes—His Own Laziness Prevented a Fight.

Special Correspondence of THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Aug. 27.—The overwhelming victory of the Government in the Chamber of Deputies yesterday ends, for a considerable time at any rate, the attempts of the Socialist and Radical sections of Parliament to bring about a change in the Ministry. The press hails the result as a definite triumph for Premier Viviani's oratory.

The only dissentient voice is that of Clemenceau's paper, which says that the Premier had only postponed the reckoning.

The fact remains that the insurgents, far too cold-blooded to be stampeded by patriotic eloquence on the matter of practical politics, and confident ten days ago of their ability to overthrow the Ministry, yielded yesterday almost without a struggle.

In order to understand this it is necessary to note the underlying cause of the whole agitation, of which M. Millerand's unpopularity, the Sarrail incident, the alleged scandalous contracts, and the dissatisfaction with the slow progress of the war are only symptoms. This cause is the personal ambition of Aristide Briand, himself a member of the Cabinet, who has pulled strings to move such comparative puppets as Franklin-Bouillon and Renaudel.

It has been an open secret that if the Ministry was changed Briand would take Premier Viciani's place, and he has been generally reputed to be the spinner of the political web wherein the Government has seemed to be struggling.

The significant comments with which M. Cochin's reference yesterday to the dissension in the bosom of the Cabinet was greeted indicate the general realization of Briand's design, but the enigma is now, why did Briand suddenly yield just when through a secret session or an open attack it seemed that the Government could be brought to bar?

That some guiding hand, which could scarcely be any but Briand's, was removed from the helm was shown early in the week, when the Radical Socialist caucus, previously united and confident, suddenly became irresolute. Barely 70 per cent. of its members attended an important meeting to decide whether the party should demand a secret session. Of those present one-third did not vote. The remainder were almost evenly divided. There could be no clearer proof of indecision than this behavior by one of the best-drilled political machines.

It is asserted that Briand was forced by direct threats to desist from interference with the Government in time of war, but his character and record show the improbability of thus turning him from his purpose, even if he realized that it was more than a bluff and that the country was against any radical changes.

The real solution of the mystery seems to lie partly in the circumstances of the struggle and partly in Briands's personality. The ideal had become prevalent that a change in the ministry would imply changes in the high command of the army and France was practically unanimous against that. The bulk of the people, moreover, are unaware of the weakness and errors, alleged, by the insurgents, and cannot understand why it is necessary to "swap horses" while crossing so dangerous a stream. They think the whole agitation is merely a reversion to the ante-war "politics" of professionals who are thoughtless of their country's danger or suppose the worst is past.

Thus Briand saw his plans menaced by a growing public opposition which redoubled the difficulty of his task. Here the personal equation comes in. Brilliant and able as Briand is, he is also temperamentally lazy and unwilling to pursue any course likely to cause excessive trouble.

One of the shrewd English diplomatists here said a month ago:

"Briand might suddenly amaze every one by throwing up the whole thing in disgust if it looked too troublesome."

It seems as if he was a true prophet.

But, although the affair is temporarily at an end, there remains a considerable leaven of opposition to the opposition, which hopes to find a better opportunity later when the outside dangers are lessened. If the present Government were to fall suddenly I venture to phophesy that a Briand ministry will succeed it.

WAR ORDERS, BUT NO DIME.

An Incident of a Hotel Lobby Where Talk Is of Millions.

At a well-known hotel where many foreign agents make their headquarters, and where the lobby is very much affected by men who would do business with them, one of the latter who has been much in evidence about the hotel approached an assistant manager yesterday.

"Say, Blank, can you tell me the name of the best American car on the market?" he asked.

"I'm not much of a judge," replied the manager, "but I should say the X car is about as good as any."

"H'm," said the other. "And about how much would one cost?"

"About $6,500, I think."

"H'm. And what do you think is the best foreign car?"

"At a guess, I should mention the Y."

"And what would one of them stand me?"

"Probably about $12,5000, just now."

"H'm. One of those big fellows, with a tremendous wheel base—long, and looking like a cruiser?"

"That's something like it."

"I should like one of the fellows with a green body, and with red cushions—one with a sort of little cab effect at the end. And, say, could I get one of them right away?"

"I think so."

"Tomorrow?"

"Undoubtedly."

"Well, by George, I'll give my order first thing. You see," he went on, "tomorrow I am to sell So-and-so 3,000,000 rifles. It has taken six months to get this deal clinched, but the papers are ready, and the transaction is to be finished tomorrow. And, say, I get $1 on every rifle."

The manager offered his congratulations.

"Great stuff," said the war commissioner proudly. He put his hands into his pocket and hummed an air. Then he started suddenly.

"By the way, Blank," he said, "would you mind lending me ten cents so I can telephone and ask those fellows if they are surely going to show up here tomorrow to sign that contract as they promised?"

CITY BREVITIES.

The body of the woman found in the East River off 132d Street on Monday night was identified yesterday as that of Mary Coska, 25 years old, of 314 East Fifty-fourth Street.

Coroners' Physician Lehane announced yesterday that Freda Fagerstron, who was found dead on Monday at her partment, at 157 East 112th Street, had died of cyannide of potassium poisoning. John Kerns, with whom she lived, is charged with homicide, but the indications are that she committed suicide.

John Donata of 177 Columbia Street, Brooklyn, was yesterday sentenced to spend six months in the workhouse for annoying women in the elepnant house at the Bronx Park Zoo.

D. L. Schultz, the Baptist labor evangelist, speaks at open air service every night this week at the Second Avenue Baptist Church, 164 Second Avenue.

GERMANY MAD NATION, PROF. SCHUSTER SAYS

This Year's British Association President Gets an Ovation—Himself of German Birth.

MANCHESTER, Sept. 7.—The annual meeting of the British Association for the Advancement of Science opened here today.

The President of the association, Professor Arthur Schuster, received an ovation when he rose to deliver the inaugural address, the audience thus emphasizing their disapproval of the bitter campaign waged against him by certain newspapers, which demanded his retirement because he is of German origin, though a naturalized Briton.

Professor Schuster's subject was: "The Common Aims of Science and Humanity." He urged devotion to high ideals and declaimed against the exclusive pursuit of material ends.

"Do we not find in the worship of material success," he asked, "the seed of the pernicious ambition which has maddened a nation and plunged Europe into war?"

A message was sent to the King assuring him that every member of the association was prepared to devote all his energies "to the task of bringing the war to a victorious conclusion."

MANIFESTO CALLED A FAKE.

"German Humanity League" Plea a Swindle, Says Frankfort Paper.

Under the caption "Ludicrous and Stupid" the Frankfurter Zeitung of Aug. 24 published the following comment about an alleged manifesto of the German Humanity League published in The Westminster Gazette and in THE NEW YORK TIMES:

"The Westminster Gazette on July 20 published an alleged manifesto of the 'Germanity League,' which was said to have sent copies thereof to its members and friends in Europe and America from Rotterdam. It related that 'Ernst Schuster was delivered over at Magdeburg through despicable treachery and died the death of a hero, but his work is not destroyed, for the league will not cease to oppose the ruthless policy of the Imperial Government.'

"2The alleged manifesta further asserts that the war was by no means forced upon Germany, and that 'only through the victory of the allied armies as the guardians of humanity can we be delivered from the accursed yoke of Prussian militarism.' The controlling ideas obtaining among the authors of this wonderful document may be judged from the following sentence: 'We demand that ravished Belgium, Luxemburg and France shall again be restored to quiet and the deliverance of Poland and Bohemia from the shackles of slavery.'

"The appeal, in which, among other things, the German flag is designated as 'a symbol of shame,' was cabled from the Westminster Gazette also to THE NEW YORK TIMES across the Atlantic. Its signers were named as Karl Bernstein, Conrad Schwabe, Emil Gott, Gustav Ochs, Jakob Mamelsdorp, Franz Gaussen, Heinrich Glauert, Otto Schliche, Friederich Köhler, Adolf Ruppin, Eitel Blumenfeldt, Albrecht Zettel.

"eW have endeavored to find out something concerning this remarkable 'league' and its apepal. But it has developed that this alleged manifesto upon which the two newspapers mentioned and perhaps others have seized, is a swindle. Nobody knows the men who are named as signers and whose names, moreover, in part, do not even sound at all German.

"Nothing is known at Magdeburg about a prosecution for high treason there, and, moreover, the rule of court-martial has not even been proclaimed there. The publication of the appeal merely proves, we are told, with what superficiality and carelessness even English newspapers that wish to be taken seriously spread reports concerning German matters."

PRESIDENT PLANS ECONOMY

Will Discuss Appropriation with Congress Leaders and His Cabinet.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—Economy in appropriations is to be the subject of a conference between President Wilson and Senate and House leaders before Coogrrss convenes in December. It was learned today that the President plans to give this problem mch personal attention, and will discuss it with his Catinet officers when they are completing their estimates of expenditures for the coming year.

The Administration's program for strengthening the national defenses probably will make impossible any reduction in the military and naval appropriations, but otherwise it is proposed to have general paring down wherever it is practicable. Large river and harbor and public building bills will be opposed.

Secretary McAdoo of the Treasury is planing to make a tour of the country soon to inspect Government-owned buildings and investigate the needs of communities which are seeking new buildings.

AIR RAIDERS ATTACK FAMOUS FREIBURG

Fires Started in Baden City from Bombs Dropped by French Squadron.

LONDON, Sept. 7.—Freiburg, the chief city of Baden, is the latest German place to be visited by a French air squadron, dropping destructive bombs.

This attacak, as the French official bulletin put it, was "in reply to the bombardment of the open towns of St. Dié and Gerardmer by the German aeroplanes." Fires were set by the French missiles.

Other points, including Saarburg in Rhenish Prussia, Lens, northeast of Arras and Perenne, have been the objects of air raids.

From Berlin comes word that a French aeroplane was brought down near Sankt Avold, the occupants being killed.

The day bulletin from Paris says:

> German aviaters yesterday and this morning flew over Gerardmer, in the Vosges, near St. Dié, and threw down bombs. The first attack was without effect; the second resulted in the killing of two persons.

The night bulletin reads:

> During the night of Sept. 6-7 one of our dirigibles dropped shells on the railroads around Peronne.
> In reply to the bombardment of the open towns of St. Dié and Gerardmer by German areoplanes, a French air squadron has dropped bombs on the station and military establishments at Freiburg, (Baden.) Fire broke out in the town. Al lthe machines returned safely.
> Our aeropianes likewise bombarded the stations at Saarburg, Pont-Faverger, Warneriville, Tergnier, and Lens.

In the German headquarters staff statement is the following:

> In the course of an enemy aeroplane attack on Lichtervelde,, north of Roulers, in Flanders, seven Belgian inhabitants were killed and two were injured.
> German battle aeroplane aviators brought down an enmy machine over the chapel southeast of Sankt Avold. The occupants of the enemy machine lost their lives.

WRECKED SAARBRUECKEN.

Allied Airmen Did Great Damage and Killed Many Recruits.

BASE, Sept. 7, (via Paris.)—The aerial bombardment of Saarbrücken, recorded in yesterday's official statement from the French War Office, was probably the most notable operation of its kind during the war.

Forty French and Britisch war aeroplanes circled low over the town and accurately threw bombs on the small arms factory, the barracks, the railway station, the engine sheds and other military buildings. Several hundred yards of the permanent way of the railroads were destroyed, and many recruits in the baracks were killed or wounded.

Saarbrücken is not provided with artillery for high angle fire, and an armored train that had been summoned from Metz, bringing aerial guns on trucks, arrived too late to interfere with the operations of the aviators.

All forty aeroplanes, after discharging about 400 projectiles, returned safely to Nancy.

OBITUARIES DELIGHT LEMAN.

Berlin Agency Denies Reports That Liege Defender Is Dead.

BERLIN, Sept. 7, (via Wireless to Sayville, L. I.)—The Overseas News Agency gives out the following:

"A Paris paper has printed an item from Belgium to the effect that General Leman, the brave defender of Liége, had died of a broken heart in a German prison.

"The fact is that the General is living in Magdeburg with other officers in a prisoners' camp, and is being treated according to his rank. He is nursing his gout, but otherwise is in excellent health. He read his obituary notice with delight."

WILL ADMIT LIVE CATTLE.

Britain Rescinds Rule and Beef May Be Cheaper.

LONDON, Sept. 7.—Live cattle intended for slaughter at the port of landing will be admitted to England beginning on Sept. 21, thus abrogating the prohibitory order issued by the Board of Trade more than five years ago.

A reduction in the cost of beef, estimated at 25 per cent. is expected in consequence of the new departure. Importers of frozen meat will have formidable competition, although full development of the trade in live cattle may be delayed by the present high freight rates and the shortage of suitable shipping facilities.

BRITISH TRADE AWAKES.

Unusual Recovery Shown in Reports of August Business.

LONDON, Sept. 7.—The Board of Trade figures for August disclose an unusual recovery in foreign trade. Imports increased $185,770,000. Exports increased $41,000,000.

The chief increases in imports were $55,000,000 in food, $30,000,000 in raw materials, and $45,000,000 in manufactured articles. The chief gains in exports were in manufactured articles.

Compared with the last corresponding month before the war—August, 1913—imports increased $65,000,000, but exports decreased $55,000,000.

ITALY TO STOP COTTON.

Government Declares It Contraband of War.

PARIS, Sept. 7.—Italy has declared cotton contraband of war, a Rome dispatch to the Havas News Agency announces.

BRITISH UNIONS BAN CONSCRIPTION

"the attempt to embroil the nation in a great internal conflict which would split it in two at a time when national unity is all essential."

The Congress this afternoon received a telegram from Minister of Munitions Lloyd George, commenting on the speech made yesterday by President Seddon, in which he emphasized the desire of the workers to assist the Government, and hoped the Government would do its share in the matter of limiting employers' profits.

"In every case the benefit of the suspension of trades union regulations will accrue to the State, and not to employers," Mr. Lloyd George wired. "I beg you to make this clear to the Congress and to persuade trades unions throughout the country to suspend during the war all regulations which restrict output."

The Congress today declared in favor of the nationalization of the railroads, taking the position that the experience of the Government in managing the roads during the war was sufficiently encouraging to justify this step.

among the lower classes of Russia that the "Little Father" was not leading his armies in person. It is a tradition among the Russian people that he should do so, and this tradition does not take into account the Czar's status as a military man. His Majesty's father, Alexander III., who although a pacificist, always intimated his readiness to lead his armies should the occasion arise. His uncle, Alexander II., for a time personally conducted the Russian arms in the Balkans in 1876-77, and his grandfather, Nicholas I., received his military training at the hands of von Lambsdorff, and commanded personally the Russian troops on several Napoleonic battlefields. And it was Nicholas I.'s elder brother, Alexander I., who planned and personally conducted the famous retreat of 1812 which brought disaster to Napoleon.

RUSSIAN TACTICS BAFFLING.

Germans Compelled Constantly to Change Their Plans.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PETROGRAD, Sept. 7, (Dispatch to The London Daily Chronicle.)—Any question as to whether the Germans will make for Petrograd, Moscow, or Kiev is largely academical. They are waging a great campaign against a stubborn and resourceful enemy, whose movements are to them problematical, and even the Germans cannot adhere blindly to any preconceived military plan. They probably have several alternative plans, of which one or another will come into the foreground according to circumstances.

The Riga plan and the northern envelopment were prominent for a few days until the naval defeat in the gulf postponed execution indefinitely. That the Germans are feeling their way to a renewal of this effort is evident from their cautious movements on the Dvina, and from hints thrown out in the form of seaplanes by the German Baltic squadron at the mouth of the Gulf of Riga. Now there are signs of an attempted turning movement from the south in Volhynia and Galicia, where the enemy have concentrated three armies. True, the further the Germans advance into Russia the more difficult it becomes for them swiftly to modify their main plans. The network of communications in their rear grows cruder and more rare, despite hastily built light railways. The transfer of troops from one part of the front to another grows more cumbersome. But in any case, the Russian movements constantly dictate modifications of the invaders' plans.

The German units are now frequently drawn aside from their intended course, so as to undertake the pursuit of Russian units, and so the front suddenly slips into unexpected forms, necessitating a hasty revision of the distribution of troops and of transport arrangements.

Thus the artillery brought up with great toil and forethought, may find itself in some spot where there is only work for the cavalry, and thus it now happens very frequently that the Germans, counting on the Russian shortage of ammunition, are surprised by heavy cannon fire from their enemies while their own batteries are compelled to remain silent for lack of shells. The Germans in their advance try to keep to the railways, the capture of which is ever the chief object of all their plans, but often they are drawn off by the Russians into muddy roads where heavy artillery cannot advance or into swampy areas where even the infantry has cautiously to feel its way. All their movements are slower in consequence of the changed conditions, and the spirits of the Russian army are steadily rising as the prospect of checking the Germans' advance grows brighter.

After all, one of the unchangeable objects of the Germans is to defeat the Russian Army in whole or piecemeal. Just now they are paying careful attention to the Russians between Vilna and Grodno, whom they are trying to catch in a salient. From the Grodna region the Russians have safely retired, but from the south Prince Leopold's group is still trying to get in rear of them and cripple them as far east as Lida. At the same time General Eichhorn is striking out straight across the country from Orany to Lida. Prince Leopold's troops are pushing up the Siedlce-Lida Railway about Volkovysk. Before them stands the barrier of the westward course of the upper Nienam.

Eichhorn is still held west of the Petrograd Railway, where a hot battle is proceeding. The fate of Vilna, which is being firmly held against a frontal advance, depends on the success of Eichhorn and on Leopold's looping movement. Only in case of their success will it be possible to link up Eichhorn's operations with the operations below on the Dvina in a united effort to create a big new salient and push back the Russians on the whole front south of the Dvinsk.

OFFICIAL WAR REPORTS.

Russian Grodno Forces Reform on a New Front.

BERLIN, Sept. 7, (via London.)—The following report on the operations in the eastern theatre of war was issued today:

> Army group of Field Marshal von Hindenburg:
> Cavalry which advanced on Daudsewad, southeast of Friedrichstadt, yesterday, took 790 Russian prisoners and five machine guns.
> East and southeast of Grodno, the enemy has reformed on a new front, which extends from the district west of Skidel (about twenty-five miles southeast of Grodno) to the city of Wolkowysk. Fighting fiercely all the way, our troops contihue to advance across the tributaries of the Rivers Pyra and Kotra.
> Between the Niemen and Wolkowysk the army of General von Gallwitz has succeeded in occupying a few points on the eastern bank of a branch of the Ros River. It effected this move by nocturnal surprise attacks. More than 1,000 prisoners were taken in these operations.
> The army group of Prince Leopold of Bavaria has been able to force the enemy to accept battle southeast of Wolkowysk on a front that extends from that city to the forest district south of Pruzana, forty kilometres (about twenty-five miles) southwest of Slonim. Up to the present the attack of our army group in this quarter is making satisfactory progress.
> Army group of Field Marshal von Mackensen:
> The enemy has been driven out of his positions at Chomsk and Drohiczyn.
> Southeastern theatre of war:

Austrian Success in Galicia.

VIENNA, Sept. 7, (via London.)—The War Office tonight issued the following statement:

> The Army of General Boehm-Ermolli defeated the enemy near Podkamien, Galicia, and Radziwilow, Russia, yesterday. The enemy was attacked on a strongly fortified front of forty kilometers, (about 25 miles.) We captured the Castle of Podkamien in violent hand-to-hand fighting, the Height of Makutra, southwest of Brody, positions near Radziwilow, and many other points of support which were vigorously defended.
> The battle at some points continued until this morning. Beaten everywhere, the enemy evacuated his terrain. Our troops are pursuing him. The number of prisoners taken up to last night exceeded 300.
> On the Bessarabian frontier the Russians withdrew from their positions.
> The attacks on the fronts of the armies of Generals Pflanzer and Baltin have ceased. The army of General Bothmer has repulsed most vigorous hostile attacks.
> Near Nowoseliza a Russian battery has bombarded a farm on Rumanian territory.
> On the Jasiolda front our troops have had local successes.

PETROGRAD PANIC OVER RIGA.

Capital Excited by False Report of Baltic Port's Capture.

BERLIN, Sept. 7, (By Wireless to Sayville, L. I.)—The Overseas News Agency says that a panic was caused in Petrograd yesterday by rumors that the Russian Baltic port of Riga had been captured.

"The Lokal Anzeiger publishes private telegrams from Stockholm," says the news agency, "stating that the Russian capital was thrown into confusion by reports that the positions on the Dvina line had been captured, that Russian armies had been destroyed, that Riga had been taken, and that the German advance upon the capital would be no longer hampered. Immense crowds gathered in front of the newspaper offices. There was great excitement and many arrests were made.

"Toward evening the newspapers published extra editions containing official denials of these rumors and saying that the Russian defensive positions were still intact. However, the spread of panic at the capital and reports of Emperor Nicholas's trip to the front are only a pretense to veil the removal of the Emperor's residence to the interior."

AMERICAN HELD AS SPY.

Representatives of Boston Firm Arrested in Russia.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—A traveling representative and the European manager of Rice & Hutchins, Boston manufacturers, have been arrested in Moscow and held as spies by order of the military authorities, according to a consular dispatch today to the State Department.

BOSTON, Sept. 7.—The shoe manufacturing firm of Rice & Hutchins today gave out the following statement:

"The information contained in the dispatch from the Amsrican Consul at Moscow to the State Department at Washington that a traceling representative and European manager of Rice & Hutchins have been arrested at Moscow as spies is news to Rice & Hutchins. They have no information beyond that contained in this dispatch. Their European manager is an American citizen and with American passports, and from cables received from him the end of last week, he was all right, so far as his house knows."

John G. Simon of Boston sailed from New York on the Scandinavian-American steamer United States about nine weeks ago for Russia, where he was to act as general representative of the Rice & Hutchins firm.

WAR DEBT OF RUSSIA.

$2,407,883,000 of Obligations Issued Since Aug. 1, 1914.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—Russia, in her defeat, has the consolation that her war debt compares favorably with those of England and France. Consul General Snodgrass at Moscow, in a report to the State Department, gives a summary of the various bond issues for war purposes since the war began, and also furnishes a list of obligations issued on foreign markets, mainly by Imperial nctes.

The various issues were as follows:

Pearsite Company, Incorporated in Delaware, Permitted to Engage in Many Activities.

CHARTER FILED IN ALBANY

To Manufacture, Own, and Deal in Coal Tar Products, Specified Among Privileges.

An examination of the records in the office of the Secretary of State in Albany yesterday disclosed a number of important facts about the new company which, it was learned last week, is preparing to turn out dye stuffs made exclusively from American materials, at the rate of five tons a day in the near future.

The first intimation that an American scientist had discovered a method of manufactring dyes and freeing the United States from the domination of Germany in this important field of commerce came from Dr. Thomas H. Norton, the United States Government's agent, who has been conducting an investigation into the dyestuff situation. It was later learned that a concern known as the Pearsite Company controlled the secret of the invention, and had already constructed a large factory for the production of dyes, but Dr. Norton and the New York agent of the company said they were not at liberty to give further information about the new enterprise, and would tell nothing of the organization of tme company or of ias business plan.

The Pearsite Company was incorporated under the laws of Delaware on June 23, 1915. Its capital stock was given as $2,000,000, and in the incorporation papers it was stated that the company would maintain an office at Denver, Del. The original subscribers to stock in the certificate of incorporation were named as Arthur J. Kingsbury and M. M. Hirous, both of Denver, each of whom took three shares, and James M. Satterfield of Dover, who took fifteen shares.

Dr. Norton said, before the name of the company had become known, that the new process had "ample financial backing," and predicte dthat the discovery would be of far-reaching importance. He had gone into the method thoroughly, and was convinced that it was practicable. Just who the heavily interested financial backers are, however, has not yet been made public, though it is believed that the persons named as stockholders in the incorporation papers were only dummies, to comply with the law requiring that the names of three stockholders be given.

A copy of the certificate of incorporation was filed with the Secretary of State in Albany to enable the company to do business in this State, and a local office has since been opened at 346 Broadway. Another office has been opened in Pittsburgh, and it was said last week that the company would be ready to put its first products on the market within a fortnight and that the oupu would be grealy increased thereafter. The only person with a Pittsburgh address who is named in the certificate filed in Albany is Wheeler B. Horner, Secretary of the corporation.

The certificate sets forth the objects of the ne wcorporation as follows:

"To acquire, own, lease, develop, and dispose of lands, factories, and buildings; to treat minerals and deal in mines and minerals, oil and grease, and to do a mining business; to produce, supply, and sell light, gas, electricity, and electric power; to manufacture, own, and deal in hydrocarbons and coal tar products; to do a commission merchant business and to act as the agent of other persons and concerns; to construct, own, acquire, purchase, operate, and dispose of railroads, tramways, and boats; to manufacture, own, transport, and dispose of merchandise; to issue its securities and obligations and borrow money for the transaction of its business and the exercise of its corporate powers, and to make, enter into, perform, and carry out contracts of every kind pertaining to the business to be carried on in New York State."

Solomon C. Whitbeck, of 52 Broadway, is named as the New York representative of the company.

The company's new method of manufacturing dyes is said to consist of a simplified method of treating coal tar. It has also been suggested that a new use might be found in the manufacture of American made dyes for the Palmetto, found along the coasts of the Carolinas, Georgia and Florida, which, according to information that has reached Dr Norton, is rich in some of the crude elements needed for dyes. While the details of the discovery is controlled by the Pearsite company are unknown, Dr. Norton declares, as a result of his investigation, that it is "revolutionary in its nature,' and that he believes it will solve the dyestuff problem now confronting the country.

PLAN TO MAKE POTASH HERE.

Inventor Offers Feldspar Process to Government's Agent.

Dr. Thomas H. Norton resumed his investigation of the chemical and dyestuff situation yesterday at the Custom House. At the close of the day he said an inventor of a new process for producing potash salts from feldspar-bearing rocks of the Appalachian Mountains had called and outlined his plan. Dr. Norton said many attempts had been made to utilize feldspar, but that the processes were not economical. The one explained yesterday, he added, seemed to solve the problem of getting out the salts in a way to make them available for commercial and industrial use.

Dr. E. E. Pratt, Chief of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, under whose immediate supervision the inquiry is being conducted, conferred with Dr. Norton. He authorized the latter to prepare a statement for the press dealing with the recent invention for producing dyes controlled by the Pearsite Company. Dr. Norton indicated that he didn't know just when he would be able to make up the statement. In advance of this statement, Dr. Norton refused to discuss further the discovery.

Dr. Norton emphasized that he regards it as of the first importance that this country develop its supply of kelp without delay to obtain potash for the requirements of this country. He pointed out that it is likely that at the close of the war, a tremendously high export tax will be put on the product in an effort to help Germany's war debt. "The question is, shall we here in this country help Germany when we have $150,000,000 worth of kelp out on the Pacific Coast which can be converted into potash for fertilizer," said Dr. Norton.

BOMBARD TURKS' DEFENSES

Allies' Land and Ship Batteries Join in Attack.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Sept. 6, (via London, Sept. 7.)—The following official statement was issued tonight at the Turkish War Office:

The enemy unsuccessfully bombarded with land and ship batteries our positions at Anafarta and Sedd-nel-Bahr. Our artillery caused fires in enemy trenches and artillery positions at Anafarta.

GUNS REPORTED SUNK.

British Submarine Said to Have Destroyed Turkish Ship Carrying Them

LONDON, Wednesday, Sept. 8.—An Athens dispatch to The Exchange Telegraph Company says that a British submarine, operating in the Sea of Marmora, has sunk a Turkish transport, which was carrying 28-centihre guns from Constantinople to Gallipoli.

BRITISH RELEASE AMERICAN.

Wireless Operator of Norwegian Ship Held Since March 14.

LONDON, Sept. 7.—C. J. Maisch of New York, wireless operator in the Norwegian steamer Seattle and a native-born American citizen, who had been held in custody since the Seattle was captured near the Falkland Islands on March 14 last, has been released as the result of representations made in his behalf by the American Embassy. George Vielmetter, a naturalized American, steward in the same steamer, is still held in the naval barracks at Plymouth, but his release is expected soon.

The plight of the pair was made known in July by the American Minister at Montevideo, Uruguay. The Foreign Office informed the American Embassy that the men had sailed on board the steamer Bangor from the Falklands. The next heard of them by the embassy was a report from the American Consul at Plymouth, England, who said they had been held to give testimony in prize court in case the Bangor, which has been renamed the Seattle, arrived in Plymouth in charge of a prize crew.

The embassy was next informed by the American Consul at Dakar, Senegal, that two Americans, one whose name was given as Maisch and the other whose passport proved him to be Vellmetter, had appealed to him by waving passports from a porthole as he visited the Belgian steamer Albertville when that vessel stopped at Dakar on Aug. 11. This apparent discrepancy was explained by the fact that the crew was transferred to the Albertville when the Bangor arrived at Freetown, West Africa, from Port Stanley, Falkland Islands, where the ship had been held in the harbor from March 14 until July 19.

Maisch is waiting here for his back pay. He will lay his case before the State Department when he reaches New York.

The Bangor, as she was then known, was captured by the British cruiser Bristol, charged with being engaged in unneutral service.

The charge against the Bangor at the time of her capture last March was that the steamer had violated its neutrality by carrying coal and provisions destined for the German auxiliary cruiser Kronprinz Wilhelm.

AMERICAN'S BODY FOUND.

Identified as That of R. L. Martin, Killed on Anglo-Californian.

LONDON, Sept. 7.—The body of a man found floating off the Isle of Jersey, has been identified at an inquest, through papers found on it, as that of R. L. Martin of 117 Marine Street, Boston. Martin was a foreman of the horsemen on board the British steamer Auglo-Californian, which was shelled July 4 by a German submarine while on her way from Montreal to Queenstown.

The Anglo-Californian was overhauled by a German submarine while carrying a cargo of horses to Great Britain. When she refused to heave to at the command of the submarine, the underwater boat shelled her, killing eight men of her crew, including Captain Parslow, who was shot down at the wheel, and two Americans, Martin and a man believed to be John Mahoney of New York. Captain Parslow's son took the wheel after his father was killed and brought the vessel into port.

VITALIA AGAIN DETAINED.

British Hold Norwegian Steamer at Falmouth for Second Time.

LONDON, Sept. 7.—The Norwegian steamer Vitalia, from New York, Aug. 19, for Rotterdam, has been detained at Falmouth by the British authorities.

On an eastward voyage last Winter the Vitalia was held at Falmouth more than a month.

20 AEROPLANES FOR SPAIN.

American Machines Selected by Army Expert as the Best.

A shipment of twenty aeroplanes for the Spanish Government left this port yesterday on the steamship Roma, bound for Gibraltar. This is the second shipment this year.

The shipment is in charge of Captain Juan Vinegra of the Spanish Army, who learned to fly while here. With him is Al. J. Engle, a flying instructor of Buffalo, who will instruct the officers of the Spanish Army and establish a military flying schol at Madrid.

Captain Vinegra was here for several days and spent much of his time at the Hempstead flying field, where he inspected biplanes of the Heinrich, Huntington, and Simplex types. With another officer he visited all the important aviation centres, and said that as a result of his investigations he thought American aeroplanes superior to those in use abroad.

Captain Vinegra was in Buffalo when he heard of the giant biplanes being built for England in Toronto, and made a trip across the border to see the first one fly. Shortly after he and his companion arrived at Toronto they became aware they were being watched. When they reached the hotel they were arrested and lodged in jail.

They were very indignant at their treatment until they learned they were suspected of being German spies. After much trouble they communicated with the Spanish Consul and aviation authorities and were released with apologies from the Dominion of Canada.

The aeroplanes on the Roma consist of ten tractor or land machines for army use and ten hydroaeroplanes for the Spanish navy. They are all standardized machines. The tractors have 160 horse power Curtiss motors, giving a speed of 100 miles an hour, and the hydroaeroplanes have 80 horse power motors of the same make and will fly 65 to 75 miles an hour. The tractors cost about $120,000 and the others $75,000, making a total of $195,000 for the shipment.

DREXEL PREDICTS ADVANCE.

Philadelphian, Back from the Front, Says Allies Are Getting Ready.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 7.—Thirteen months of the war have not weakened the resources of Great Britain and France, and these two countries are making ready for a mighty coup which they expect will roll back the German line from the North Sea to the Vosges, according to J. Armstrong Drexel, son of Colonel Anthony P. Drexel, head of the banking house of Drexel & Co., who has been serving as chauffeur for Sir John French, commander of the British expeditionary forces in Flanders. Mr. Drexel is convalescent from an attack of pneumonia and he voyaged across the Atlantic on the advice of his physician. He is visiting with his brother, Anthony J. Drexel, Jr.

"The war will not end until the Allies have been victorious," said Mr. Drexel. "The war to date has been pretty much of a draw in the western field, and if it should stop now I believe another war would follow, say ten years from now. One side must gain the advantage, and I know that the feeling in England and France is that it shall be war until they have vanquished the Germans."

DEALT IN OFFICIAL NOTES.

Greeks Arrest Three Persons for Selling Messages to Warring Nations.

ATHENS, Sept. 7, (via Paris.)—The arrest of two men and a woman charged with trafficking in messages addressed to King Constantine and the General Staff of the Greek army by representatives of belligerents on both sides in the war, has caused a sensation here.

The censor will not permit full details to become known, but it has been established that German and Austrian messages were sent to Russia and many dispatches from the British Admiralty are said to be missing.

The persons arrested are charged with plying a regular trade, selling information, impartially to either side.

ENGLAND IS READY TO RELEASE GOODS

Will Receive Applications for American-Owned Cargoes of German and Austrian Origin.

NEGOTIATIONS INFORMAL

New Arrangement Expected to Cover All Goods for Which Americans Have Incurred Liability.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—Definite information was cabled by Ambassador Page from London today that Great Britain was now prepared to accept informal representations by the Foreign Trade Advisers of the State Department as a means of releasing American-owned goods of German and Austrian origin now held up at neutral ports by the British Order in Council.

Receipt of the Ambassador's message was followed by a conference attended by Trade Adviser Fleming, Sir Richard Crawford, Commercial Attaché of the British Embassy here, and T. S. Sherretts, Counsel for the American Importers Association, after which it was announced that the details of the plan would be worked out in the next three or four days.

The arrangement will result in the Trade Advisers' resuming negotiations which have been interrupted since June 15 by the British refusal to consider further applications for special permits under the Order in Council. Goods amounting to $167,000,000 have been tied up at Rotterdam alone, and it is expected that the new arrangements will release not only these shipments, but all goods of German and Austrian manufacture for which American importers have incurred obligations.

Ambassador Page's report follows:

> The British Government is now agreeable to the presentation of applications by the foreign trade advisers acting informally for importers, through the British Embassy in Washington. You are further informed that details of arrangement are now being worked out. It is advisable for importers to forward proofs as to goods ordered before March 1 by contracts under which they are liable to make payment, including clear statement of the circumstances of the case and the original contract or certified copy.

Details now under consideration by the British authorities include the question as to how long the arrangement will be allowed to continue in force, and the question of limiting continuing contracts under which American importers are liable for goods which may be delivered for months to come.

Mr. Sharretts issued a statement advising all importers to forward immediately to Mr. Fleming, the sworn evidence as to each shipment desired.

"I am satisfied," said Mr. Sharretts, "that the final settlement of all cases will be through unofficial negotiations by the Foreign Trade Adviser's office with the British Embassy here, and not, as formerly, through the instrumentality of private attorneys in London."

While the State Department has steadfastly refused to recognize the right of Great Britain to impose the restrictions on commerce embodied in the Order in Council informal negotiations for exemptions from the order have been conducted by the foreign trade advisers. On June 15 Great Britain declined to act on further informal representations, although private attorneys and brokers in London still were securing permits releasing ships abroad.

MME. DE WIART UNDAUNTED.

Belgian Minister's Wife Leaves German Prison with Spirit Unbroken.

PARIS, Sept. 7.—Mme. Carton de Wiart, wife of the Belgian Minister of Justice, who was released last week from a German prison, to which she had been sentenced for three months for corresponding with her husband, said to the Basle correspondent of The Petit Parisian, when told that she was greatly admired by by the women of France:

"It is why one lives, not how one lives, that matters. I could not have behaved otherwise, and the Germans realize it; if they had permitted me to return to Brussels I should not have modified my way of living. That was why they pronounced the sentence banishing me from my own country. It was a simple administrative decision, without any form of trial."

M. de Wiart, who rejoined his wife at Basle after a year's separation, said the Spanish Ambassador at Berlin repeatedly interviewed in behalf of Mme. de Wiart, but was unable to obtain her release; she was freed only at the expiration of the term to which she was sentenced at Brussels, although the announcement was made that she was pardoned in defrence to a request of the King of Spain.

Mme. de Wiart said that no special courtesies were shown to her, that she was imprisoned in an ordinary penitentiary and treated exactly like other prisoners, common law offenders, except that the Germans always addressed her as "Your Excellency."

"I spent most of my time writing transalations from English," she said. "The only visitor I was allowed to see was the Spanish Ambassador, and that always was in the presence of a German officer. I have no impression of Germany to give you, for I was kept in solitary confinement."

NAIL STATUE FOR WEDDIGEN

Lost Submarine Captain to be Honored with Monument at Kiel.

COPENHAGEN, Spt. 7, (via London.)—The next popular hero in Germany to be honored by the erection of a wooden statue which will be converted into metal by gold, silver, and iron nails driven by admirers will be Captain Otto Weddigen, who commanded the submarine U-9 when she sank three British cruisers in the North Sea last September and who later lost his life while in command of the U-29.

The Kiel Zeitung, which is authority for the announcement that the monument will be erected at Kiel, says it will take the form of a huge model of the U-9. It will be the gift of the Krupps, and will be unveiled Sept. 22.

The proceeds from the sale of the nails, which will be hammered into the soft wood until the model is covered with them, will be devoted to the relief of the distressed in East Prussia.

WOMAN BARS PHONE POLES.

Occupies Holes with Brother and Sister Until Workmen Depart.

Special to The New York Times.

ELIZABETH, N. J., Sept. 7.—Jumping into an excavation for poles that the employes of the New York Telephone Company had dug in front of her home at 522 Meadow Street, Miss Margaret Dugan, with her sister and brother, this afternoon succeeded in stopping the work of the men for the rest of the day.

Miss Dugan, who is a dressmaker, contended that the poles which the men tried to erect were unsightly. She insisted that their presence would lessen the valuation of her home, and she refused to vacate the trench until the gang of laborers had been ordered to leave.

An official of the telephone company said he had received permission from the Board of Works to proceed with the work. It was stated that in a neighboring village the Mayor recently had prevented the company from putting up its poles, but that an injunction obtained by the telephone company had resulted in the defeat of the Mayor.

Miss Dugan declares she will continue to protect her property and will if necessary resume her place in the trench tomorrow morning.

GERMANS GET REPORTS OF INDIAN REVOLTS

Hear of Uprisings in Madras and the North—Gaekwar Gives $160,000 for Aeroplanes.

BERLIN, Sept. 7, (By Wireless to Sayville, L. I.)—The Overseas News Agency says:

"Private reports have been received that Indian mutineers have destroyed the British railroad line in Travanoors (a native State of Madras, in the extreme southern part of the Indian Peninsula;) and that in the Beluchistan boundary region Afghans have destroyed the military barracks in the city of Lorers and are marching upon Quetta."

SIMLA, Sept. 7.—The Gaekwar of Baroda has contributed five lakhs of rupees ($160,000) to provide aeroplanes for use on the British front.

Last December the Gaekwar purchased the steamship Empress of India as a hospital ship for Indian troops. Soon after the war began he offered all his troops and resources to aid the British.

Quetta, mentioned in the foregoing dispatch from Berlin, is in British Beluchistan, near the frontier of Arghanistan, twenty miles northwest of the Bolan Pass. It is strategically important, and a railway connects it with the railway systems of India.

CHAMPAGNE MAY BE PINK.

Casks from Burgundy and Bordeaux for the New Vintage.

PARIS, Aug. 28, (Correspondence of the Associated Press.)—Pink champagne, or even red, is a possibility as a result of the war, unless the wine growers of the champagne district are helped out by white wine growers of other regions. The glass works of Northern France and of Belgium that have furnished champagne bottles are in the hands of the Germans, and, further, the wine growers of the champagne district are short of casks—more than half of last year's vintage being still in the wood. The use of casks from the Burgundy and Bordeaux red-wine regions has been proposed, and if this suggestion is taken up there are chances that the cru of 1915 will be pink. It would be impracticable to thoroughly cleanse the red-wine casks of their color, and it is said that the reddish color would in no wise harm the champagne.

The "Mountains of Rheims," where the champagne is produced, have, like the "Heights of the Meuse," disappeared from the official communique. The steady pressure from the French side of the fighting line disengaged finally the last of the important champagne vinyards, though those of St. Thierry and Hermonville, to the north of the River Vesle, are right next to the trenches, and those on the northern slope of the ridge called "Mountains of Rheims" are still within range of the enemy's artillery. Notwithstanding all the difficulties, the 25,000 acres of the champagne district will produce one-third more wine than last year, bringing the total to the normal average before the war.

For the gathering of the crop more trouble is anticipated than last year. After the battle of the Marne there were a great many refugees in the champagne country, who helped with the vintage. These have been evacuated since. Moreover, the authorities hesitate to allow women and children to expose themselves any longer on the northern slope of the "Mountains of Rheims," where they are liable any day to be caught by a stray shell. Leave will doubtless be given to a sufficient number of wine growers under arms to do this work, as well as the operation of the 600 wine presses in the Department of the Marne, requiring each five men during a period of fifteen days.

JOFFRE LAUDS ITALIANS.

Sends Message to Cadorna, Eulogizing Work of His Army.

PARIS, Sept. 7.—General Joffre, the French Commander in Chief, returned last night to France after his visit of two days at the Italian front. On reaching Modane, on the Franco-Italian border, he dispatched to General Cadorna, the Italian Commander in Chief, a telegram expressing his gratitude for the hospitable reception shown him by King Victor Emmanuel and the army.

In his message General Joffre gives highest praise to the Italian troops for what they have accomplished in a comparatively short time, and adds:

"Fraternally united to the French Army, which warmly applauds your first brilliant successes, the Italian Army marches with sure step toward a definite victory, which the allied nations know will be assured by united efforts, with the same ideals and love of liberty and civilization."

ITALY'S REVENUES LEAP.

Comparative Increase of Nearly $8,000,000 in Two Months.

PARIS, Sept. 7.—A dispatch to the Havas News Agency from Rome says:

"The national revenues of Italy during July and August, the first two months of the current budget, increased 38,500,000 lire ($7,700,000) over the corresponding period of 1914.

"Receipts of every kind have increased, indicating the improved economic condition of the country, which also is shown by the postal savings banks, deposits in these institutions exceeding payments."

EGYPTIAN MINISTER STABBED

Fathy Pasha Attacked by a Civil Servant—Wounds Not Serious.

CAIRO, Sept. 7.—Fathy Pasha, Minister of Pious Foundations in the Egyptian Government, was stabbed three times with a knife by an employe of the Ministry of Finance, who attacked him from behind while he was conversing with friends in the Cairo railroad station.

Fathy Pasha fired with a revolver at his assailant, but missed him. Spectators then seized the man.

The wounds of the Minister are not serious.

KILLED AS FOG HIDES TRAIN.

Express Hits Two Men at Matawan and One Dies Instantly.

Special to The New York Times.

MATAWAN, N. J., Sept. 7.—James Lackner of Keansburg was instantly killed this morning and David Solomon, newsdealer, was seriously injured when a Pennsylvania Railroad Long Branch express crashed into them while they were walking across the tracks in search of a bundle of newspapers which had been thrown from a train.

On account of the fog they did not notice the express. Lackner was hurled sixty feet by the locomotive and Solomon was struck by the side of the engine. Lackner had been a silversmith in Tiffany's plant at Newark. He had once taken an active interest in Arlington affairs, serving as a member of the Board of Health and Street Commissioner.

'FRIENDS OF PEACE' PLAN BIG CAMPAIGN

Nation-Wide Organization "For Political and Other Action."

WANT 15,000,000 MEMBERS

rPogram Includes Stoppage of War Exports and Freedom of Seas from British Blockade.

CHICAGO, Sept. 7.—Officials of the Friends of Peace met here today and discussed plans for a nation-wide organization "for political and other action."

The contemplated organization, which was described by its founders as "for political action, but not a political party," will have as its aim, according to officials, "freedom of the seas" from England's blockade of Germany, cessation of the exportation of war munitions by any means, and the influencing of Congressmen to legislation along the lines of the resolutions adopted by the convention of the Friends of Peace, which closed yesterday.

The ambition of the promoters is to enroll 15,000,000 names. The organization will take no action, leaders declared, with regard to loyalty to the United States Government in case of war with Germany, but they asserted that every member would "act according to his own judgment in such a case."

"There can be no doubt," said Francis L. Dorl, editor of the pro-German Vital Issue and one of the leaders of the convention just ended, "That in case of war with Germany many persons, acting privately, will refuse actively to support this Government. Whc can blame them? Personally I shall oppose any official stand by this organization to that effect."

John Brisben Walker, who was elected Permanent Chairman of the Friends of Peace, declared in favor of the new organization and said he would do all in his power to perfect it.

A committee of twenty-seven members will have charge of the details of the national organization. The completed organization will be composed of a National Committee. One member will be selected to assist the President in New York, and the Vice President, who will be in charge of the Western division, with headquarters in Chicago. Under the National Committee will be State Committees composed of one member from each Congressional district.

Among the members of the Committee of Twenty-seven are: Robert Ford, New York, Chairman; Louis J. Knell, Buffalo, Secretary; William Libermann, New York, Recording Secretary; James K. McGuire, Syracuse; Herman A. Metz, Brooklyn; Congressman Henry Vollmer, Davenport, Iowa; Carl Schurz, New York; Edward Henrici, Brooklyn; Herman B. Ridder, New York; John F. Kelly, Pittsfield, Mass.; J. B. Murphy, Brooklyn; Alex P. Moore, Pittsburgh; Francis J. Dori, New York; John B. Walker, New York; Henry Weismann, New York; Ferdinand Hausen, New York; Jeremiah O'Leary, New York; J. C. Berkemeier, New York; Louis Brass, Brooklyn; Congressman Stephen G. Porter, Pittsburgh; J. G. Roth, Brooklyn; Chris Rebhan, New York, and Thomas Tulte, New York.

GIRLS ACCUSED OF ROBBERY

Arrested with Three Men on a Barge Master's Complaint.

On complaints of William Reilly, master of the coal barge James Docharty, and William Pritchard, chief officer of the steamship Sutley, both of whose vessels are lying at Stapleton, S. I., Magistrate Marsh of that place yesterday held Walter Lake of 207 Spring Street, Manhattan; William Smith of 472 East Twenty-second Street, Manhattan, and Coni Francie of Tompkinsville, S. I., in $5,000 each for the Grand Jury for alleged assault and robbery of Reilly. May Bower, 19 years old, and May Weaver, 18 years old, both of 490 Broadway, Bayonne, also were held in bail of $5,000 each for alleged robbery. In default of bail the five were committed to the Richmond County Jail.

Reilly alleged that last Thursday night with Pritchard he had been to South Beach. They met the two young women on the train going home and all alighted at Stapleton. The two couples walked to the foot of Prospect Street. The three men, Reilly and Pritchard charge, followed them. In a lonely spot, Reilly said, he was blackjacked and robbed of $78 and a watch. The girls, he asserted, fled with the three men who assaulted and robbed him. He engaged an automobile and found them at the St. George Ferry, where they were arrested.

DISCUSS UNEMPLOYMENT.

College Socialists Told to Work for More Help from the State.

Special to The New York Times.

HAMPTON FALLS, N. H., Sept. 7.—"The Socialist solution for unemployment," said Dr. I. M. Rubinow of New York at the final session of the Intercollegiate Socialist Society Summer Conference here today, "consists of exactly the same program as that advocated by social reformers. Labor exchanges and unemployment insurance, vocational training, and public work are advocated by Socialists because they imply State responsibility for employment or are institutions that will be necessary even under a state of socialism. For even under socialism there will be climatic variations making for unemployment, and ladies will doubtless still follow the tyranny of fashion. Socialists have hitherto delayed from pushing measures aiming at preventing unemployment or furthering social insurance. There are millions of workmen unemployed every year owing to sickness, and yet insurance against it is not furthered by trade unions or Socialists."

Juliet Stuart Poyntz of New York argued that, though the demand for commodities was irregular, that was no reason why production should not be cariried on evenly through the year. It was because modern capital could not afford to lie idle for si xmonths that unemployment resulted. Unemployment, in the opinion of all experts on the problem, was due to the capitalistic method of production.

Florence Kelley, Secretary of the Consumers' League, said that unemployment for some was generally accompanied by too much employment for others. Conditions, hours, and wages become worse during periods of unemployment. Her immediate demand was for lessening the hours of labor and preventink children from engaging in indstrial labor.

TROLLEY TIE-UP EXTENDS.

No Service Now in Albany, Troy, and Cohoes.

ALBANY, Sept. 7.—Sympathetic strikes extended the trolley tie-up in several directions today, increasing the number of strikers from 800 to 1,500. All street car traffic in Albany, Troy, Cohoes, Watervliet, and Green Island was tied up.

The cars of the Troy-Cohoes Division of the United Traction Company ceased to run early this morning, and the Albany Southern, whose lines extend through Rensselaer and Columbia Counties into Hudson City, ceased operations this evening. It is possible that the strike will extend to the Hudson City lines.

The Albany-Schenectady cars ceased trips into Albany and Troy this afternoon, taking passengers only to the city lines. The Schenectady men do not desire to strike, although they are members of the Amalgamated Association.

All efforts to bring about a settlement of the difficulties between the United Traction officials and the employes failed today. The traction officials seemed to be willing to allow the cars to remain in the barns until some action was forced upon them by the City Administrations or the Public Service Commission.

The Albany Division of the Amalgamated Association of Street Car Employes this afternoon unanimously voted not to return to work, no matter what conclusion was reached, until Charles H. Coons, Superintendent of Transportation of the United Traction Company, was eliminated. The men say that Coons is bent upon breaking up their union, and they lay the blame for the present trouble at his door.

ALLEGED BURGLAR IS SHOT.

Leaps from Third Story and Fights Seven Policemen.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW ROCHELLE, Sept. 7.—With his back and right side filled with buckshot, some of which may have pentrated vital organs, a man who says he is John Metzler of the Mills Hotel on Seventh Avenue, New York City, fought Chief Marks and six policemen as he was escaping from the residence of Frederick H. Allen in Pelham Manor early this morning.

Mr. Allen, who is one of the leaders of the National Democratic party and a friend of President Wilson, is with his family in Paris, having left the Bolton Priory, his residence on Pelham Road, one of the largest houses in Westchester County, in charge of Joseph Gerard, and two gardeners.

Metzler is supposed to have climbed the shutters at the rear of the house and forced a window in the second story. Gerard heard a noise and called up Pelham Manor Police Headquarters. Chief Marks and six men in a taxicab arrived just as Metzler leaped from a third story, twenty-five feet to the ground. As he jumped Carl Warennis, one of the gardeners, fired a load of buckshot at him. Metzler dashed through the bushes into the midst of the policemen. Their uniforms were torn and they suffered many bruises and cuts before they subdued him. He was taken to the New Rochelle Hospital, where he is guarded by two policemen, because he had threatened to kill himself if he got a chance. He refuses to make a statement.

Metzler speaks with a decided German accent and has two German flags, the German Imperial crown and a dagger tattooed on one arm. He also wears a ring with "80" engraved on it.

LEAVES LEGACIES TO HER SERVANTS

Will of Miss Clementina Furniss Bequeaths Residue of Her Estate to Sister.

$10,000 GOES TO HER MAID

Butler Rewarded with $3,000, Housekeeper with $3,000—Confidential Man Gets $5,000.

The will of Miss Clementina Furniss, who died at her country home, Edgecombe, at Lenox, Mass., on Aug. 23, was filed for probate in the Surrogate's Court yesterday. After making bequests aggregating more than $87,000 the residue was left to her sister, Mrs. Margaret E. Zimmerman, with whom she lived for many years. The value of the estate was not given.

The will leaves $5,000 to each of the three daughters of Mrs. John Struthers of Philadelphia, $6,000 to the New York Orthopoedic Dispensary and Hospital to endow a bed in memory of the testator; $25,000 each to Marguerite Olliveri, daughter of Major Gen. Luigi Olliveri of Milan, Italy, and the Countess Marie Bronzolo di Radicati, wife of Count Epie Bronzolo di Radicati of Como, Italy, cousins of the testator, and $10,000 to a friend, Roger Medina Minton of Saranac Lake, New York.

Other bequests were $10,000 to Miss Furniss's maid, Lena Degler; $3,000 to her housekeeper, Bridget Crumley; $3,000 to her butler, John Johnston, and $5,000 to her confidential servant, Benjamin Brown. Thomas H. Gammack, son of the rector of Holy Trinity Church of Lenox, received $5,000.

The will provided that in case Mrs. Zimmerman died before the testator the Very Rev. William M. Grosvenor, Dean of the Cathedral of St. John the Divine, should receive $25,000, and that the residue should be divided between the National Museum at Washington, the George, Junior, Republic Association at Freeville, N. Y., the Lenox Library, the Berkshire Industrial Farm and the Cathedral of St. John the Divine. These bequests are now void. The executors are Warren Cruikshank and Lucius H. Beers.

Miss Furniss was the daughter of William Ponsonby Furniss, who made a fortune in the West Indies trade. He died in 1871 leaving his fortune in trust funds for the benefit of his three sons, William, Harmon and Leon; his widow, and three daughters, Clementina, Sophia and Margaret. The will stipulated that when the sons died their shares should go to the daughters and that the children of the sons should not participate in the funds. Mr. Furniss's widow and his three sons died years ago. Miss Sophia is also dead.

In January, 1912, William Ponsonby Furniss and Grace Livingston Furniss, the playwright, grandchildren of the late William Ponsonby Furniss, sued for an accounting of the estate left by their grandfather on the ground that they would eventually possess it. Stanley W. Dexter was named as the referee. The estate was estimated to be worth from $10,000,000 to $40,000,000. In February last Mr. Dexter reported that the estate was really worth only about $1,000,000, and that at least one of the trust funds would eventually go to the two plaintiffs in the action.

Bequest to Brooklyn Institute.

The Brooklyn Institute of Arts and Sciences, to which Colonel Robert B. Woodward contributed generously in the last ten years, will receive a large bequest under his will, which will be filed today in Brooklyn. His estate is estimated at $500,000 and it is expected that the Institute will get one-third of it. Colonel Woodward died last week at Coopertown, N. Y. He was Vice President of the Institute and a director in several financial institutions.

GIRL DIES PLAYING RUSE.

Took Acid to Frighten Friends Who Gossiped About Her.

Special to The New York Times.

HACKENSACK, N. J., Sept. 7.—Girl friends of seventeen-year-old Anne Rehn gossiped about her, and to frighten them into repentance the girl, who was visiting friends in New Durham, swallowed some carbolic acid yesterday. She did not intend to take her life, as she explained to those who tried to aid her, but she was dead when a physician got to the house.

The news of her death reached her family in Little Ferry, near here, today, and relatives and friends were overcome at the tragedy.

NEXT MEXICO STEP SOON TO BE TAKEN

Secretary Lansing and the Envoys to Hold Another Conference Within a Week.

CARRANZA ARMIES GAIN

Capture Piedras Negras on Border and ,Gather for the Assault on Villa's Strongholds.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—Secretary Lansing is arranging for another meeting before Sept. 15 of the signatories of the Pan-American invitation to the various factional leaders in Mexico to participate in a peace conference seeking the solution of the Mexican problem. The conference will be held before that date in view of the fact that Dr. R. S. Naon, the Ambassador from Argentina, one of the signers of the peace appeal, is to sail for Buenos Aires on that day. The exact date of the conference as well as the place where it will be held, New York or Washington, had not been determined tonight. The State Department is still waiting for General Carranza's reply to the Latin-American invitation to send delegates to a peace conference.

It is believed by the Carranzista agents here that all the Villista garrisons are withdrawing from northern Coahuila to attempt to make their way to Chihuahua.

The Carranza agent, Señor Arredondo, tonight gave out this telegraphic report from Monterey regarding the military situation in Coahuila:

"On the night of the 4th Generals Alvaro Obregon, Gonzale Novoa, Luis Guiterre, Rafael Cepeda, Adolfo Huerta Vargas, and Maldonado, with their respective forces, after defeating the Villistas in a simultaneous and combined movement with General Jacinto Trevino and his forces, advanced on the centre and extreme eastern line from Icamole, Llorena, Paredon, and Monlclova on all Villista positions in Coahuila. General Obregon and his forces easily defeated the Villistas near Saltillo. General Trevino reports that he personally had charge of the attacking centre forces which took Icamole and Llorena and that he also easily defeated Villistas while his cavalry division, commanded by General Vicente Davila and General Francisco Gonzales, captured Paredon, the extreme end of the Villista line. Generals Benjamin Garza, Fortunato Zuazua and their troops capturing Monclova. Villistas were commanded by Raoul Madero, Hernandez, San Roman, and Urbina. The Constitutionalists forces under command of Generals Hill and Murguia are reported at Jimulco awaiting junction of forces of Obregon and Treviño, as well as the forces of Arrietas and Natera from Durango to make a combined assault on Torreon and final investment of Chihuahua. The troops under General Zuazua occupied Barroteran on the 5th, and Sabinas yesterday, and are advancing on Peyotes."

CARRANZA BARS NEUTRALS.

Will Treat as Enemies Mexicans Who Do Not Support His Faction.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 6, (via Galveston, Sept. 7.)—In a manifesto issued tonight General Pablo Gonzales says:

"I make a final and formal appeal to all classes of society to identify themselves without reserve, if only from the instinct of self-preservation, with the Constitutionalist revolution, headed by the eminent citizen Venustiano Carranza, and co-operate in its triumphs. Foreigners alone have the right, or rather the obligation, to remain neutral.

Mexicans who seek to assume so shameful an attitude now that the country's life depends on the efforts of all its children will be regarded as enemies because the national cause admits of no criminal indifference."

General Gonzales calls the city's inhabitants to bear witness that the Constitutionalist Army has done everything possible for conciliation and to improve conditions here, provisioning the city, feeding the hungry, and providing work for men and women.

The decree of amnesty is extended to Sept. 15, but the General declares that after that date the door will be closed and the following will be regarded as enemies and visited with the severest penalties: Armed rebels, spies, and sympathizers of the enemy sending out intelligence, and all those who directly or indirectly aid the enemy by spreading false reports averse to the Constitutionalist cause, causing alarm by predicting the approaching triumph of the enemy or the pretended weakness of the Carranza forces; merchants who refuse to accept Constitutionalist legal tender or negotiate illegal currency, and "all who directly or indirectly seek to resist the dispositions of the Constitutionalist Government or army, who place obstacles or difficulties in the way of the Constitutionalist revolution's serene march toward the goal of redemption which it is bound to reach."

The manifesto makes exception in favor of enemies out of Mexico City who are unapprised of the amnesty decrees.

A considerable quantity of American and European mail was received here today, and business men say nothing will contribute more to normalize the economic situation. The exchange rate showed a slight improvement, as the mail brought gold drafts which can be negotiated in the next few days. The postal authorities say they will do their best to improve mail facilities.

DENY ANY PART IN RAIDS.

Carranza and Generals Answer Charges of American Officers.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—Major Gen. Frederick Funston, commanding the army patrol along the Mexican border, forwarded no telegrams to the War Department today that were calculated to cause further alar mover the bandit raids and other clashes along the Texas frontier near Brownsville. Reports to the department indicated that conditions along theborder had temporarily quieted and that General Nafarette had withdrawn his forces from the boundary.

Carranza officials were strenuous today in their denials that any Carranza troops had participated in or encouraged the border raids, and sought to explain statements to the contrary made by United States Army officers in their reports to the War Department from Brownsville and vicinity. Eliseo Arredondo, the Carranza agent here, issued a series of statements in which he undertook to correct the impression that Carranzistas may have had some connection with the border troubles of a few days ago.

He based his denials upon communications received from General Carranza, as well as from eneral Nafarette, commander of the Carranza garrison at Matamoras, and General Ricaut, commander of the Carranza garrison at Nuevo Laredo, Mexico. Carranza's telegram says:

"The reports of the press that Generals Nafarette and Treviño are suporting the Texas movement are false. The fact that some of the disturbers may be wearing uniforms similar to those of our soldiers does not indicate any connection between our army and the above-mentioned movement, as the clothes, hats, and shoes used by our troops are the same as those used on the other side of the Rio Grande, as all of our equipment has been bought in the United States. I do not believe the American Government will give credence to the alarming reports of the press, published by our enemies, and lay the blame on the Constitutionalists for any complicity which does not exist, as I have ordered the commanders on the frontier line to maintain strict neutrality, in order to avoid complications. I have withdrawn our detachments from many places in order to avert any international difficulty."

EXPLAINS BRAZIL'S PURPOSE.

Foreign Minister Declares Aims in Mexico Are Wholly Pacific.

RIO JANEIRO, Sept. 7.—Dr. Lauro Muller, Foreign Minister of Brazil, has submitted to President Wenceslao Braz the text of the reply he will send to the National Chamber containing information asked by the Chamber regarding the attitude of Brazil in the Mexican question. In his reply, Dr. Muller shows that the action of Brazil through her Ambassador at Washington was wholly pacific in character and a manifestation of the fraternal sympathy of the American peoples for the people of Mexico harassed through long years by civil war.

The Chamber is informed that upon the invitation of the United States, Brazil gave her Ambassador at Washington authority and positive instructions to take part in a meeting held there to study all possible means to obtain from the leaders of the Mexican political factions a cessation of hostilities pending an honorable agreement of the two parties and the pacification of this portion of the American continent.

The Brazilian Government, it is pointed out, steadfastly and forever maintaining its respect for popular sovereignty could in no way commit Brazil to participation in an international meeting from which would result an attempt against the sovereignty of a fraternal and friendly people.

FOOD PROBLEM UNSOLVED.

Gonzales Warns Merchants—Red Cross Feeds Thousands.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 7.—General Gonzales has sent a communication to the Chamber of Commerce drawing attention to the fact that his efforts to improve the food situation in this city have not been seconded by many merchants who have placed every obstacle in the way of the plans of army headquarters for the benefit of the poorer class. General Gonzales asks the chamber either to call a meeting of merchants or otherwise give to them his decision that if these abuses do not stop within two days he will take energetic measures.

General Gonzales says he has proceeded with the utmost forbearance and will continue to do so until the last moment, appealing to the better sentiments of the merchants, but if he sees the latter obstinately pursue the course of refusing to comply with the schedule of prices for staples issued by the Provost, the General will take means to enforce obedience.

In a statement this morning Special American Red Cross Representative Charles J. O'Connor took occasion to de justice to the onstitutionalist Government, declaring no portion of its supplies had been appropriated by the Government. He said:

"One rumor among the many that has buzzed through the city I take this opportunity to deny. No part of the supplies sent her by the American Red Cross has been taken by theGovernment. Three separate shipments have been made and all have reached here without the loss of a pound."

Reviewing the work of th efirst full month, Mr. O'Connor showed that the daily soup distribution had increased from 792 liters on Aug. 5 to 34,683 liters on Sept. 4, the total quantity of soup distributed in that period being 553,575 loters. The number of applications approved is 26,000, each representing an average of four and a half persons.

Mr. O'Connor acknowledges some abuses, saying: "A few men employed have had so little human feeling as to traffic in garbanzas and meat stolen from starving women and children. We have tried to correct such abuses as soon as discovered."

Mr. O'Connor said he regretted that owing to the funds being nearly exhausted it would be possible henceforth to make distributions only three times a week instead of daily except Sundays.

ing each of the last three shipments through the city. If the present shipment contains $60,000,000 in gold, as reported, there will be two or three gold processions. The securities will go to the vaults of J. P. Morgan & Co.

ALLIES' FINANCIERS NEAR.

Expects to Arrive Tomorrow to Consider Exchange Problem.

The long-awaited commission of British and French financial experts who are coming to the United States to cooperate with American bankers in an effort to work out a solution of the difficult foreign exchange situation will arrive tomorrow morning on the White Star liner Lapland. The presence of the commission on board of this vessel had been kept a secret on both sides of the Atlantic, partly through fear of German submarine attacks, and afterward with a view to preventing a demonstration on its arrival here. It is expected the party will be met at quarantine by J. P. Morgan and brought up the bay on his yacht, the Corsair.

Captain James Bradshaw is in command of the Lapland, and the steamship company officials here were relieved when they heard from him of a successful passage through the submarine zone. The Lapland was convoyed out of Liverpool past Fastnet by three fast British torpedo-boat destroyers.

Baron Reading, Lord Chief Justice, heads the party. The other members from Great Britain are Sir Edward H. Holden, managing director of the London City and Midland Bank and the foremost joint stock banker in London; Sir Henry B. Smith, former President of the Bank of Turkey, and Basil B. Blackett of the British Treasury. Mr. Blackett was here a year ago with Sir George Paish, when the United States was trying to find a way out of difficulties similar to those which the British are now working against. The French representatives are Octave Homberg of the Foreign Office and Ernest Mallet, Regent of the Bank of France.

WHITMAN WELCOMES HEALTH CONVENTION

Governor Pledges Support to Experts in Work of Guarding Public from Disease.

GAINS AND FAILURES CITED

Speakers Remind Delegates at Rochester of the Necessity for Great Campaign for Sanitation.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Sept. 7.—In the name of the Empire State, Governor Whitman welcomed the convention of the American Public Health Association at its open meeting in Convention Hall tonight.

The Governor arrived in the city early this afternoon and was taken to the grounds of the Rochester Exposition in an automobile. A troop of State Cavalry escorted him to the grandstand. There he spoke briefly, commending the exposition and the City of Rochester. When he was there Miss Mary Newcomb, daughter of former Senator Josiah Newcomb of Brooklyn, attempted to approach him to get his signature on a slip pledging his support to the woman suffrage cause, but she was stopped by detectives.

The Governor, this evening, was escorted to Convention Hall by Rochester troops of the National Guard, arriving there he welcomed the delegates to the State and pledged his support to the defenders of the health of its citizens. He said that in pruning State expenses, public health activities should be curtailed "only in the very last necessity." He expressed his regret that the last session of the New York State Legislature had failed to make adequate appropriations for health work.

H als said:

"There were over 140,000 deaths in New York State dring the year 1914, and if the estimates of the Committee of One Hundred of the Conservation of Human Vitality are to be relied upon, 40 per cent. of this mortality might have been prevented. Think of it—over 50,000 lives needlessly lost in one State during a single year.

"Over 23,000 of these 140,000 deaths occurred among infants under one year of age; and this fraction of the death rate is that which appeals most strongly to our sympathies, while it offers the most brilliant opportunities of service to the public health worker.

Lowering Infant Mortality.

"New York has devoted special attention to this problem and with most gratifying results. In 1913 the infant mortality rate for the State was 109 deaths under one year for every 1,000 births. In 1914 it fell to 101, and 1915 has so far shown a better record even than 1914. This reduction corresponds to a saving of nearly 2,000 infant lives, which in itself is a splendid return on the total cost of maintaining our State and local departments of health.

"The acute communicable diseases, such as typhoid fever, diptheria, scarlet fever and the like, are passing year by year more completely within our control.

"As a man who has recently passed the danger line of 45 years, I am beginning to feel a keen personal interest in the campaign which public health officials are waging against the degenerative diseases of adult life. It is certainly a disconcerting thing that, while you are gaining ground, if only trench by trench, at all other points on the battle line, the death rate at ages over 45 should show unmistakable signs of actually increasing. I have good hope, however, now that the problem is clearly recognized, that your efforts to induce the public to observe the rules of personal hygiene and to undergo a periodic medical examination for the detection of these diseases at a curable stage will bear fruit in the near future.

"Seriously, I wish it were possible to make the public realize as you and I realize how much this campaign against preventable disease really signifies. The death rate in New York State was 15.0 per 1,000 in 1913 and 14.6 per 1,000 in 1914. The figures are so close together that they seem wholly insignificant to the casual observer. What does fourtents of a point in the death rate mean to the average citizen? It meant all the difference between life and death for 4,000 men, women, and children, in New York State last year; for this reduction in the death rate corresponds to a saving of 4,000 lives. Taking the ordinary estimate of $5,000 for the average value of a human life, this means an economic saving of $20,000,000 due to progressive health work in a single year.

Following the meeting at Convention Hall the Governor was escorted to the State Armory, where he was the guest of honor at a reception and ball. He left at 11:22 o'clock for 9lbany.

Delegates Welcomed by the Mayor.

Besides the address of the Governor the delegates were welcomed by Mayor Edgerton and listened to an address by the Rev. Clarence A. Barbour, President of the Rochester Theological Seminary, on the life of the late Captain Henry Lomb of Rochester, who was prominently identified with public health interests in Rochester.

Following Dr. Barbour's address Dr. William T. Sedgwick of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, President of the association, spoke on "The Achievements and Failures in Public Health Work," saying in part:

"After the present bloody conflicts are over the races of mankind will turn as never before to the nobler pursuits of life, health, and happiness.

"Up to 1886 preventative medicine, chiefly in the form of vaccination, was the principal weapon for the promotion of public health, but a long step forward was taken when in that year, with a reorganization of the State Board of Health of Massachusetts, sanitary engineering became a recognized and indispensable branch of public health science.

"Bacteriological laboratories for the quick detection of dangerous infections have now been installed almost everywhere, at least in the more progressive American cities and towns. We have begun the medical and sanitary supervision of schools and school buildings. We have invented and put within the reach of all but the very poor the most complete, convenient, and salubrious heating and ventilating appliances in the world for houses, theatres, halls, hotels, and workshops.

"On the other hand, we have failed to achieve many much needed sanitary conditions. Our water supplies are to a great extent either in good condition or on the way to improvement, but our sewage-disposal systems are still in many cases far from satisfactory.

"Probably the most flagrant failure in American sanitation today is the almost universal lack of public convenience or comfort stations in American cities and towns. Failure like this to provide proper public toilet facilities is to fail in one of the very elements of sound public health.

"We have failed to reduce as we should have done typhoid fever in America. We have failed to reduce as we should have done American infant mortality."

Gorgas Eulogizes Late Dr. Finlay.

Major Gen. William C. Gorgas gave a brief eulogy of Dr. Charles J. Finlay of Havana, who worked with him in sanitation work in Cuba and whose death occurred on Aug. 20.

The association held an open meeting this morning, and then divided into sectional meetings. Papers covering a large range of subjects were read.

The twenty District Sanitary Supervisors of the State Department of Health led sectional meetings of the local Health Officers of the counties under their jurisdiction. This is the fifteenth annual conference of State sanitary officers.

A symposium on milk, arranged by the laboratory section included the following speakers: D. W. H. Park, director of laboratories of New York City Health Department; Lucius P. Brown, director of the Bureau of Food Inspection of the New York City Health Department; Dr. Linsly R. Williams, deputy commissioner of health of New York State; Professor H. W. Conn of Wesleyan University; Dr. H. D. Pease of Lederle laboratories, New York City, and Dr. C. E. North of North Public Health Bureau. Following the symposium Chairman F. D. Bell reported for the Committee on Cold Storage, and Dr. John W. Trask for the Committee on Morbidity Statistics.

Dr. C. D. Selby of Toledo, Ohio, addressed the Section on Industrial Hygiene. He was followed by Dr. W. Irving Clark of Worcester, Mass., who discussed "Efficiency in the Workshop and Its Maintenance."

As part of the campaign for maintenance of health among factory employes, Dr. Clark urged that employers make use of the pay envelope as a means of distribution of good health literature, interesting the employe in all that pertains to his physical welfare. Every factory should have a special medical department directly under the superintendence of the Board of Directors of the plant, he declared, and a small hospital equipped for the maintenance of the efficiency of the workers comparable with the repair department for the maintenance of the efficiency of the workers comparable with the repair department for the maintenance of the efficiency of the machinery. He urged more thorough medical examinations of all employes.

For Industrial Bureau of Hygiene.

A central bureau of industrial hygiene composed of members of firms for the dissemination of knowledge for their mutual benefit was advocated by Dr. Selby. He pointed out that many employers were installing departments of hygiene, sanitation and accident prevention. Employers of large numbers of men could afford to do this, but the relatively high cost prohibits the employers of a few men from following this example.

"The functions of a commerce club, or other civic organization, can very well be broadened to render this service, upon a mutual plan, for the employers of few men," he said.

Before the Public Health Section Dr. William Eustis Brown of York, Me., read a paper on "Sewage Disposal Problems of a Coast Summer Resort."

"Temporary increases of population in Summer resorts create city conditions," he said. "Because such conditions prevail only part of the year only partial provisions are made for meeting them. We often find conditions approximating those of the crowded city with only camp methods for meeting them. Thi sis true in spite of the fact that patrons of the Summer resorts pay high prices for their accommodations and should receive the greatest amount of health protection."

Lewis Meriam, Assistant Chief of the Children's Bureau, Washington, D. C., reported progress in the nation-wide study of infant mortlity.

Although the investigions of the bureau were as yet uncompleted, Mr. Meriam declared that statistical evidence thus far available well sustained the assertion that half of the present infant mortliy could be prevented if existing knowledge of he hygiene of infns could be universally applied. He said the investigations conducted by the Children's Bureau were not designed to disclose new principles of infant hygiene or new facts concerning the diseases that cause infant deaths, but if possible to demontrate what social and economic conditions are preventing the present application of present knowledge.

LANSING'S MEXICO SERVICE.

Once Gave Free Advice to Embassy on International Law Point.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—The attention of Secretary Lansing was called today to the cable dispatch from Mexico City, printed in THE NEW YORK TIMES yesterday, which stated that the newspaper, El Mexicano, published a front page letter signed by Henry Simpson, saying that Secretary Lansing was unfriendly to the Constitutionalists because he had been "in the pay" of Generals Diaz and Huerta in the capacity of consulting attorney for the latter.

Mr. Lansing denied that he had been in the pay of Diaz or Huerta. He said that before he entered the State Department he had given legal advice to the Mexican Embassy in Washington, but that he did so only in a friendly way and without remuneration. The advice he had given was with respect to the compliance of certain papers of incorporation with the laws of the various States of the United States.

It was explained that Mr. Lansing not only had not received pay for this service, but it was learned that he hal, of course, not furnished any such advice since he had come into the State Deprtment. Mr. Lansing did not care to dignify with a denial the intimation in the Mexican publication that his attitude as Secretary of State had been affected in any way by any professional services rendered by himself in any capacity as a private citizen engaged in international law practice before entering the State Department.

DUMBA SAYS HE ACTED ON ORDERS

this country, whatever fault exists must be blamed on the imperial authorities in Vienna and not on their diplomatic representative.

The purpose of the Asutro-Hungarian Ambassador in proposing the scheme to tie up munitions plants, according to the construction placed on his disclosures to Secretary Lansing, was partly to help his fellow-subjects in the United Saates, whose condition was represented to the Ambassador as pitiable. The expenditure of money suggested was for the purpose of providing for workmen who left the employ of munitions manufacturers until they could find other employment. Under the laws of Austro-Hungary and in accordance with the notice served on them, subjects of the dual monarchy would be obliged to give up their places in munitions plants, and it was held that some provision for their support should be made while they were unemployed. These considerations will be taken into account by President Wilson when he comes to discuss the status of the Dumba case with his advisors.

Other Involved.

But the Dumba case does not end with Mr. Dumba's part in the scheme to disorganize munitions plants. It has ramifications which affect others. One of them is Captain Franz von Papen, the Military Attaché of the German Embassy, who was quoted by Dr. Dumba in the intercepted letter as approving the plan to tie up munitions factories. Another is Alexander Nuber von Pereked, the Consul General of Austria-Hungary in New York. Still another is the chief editor of a newspaper in New York printed in the Hungarian language. In the letter taken from Archibald, Dr. Dumba said:

"Yesterday evening Consul General von Nuber [Nuber von Pereked] received the enclosed aide memorite from the chief editor of the locally-known paper Szabadsag, after a previous conference with him and in pursuance of his proposals to arrange for strikes in the Bethelehem Schwab steel and munitions war factory(and also the Middle West."

From this it appears that the Consul General of Austria-Hungary in New York and the editor of the newspaper Szabadsag were conferring to arrange for strikes in America munition plants. An Ambassador may do many things that a Consular officer or a private person may not do. A Consular officer may be prosecuted for violation of the laws of the country in which he is serving. A private person, whether citizen or alien, is subject to the laws of this country. The phase of the matter involved in the references in the Dumba letter to the Consul General and the editor may be referred to the Department of Justice.

As for James F. J. Archibald, no disclosure is being made. He is an American citizen and before starting on his trip to Europe he obtained a passport from the Department of State. Whether he can be prosecuted on the charge of violating the neutrality laws in carrying documents of military value from the agents of belligerents in this country to the governments of the belligerents is a question that has not been answered officially. At the instance of the United States, the British authorities permitted Archibald to proceed on his voyage from Falmouth.

Not Subsidized, Just Helped.

After the Austrian Ambassador's visit to theState Department it was explained in a quarter where information on the subject was sought that the part of the Ambassador's stement in Lenox on Sunday, in which mention was made of subsidizing the press, was misinterpreted. The Ambassador did not spend a dollar, it was said, for any such purpose. What he did, it was said, was to help Hungarian language newspapers in this country which were poor and which were the only available medium for reaching subjects of Austria-Hungary and advising them that they were liable to prosecution as traitors if they worked in munitions plants that were making war supplies for the Allies.

When Ambassador Dumba left the State Department he was asked if he had any statement to make.

"I have made a statement," he said, referring to the interview with him at Lenox. The Ambassador was asked if his Lenox statement covered everything that he had told the Secretary of State this afternoon. His response was thta there were other things that he might say, but the American people would not understand them, and he indicated that the press would comment on them in a way to cause confusion. The Ambassador declined to give any informatiton about his conversation with the Secretary of State.

The State Department has received the text of an English translatiton of the letter that Dr. Dumba wrote to Count Burian. This was furnished to the American Embassy in London by the British Government, and was cabled to Washington by Ambassador Page. There was a suggestion today that the department might endeavor to obtain a photographic fac-simile of the original and defer action ni the Dumba case until Dr. Dumba had been given an opportunity to see and verify it.

Use of Passport Serious, Too.

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—The text of Dr. Dumba's letter, recently seized by British authorities from its bearer, James F. J. Archibald, was cabled to the State Department early today by Ambassador Page at London, and had been the subject of a conference between the President and Secretary Lansing before the Ambassador reached the Department. It is understood that the use of an American passport to shield the messenger, who carried not only the Dumba letter but dispatches from the German Embassy and other documents, was regarded by them as quite as serious a matter as the activities revealed by the letter itself.

Mr. Lansing's only statement on the subject was a negative response when asked whether any steps had been taken toward bringing the situation to the attention of the Austro-Hungarian Foreign Office.

From reliable sources it was learned tonight that Dr. Dumba, in making his explanation, outlined the Austro-Hungarian view of the plan dealt with in his letter, contending that it contemplated no violation of the laws of the United States, nor any offense against American institutions.

So far, it was said, no steps had been taken, but the Ambassador had been instructed to give the widest publicity to a new decree of his Government making nationals liable under martial law for rendering assistance in the manufacture of munitions of war for the enemy. This decree, previously announced, provides punishment of long terms of imprisonment and even death by hanging for Austro-Hungarians committing the offense at home or abroad.

Co-operation in carrying out the purposes of the law, it was pointed out, was held to be a mere fulfillment of the duty of an Ambassador charged with the protection of his nationals. It was not denied, however, that Austria-Hungary's representatives, while they had no desire to injure American interests, would not hesitate to handicap in any way possible the efforts of their enemies to obtain munitions.

At the embassy tonight it was stated that Ambassador Dumba expected to see Secretary of Labor Wilson tomorrow before returning to his Summer quarters at Lenox, Mass. The Ambassador is known to be working on a scheme for setting up an employment burea to take care of men who leave munition factories at his instigation. He wants the co-operation of Department of Labor officials in the plan.

After seeing Secretary Lansing, Dr. Dumba returned to the State Department and conferred with Assistant Secretary Phillips, in charge of the Western European Affairs Division. It was understood that they discussed some mater of routine business.

There has been no suggestion here that the Ambassador had violated American law, and apparently the only question is whether the Administration will regard his acts as a breach of diplomatic propriety. Dr. Dumba himself asked for the conference with Mr. Lansing after the announcement of Archibald's detention and the publication in this country of extracts from his letter.

ARCHIBALD IS RETURNING.

Unwelcome at Teutonic Capitals, He May Make a Clean Breast Here.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Sept. 7.—James F. J. Archibald, the American newspaper correspondent, who was a special messenger from the German and Austro-Hungarian Embassies in the United States, to their Governments and a search of whose baggage, when the steamer on which he was travelling, the Rotterdam, touched at Falmouth, revealed the correspondence which has gotten the Austro-Hungarian Ambassador into trouble for planning to foment strikes at munitions plants in America, is going back to New York.

Word reached the American Embassy today, from Rotterdam, that Archibald was planning to sail for home, on the same steamer that brought him from America. The Rotterdam was booked to sail next Friday, but the schedule was changed, so as to make her leaving time late tonight. If the steamer sailed on time, she should be due tomorrow morning at Falmouth.

Until word was received concerning Archibald's intended departure, no advices regarding him had reached the American Embassy since the time he was held up at Falmouth, at which time, after the seizure of his papers, he was allowed to go on to Rotterdam. Owing to the discovery of the documents intended for the German and Austrian officials and the complete failure of his errand for those Governments, it was not supposed here that Archibald would endeavor to go on to Berlin or Vienna as, in view of the embarrassing development, it was considered to be likely that he would hardly be welcome in either capital. But the idea of his returning to America, so soon was unexpected.

At the American Embassy it was said today that no intimation had been received that Archibald intended going to Washington, but the deduction was drawn from his sudden decision to return to America, that he expected to go there. Archibald is reported as being eager to try to reestablish himself with his own countrymen by making a clean breast of his dealings with German and Austro-Hungarian officials, or at least explaining how it was that he came into possession of documents that indicated that he was bound on an unneutral errond. The British officals, it is understood here tonight, will make no effort to detain Archibald when the Rotterdam touches Falmouth on the return voyage. They are quite willing for him to go back to America, where it is expected he will be put through a grilling inquisition as to his relations with the pro-German propagandists. It is likely that Archibald will be obliged to submit to having his baggage examined again, but there is no suspicion that he is carrying back any documents, smuggled to him by German or Austrian agents at Rotterdam. Since Archibald's arrival at Rotterdam, it is understood, he has kept himself ensconced in his hotel, utterly dejected over the failure of his enterprise, and the predicament in which it has placed hım and his principals.

TOLUOL OUTPUT TO GERMANY.

Keeps Production of South Bethlehem Plant Away from Schwab.

Special to The New York Times.

SOUTH BETHLEHEM, Penn., Sept. 7.—No Bethlehem Steel Company official could be found today willing to comment on the revelations resulting from the seizure of dispatches which were being carried by James F. J. Archibald from the Austro-Hungarian Embassy in this country to Vienna. It is known, however, that no toluol is yet being manufactured at the Lehigh Coke Company plant here, nor has the Bethlehem Steel Company secured the right to obtain the output of toluol when manufactured.

Charles M. Schwab wanted to obtain the output of high explosive, but failed. The Lehigh Coke Company is owned 70 per cent. by the Deutsche Bank of Berlin. The company furnished to Mr. Schwab all the coke and gas he needed for his steel plant. When the war in Europe broke out and England gave Mr. Schwab enormous contracts for high explosive shells, the steel magnate asked the Coke Company to furnish him with toluol, but the company refused. Then Mr. Schwab threatened to have the du Ponts erect a toluol plant on Steel Company ground here, after which the Coke Company agreed to erect a toluol plant to cost nearly $400,000, which is now being erected. But, it is said, Mr. Schwab neglected to close a contract for the output of toluol, and the German Government stepped in and contracted for the entire output, the stipulation being that it be stored until after the war. Three 100,000-gallon tanks will be built to store the toluol. It seems likely, however, that because of Germany's great need of toluol the high explosive will be sold to Norwegian concerns and in this way ultimately find its way into Germany.

So far as can be learned there is at present no unrest among the nearly 2,000 Hungarians and Austrians employed, mostly as laborers, at the Bethlehem Steel Works. There are no unions here of workmen employed at the steel plant, and if agitators have been in this vicinity they kept in hiding.

WANT TAX SUGGESTIONS.

Senator Mills's Committee to Have Hearings Next Month.

State Senator Ogden L. Mills, Chairman of the Joint Legislative Committee on Taxation, gave out a statement yesterday outlining the work the committee expects to take up when it will begin holding public meetings in the city early in October. The committee will go over the whole field of taxation with a view to suggesting reforms in the present system and adding new sources of revenue. Senator Mills said:

"The committee will take up the fiscal needs of the State, the defects in the existing system of taxation, and possible remedies and new sources of revenue. We invite individuals and associations interested to appear before us and offer their advice and suggestions, and request that wherever possible briefs should be submitted at the earliest possible date."

FEDERAL JUDGE RESIGNS.

Marshall of Utah Quits Office for Unexplained Reasons.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—John A. Marshall, United States District Judge for the District of Utah, has resigned under rather peculiar circumstances. It is believed, however, that Judge Marshall's resognation will be accepted. No charges have been filed against him.

Judge Marshall was appointed by President Cleveland in February, 1896. He is 61 years old.

ORGANIZATION

The Thompson-Starrett organization is no overnight, mushroom growth, but has been years in the making, and if it were suddenly disbanded we could not expect to produce its counterpart for some years to come.

It is comparatively easy to replace individual units, but a smooth-running, highly efficient, harmonious organization of units is something which only years of working together can develop.

That's putting it briefly, but we will go into details if you will furnish the opportunity.

CANDIDATES FILE PRIMARY PETITIONS

"Big Bill" Edwards Is Out—Frank Moss on American Party Ticket.

ZELLER FACES A FIGHT

Joseph T. Ryan Has 2,800 Signatures for Judge of City Court—Sulzer on Stump Till Sept. 28.

More than 700 candidates who are to enter the primaries on Sept. 28 for the nomination to the various county and judicial offices under the emblems of all parties filed their petitions last night wit hthe Board of Elections. The time for filing expired at midnight. The big rush came after 10 o'clock, and the Board of Elections clerks in the Municipal Building were almost overwhelmed.

Ex-Street Cleaning Commissioner "Big Bill" Edwards, who had announced that he would fight in the primaries for the Democratic nomination for Sheriff withdrew yesterday and said in a statement:

"Already sufficient names have been signed to my petition to place my name upon the primary ballot. Since my candidacy was announced the regular Democratic organization in this county has declared itself for the nomination of Alfred E. Smith. This nomination has met the approval of the regular Democratic and independent Democratic newspapers of this city and received favorable notice in general. The nomination of Mr. Smith has placed the contest for Sheriff on a high plane, and the conduct of Mr. Smith in the Constitutional Convention has added to his good reputation and brought commendation generally. I am very glad, therefore, to withdraw, hoping thus to contribute to Democratic unity and success, and shall contribute my best efforts to the success of Mr. Smith."

Frank Moss, Sulzer's Candidate.

The American Party, organized by friends of ex-Governor William Sulzer, filed a full ticket under its party emblem. Frank Moss was indorsed by Sulzer's party for District Attorney and Louis J. Rines, a poultry dealer, was named for Sheriff. The party's ticket for the Supreme Court is that of the Republican and Democratic Parties. Philip Samuels was named for Judge of the City Court.

Fusion tickets were named in Brooklyn, Queens, Richmond, and the Bronx, the American Party indorsing the candidates of other parties in these three boroughs. William S. Bennet was indorsed for Congress for the Twenty-third District. A fight will be waged in Brooklyn in the interest of Colonel Alexander S. Bacon, who kas named for a place on the Supreme Court bench for the Second District. Mr. Sulzer announced that he would take the stump for his candidates and would have plenty of other spellbinders.

The Non-Partisan Judiciary Committee, through William M. Chadbourne of the Progressive Party, filed a petition designating Justice John Proctor Clarke and Justice Samuel Greenbaum as candidates for the office of Supreme Court Justice in the First Judicial District. The indorsement of Justice Greenbaum and Clarke came from the Republican Party with 2,329 signatures; the Democratic Party with 2,230 signatures and the Progressive Party with 1,135 signatures. Mr. Chadbourne said that only 1,500 signatures were needed by law from the Republican and Democratic parties each, and 600 from the Progressives, and that the larger number received was an indication of the general popularity of the two candidates.

J. T. Ryan to Oppose Zeller.

Joseph T. Ryan, lawyer, of 149 Broadway, filed 800 additional names to his petition to run on an independent Democratic ticket for City Court Judge in opposition to Lorenz Zeller, Tammany's candidate. Mr. Ryan's complete petition contained 2,800 signatures.

The various offices which are to be filled in the different counties this year are as follows: New York County—District Attorney, Sheriff, Congressman from the Twenty-third Congressional District, six Supreme Court Justices, one City Court Justice, two Municoapl Court Justices, thirty-one Assemblymen and thirty-three Aldermen.

The same Supreme Court Justices, City Court Justice, and Congressm are to be elected in the Bronx, and in addition there will be four Assemblymen and eight Aldermen elected from that county. In Kings County there will be one Supreme Court Justice, three County Judges, three Municipal Court Justices, a Sheriff, County Clerk, District Attorney, Register, twenty-three Assemblymen, and twenty-four Aldermen. Queens and Richmond are in the same judicial district as Kings County, but in Queens a County Clerk is to be elected, four Assemblymen, and five Aldermen. In Richmond there is to be elected a Borough President, a Sheriff, one Assemblyman, and three Aldermen.

In each county several hundred district committeemen are to be designated at the primaries.

vance guard and the motorcycle scouts will deploy and there will be the going and coming of the messenger service. Following the cavalry, will come the infantry. The main army will them come into view and wil be folowed by all the accessories of an army on the march, the munitions trains, the baggage wagons, the signal corps and the commissary department. Following all these will come the rear guard in all the detail of modern requirements.

Commands That Will Respond.

These are the commands that will respond to the call and the estimated

First Cavalry, Colonel Charles De Bevoise, 750 men; Twenty-second Corps of Engineers, Lieut. Col. Eugene W. Van C. Lucas, 800 men; Squadron A, Major William R. Wright, 300 men; First Field Artillery, Colonel H. H. Rogers, 600 men; Second Field Artillery, Colonel George A. Wingate, 600 men; Eighth Coast Defense Command, Colonel E. F. Austin, 800 men; Ninth Coast Defense Command, Lieut. Col. John J. Byrne, 750 men; Thirteenth Coast Defense Command, Colonel N. B. Thurston, 1,000 men; First Field Hospital Corps, Major J. F. Dunseith, 100 men; Third Ambulance Corps, Captain L. H. Shearer, 100 men; Seventh Infantry, Colonel Daniel Appleton, 1,000 men; Twelfth Infantry, Colonel C. S. Wadsworth, 800 men; Seventy-first Infantry, Colonel W. H. Bates, 800 men; Sixty-ninth Infantry, Colonel Louis D. Connelly, 800 men; Twenty-third Infantry, Colonel F. H. Norton, 750 men; Fourteenth Infantry, Colonel John H. Foot, 750 men; Forty-seventh Infantry, Col. E. E. Jannicky, 750 men; First Signal Battalion Major William L. Hallahan, 200 men; Citizens' Motor Cycle Corps, Captain Lorillard Spencer, 250 men.

This number will be increased by the men and officers detailed to Brigade and Division headquarters, and it it was figured out last night that 10,000 men will respond to the order.

The State is not going to furnish a cent of the money required for the encampment. Each regiment and command will bar the expense of assembling and maintenance out of its own funds. For the general expenses, the grand stands, and other incidental expenditurs a fund will be opened and money raised by subscription. General O'Ryan announces that $5,000 has been raised already.

New Motor Cycle Scouts.

Captain Spencer is at present recruiting the company of motor cycle scouts, and he reported yesterday that he was meeting with much success and that he would have 250 men in the command by the date of the camp.

"At the manoeuvres at Camp Whitman in July many persons of intelligence said to me in evident surprise that it was a remarkable showing we made," said Gen. O'Ryan. "They wanted to know how it was possible for us to make this showing without much training. They did not seem to take into consideration that we put in many weeks of hard work in the armories. I said to some of these surprised persons: 'What do you suppose we have been doing in the armories?'

"The reply was that we had been drilling and parading. I asked what we drilled for, and the answer was, 'For the parade, of course.' These persons, like many others in this city and State, seem to think the aNtional Guard is a sort of institution for parades and show.

"That is not so. One purpose of the proposed one-day encampment is to show the city that the National Guard can do more than wear the uniform. We want to show where the Guard stands in the matter of preparedness for war, and we want also to demonstrate to employers that they are not letting men off for a frolic when they go to the camp or the armory."

TYPHOID ON GERMAN LINERS

All the 2,500 Men on 13 Ships in Hoboken to be Inocculated.

Dr. Joseph Stack, Health Commissioner of Hoboken, ordered the removal yesterday morning from German steamers lying at piers there of two persons suffering from typhoid fever. One was on board the North German Lloyd liner George Washington and the other on the President Lincoln of the Hamburg-American Line.

The Health Commissioner said he would begin at once to inoculate the 2,500 men on the thirteen German steamers with anti-typhoid serum as a precaution.

FIND MORE OF THE F-4 DEAD.

Two Bodies Recovered from Engine Room—Investigate New Collision.

HONOLULU, Sept. 7.—Two additional bodies were found today in the engine room compartment of the wrecked United States submarine F-4, which is in dry dock here. The condition of the bodies was such that identification was impossible.

Officials in charge of the investigation as to the cause of the disaster said today they hoped to have the hull cleared débris by Thursday. It has not been determined what disposition shall be made of the bodies.

Investigation of last Sunday's accident when the United States steamship Supply crashed into submarines F-1, F-2, and F-3 at their wharf, putting all of them out of commission, continued behind closed doors today. Lieutenants Ellis Lando and Kirby Crittenden were appointed members of the Special Board of Inquiry by Lieutenant Commander Mark Ellis, Chairman.

The GIMBEL Autumn Presentation of

New York's Most Famous Review

A magnificent and exclusive representation of the latest and most authoritative Paris and American Millinery modes for Autumn and Winter. Unquestionably the foremost showing in America.

The Etiquette of the Art Gallery Prevails in Our Salons

You may come, view and study the real masterpieces of the season that are now exhibited in

Le Grand Salon des Modes de Paris

American women can choose this season from the greatest diversity of styles that have been presented for years.

Large, Small and Medium Size Hats Are Equally Good

The clever Parisian modistes, as if by some secret understanding, have selected the Girondin, Directoire, Louis Philippe and Second Empire period styles, which, of course, indicates a return to the medium and high crown Hats, a somewhat drastic change from recent modes. All these are in our spacious Millinery Salons and are either the reproductions or originals of such well known artists as

Maria Guy, Leontine, Marguerite et Leoni, Reboux, Odette, Georgette, Lewis, Evelyne Varon, Marie Louise, Jeanne Lanvin, Madeleine, Marie Edmee

Remarkable Reproductions at $15 to $38

Only rivaled by Paris models which cost $50 to $150 in the French Salons.

These Hats are not merely copied, but the lines are also identical—even the materials, as they were bought by our American representatives while in Paris.

Evelyne Varon's Original Hat-and-Fur Set, $175

Founded 1827 Arnold, Constable & Co. Founded 1827

The Season's First Great House Furnishing Event

A $150,000 Stock ¼ to ½ Off

EXPLAIN TO VOTERS NEW ORGANIC LAW

Albany Convention Leaders Plan a Campaign of Education for New Constitution.

REVISERS HARD AT WORK

Find Changes of Phraseology Necessary—Many Laws Valueless if Constitution Is Adopted.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Sept. 7.—The Constitutional Convention in all probability will adjourn sine die on Friday evening after adopting the final draft of the new organic law, which its Committee on Revision now is whipping into shape. The leaders of the convention, however, will not by any means feel that their responsibility is ended when the final gavel falls.

It was learned today that not only will some of the chieftains in the convention take an active hand in the campaign for the purpose of explaining the provisions of the proposed new constitution to the voters, but after it has been ratified at the polls, as they believe it will be, they will begin work on a legislative program designed to carry its various provisions into effect.

Some of the leading men in the convention, including President Elihu Root, Majority Leader George W. Wickersham, President Jacob Gould Schurman of Cornell University, Morgan J. O'Brien, ex-Judge Alphonso T. Clearwater of Kingston, Judge Ledyard P. Hale, and ex-Speaker Alfred E. Smith will begin work tomorrow on an address to the people of the State, explaining the new Constitution and the reasons which prompted the convention in making the changes it did make. This address will be submitted to the voters in an official way through the Secretary of State and will be the first step in the campaign to have the new Constiution ratified on Election Day.

If the voters, by affirmative vote, decree that the revised Constitution shall be operativeafter Jan. 1 the Legislature will have a great task in repealing laws based on the old Constitution and adjusting the laws in general to the new Constitution. It is understood that a special committee will be formed among the leaders of the convention to give the Legislature a hand in this task. This work, of course, would be undertaken in a purely informal way and the Legislature would be free to reject any recommendations made.

In many respects the leading men in the Constitutional Convention look upon this unofficial work as essential. It is pointed out that the men who took active part in framing such parts of the Constitution as the short ballot article and the article providing for judiciary reforms would be in a better position than the legislators to know what was in the collective mind of the concention in adopting them.

In the case of the short ballot article, for instance, the framers had very definite ideas as to what the organization of the various departments in the State government should be. Only the framwork, however, could properly be embodied in the organic law. So the convention leaders regard it as essential that the Legislature should have the benefit of the discussion not only on the floor of the convention, but in the committee roms where details were considered. The short ballot article, the judiciary article ,and the home rule article contain twilight zones within which legislative manipulation for political purposes might result in disaster to the administrative plan the framers of the basic law had in view.

It was said tonight that the committee might go so far as to submit to the Governor for transmission to the Legislature measures to render the provisions of the revised Constitution effective. Thus a definite program with regard to these reforms would be offered to the lawmaking body, and the burden of proof, if the lawmakers should fail to act upon this program, would be on the legislative leaders.

The Committee on Revision spent many hours today in the library of the Educational Building perfecting the language of the various proposals adopted by the convention and fitting them into their proper place. It was said tonight that a good many changes of phraseology, both in the amendments adopted by the convention and in portions which have not been changed, would have to be made in order to make the Constitution what the convention intended it to be. When the Revision Committee is through, the finished product will be submitted to the convention, which will reassemble here on Thursday night. When it has been adopted, President Root and Secretary Cunningham will affix their signatures and the seal of the convention. The document will then be turned over to Secretary of State Francis M. Hugo to be prepared for submission to the voters on a separate ballot.

Judge Adolph Rodenback of the Court of Claims is Chairman of the Revision Committee. With Charles H. Betts, an editor, of Wayne County, and two experts from the bill drafting department, Judge Rodenback is giving the new Constitution its literary finish. At one time today the revisers found it necessary to call for Dr. John H. Finley, State Commissioner of Education to help them negotiate some hurdles.

A matter which must be decided before the Constitution is finally adopted by the convention is the time and manner of its submission. Herbert Parsons of New York, Jacob Brenner of Brooklyn, Frank L. Young of Westchester, De Lancey Nicoll of New York, and Raymond D. Cobb of Syracuse have been appointed a committee, which will begin work tomorrow for the purpose of settling those question.

While it is generally understood that the Constitution will be submitted as a whole, it was said tonight not to be entirely beyond the realm of possibility that each article might be submitted as a separate proposal. When Ohio adopted its new Constitution in 1912 it was submitted in the form of forty-five separate proposals. This method, it is pointed out, would give the voters an opportunity to register their objections to certain features of the revised Constitution, and avoid the necessity of accepting or rejecting it as a whole.

TOURIST RUSH AT STATIONS.

Terminals Handle Thousands of Vacationists and Their Baggage.

Baggage masters and station agents at Grand Central Terminal, Pennsylvania Station, and the railroad stations at the Jersey ends of ferries had a busy day yesterday, and extra trains from vacation resort sections rolled in every few minutes. The baggage men had even more work than the officials who had to deal wit hthe passengers, for the great influx of passengers who returned from vacations on Labor Day was followed by a flood of baggage that the agents at smaller stations had been unable to get off until a day late.

Officials at Grand Central estimated that 65,000 persons returned to the city through that station during the day, and the reports showed that about 380,000 passengers had been handled by the New York Central and the New Haven roads, incoming and outgoing, from Friday to last night. The number of vacationists that returned yesterday was even greater than on Labor Day. It was sai dthat special baggage trains and increased facilities had prevented any tie-up of baggage at this end, however, and although a number of trains were late on account of the crowded tracks on Monday the trains ran approximately on time yesterday. Fifty thousand pieces of baggage were handled at the terminal between Firday and last night. The amount of traffic, it was said, was, about the same as last year.

At Pennsylvania Station it was said that the trains were running about on time except for a fe wmorning trains from Long Island. The week of the national tennis championship matches at Forest Hills added to the rush created by returning vacationists, and yesterday the line carried about 5,000 passengers to the tennis games, for which four special trains were run. Both baggage and passengers were handled in greater numbers than last year, it was said at the station, and travel during the entire Summer was greater than last year, though baggage was handled in smaller quantity than during the Summer of 1914. The officials attributed this to the fact that there was practically no foreign tourist travel, and consequently few women from inland points with many trunks and bags.

MORTALITY RATE LOWER.

1,287 Deaths Last Week, Against 1,344 in Week of 1914.

Registrar Guilfoy of the Department of Health announced yesterday that there were 1,287 deaths and a death rate of 11.56 for 1,000 of the population reported last week, as against 1,344 deaths and a rate of 12.56 in the corresponding week of 1914.

The following causes showed a decreased mortality: Scarlet fever, diphtheria and croup, typhoid fever, Bright's disease and nephritis, deaths from violence. The deaths from violence showed a marked decrease, there having been only 68, as compared with 119 in the corresponding week of 1914.

Causes showing increased mortality were: Measles, whooping cough, diarrhoeal diseases under five years, organic heart diseases, lobar and broncho pneumonia, and pulmonary tuberculosis.

There was an increase of eight deaths of infants under one year; between one and five years an increase of thirty-three, and at ages sixty-five and more an increase of twenty-three.

The death rate for the first thirty-six weeks of this year was 13.58 for 1,000 of the population, against a rate of 14.05 for the corresponding period of 1914.

JEROME ROSENBERG FAILS.

Theatrical Manager Names Four Bankers as Creditors.

A voluntary petition in bankruptcy was filed yesterday by Jerome Rosenberg, theatrical manager, of 225 West Eightieth Street and 112 West Thirty-fourth Street. Liabilities were given at $10,284 and assets at $26,270. Felix Warburg, Igaac N. Seligman, Paul M. Warburg, and Mortimer L. Schiff are the principal creditors with a judgment for $7,783, obtained in the Supreme Court as Trustee s of Alfred M. Heinsheimer, for rent of the Bijou Theatre under a lease running from July 1, 1914, to Jan. 31, 1915.

The bankrupt has an action pending in the Supreme Court against these four men for $25,000 damages for alleged breaches of his lease with them, and another alleged claim for the return of $1,270 held by William F. Fuerst, agent of the same parties for a cash deposit on the lease. These claims constitute the bankrupt's only assets. The City of New York has a judgment on record against Rosenberg for violation of the Sunday laws regarding public acrobatic performances. Robert M. Moore, 30 Broadway, is the bankrupt's attorney.

ADDRESSES ON BOTANY.

Second Day's Session at Gardens Devoted to Technical Matters.

The second day of the twentieth anniversary celebration of the New York Botanical Gardens opened yesterday with about 100 botanists from various parts of the country present. A number of addresses were delivered on technical subjects, among the speakers being D. T. MacDougal, Director of Botanical Research in the Carnegie Institute; W. P. Thompson and Irving W. Baily, Harvard University; Elizabeth G. Britton, New York Botanical Gardens; Arthur H. Chivers, Dartmouth College; John H. Barnhart of the New York Botanical Gardens; R. Ellsworth Call, Cecil Yampolsky, Columbia University; Edwin W. Humphries, New York Botanical Gardens; Norman Taylor, Curator of Plants in the Brooklyn Botanical Gardens, and Professor A F. Blakeslee of the Connecticut Agricultural College.

Fireman Gave His Life for Boy.

John Duffy, a fireman of Engine Company 83, who lives at 3,825 Eagle Avenue, the Bronx, died yesterday in Lincoln Hospital from a fracture of the skull received while helping Aaron Steinburg, 12 years old, of 609 East 138th Street, out of an excavation at 138th Street, near Cypress Avenue, into which he had fallen. The boy is in the hospital, suffering from cuts and bruises.

BRIBERY IS CHARGED IN $100,000 P. O. PLOT

J. J. Cassidy, Head of Downtown Transfer Service, Held in $20,000 Bail.

NO FINES ON CONTRACT

Government Charges Complaints Against Mail-Carrying Company Never Reached Washington.

Charged with the bribery of Government employes, in a conspiracy to increase the company's income at the expense of the United States, James J. Cassidy, Vice President and General Manager of the Postal Transfer Service, Inc., which has a $473,000 yearly contract for transporting the mails below Forty-second Street, was arraigned yesterday before United States Commissioner Clarence S. Houghton and held in $20,000 bail for examination on Sept. 18.

James W. Osborne, as Special Assistant United States District Attorney, and Post Office Inspector Hugh McQuillan have been investigating the alleged conspiracy, by which Cassidy's company prevented the assessment of fines against it for delays in the delivery of mails and other violations of contract. In the past few years, it is said, the company has saved about $20,000 in this way through the co-operation of a clerk in the office of the Superintendent of Mails. This clerk, it is said, made a full confession to Mr. Osborne. He is now under surveillance, and a third alleged conspirator connected with the company has yet to be arrested.

The mail transportation contract, which has been running since June 18, 1913, will expire on June 30, 1917. The compensation of $473,000 a year is based on an approximate computation of the number of miles traveled by the Postal Transfer Company's wagons and auto trucks. It was stipulated in the contract that the company should be subject to "fines for failure to deliver mails, for any delay or interference with the prompt delivery of mail at the places required herein, or for the carrying of the mail in a manner different or inferior to that hereinbefore specified or allowing the mail to be wet, injured, lost, or destroyed, or for any delinquency or omission of duty set forth in this contract."

Complaints of breaches of the stipulation, it is said, were from time to time reported to the Superintendent of Mails by officials at the various sub-stations within the downtown territory. According to the regular procedure a clerk entered the complaints in a book and awaited the answer of the company to the charges. If the answer was plausible the fact was merely checked up on the record. If not the papers were sent by the Superintendent of Mails to the Postmaster General, who fixed the amount of the fine.

A man who had charge of checking up the complaints in the office of the Superintendent of Mails has, according to the Federal authorities, been on the secret payroll of the Postal Transfer Service since February, 1914, and has, in that time, destroyed about 4,000 complaints which would have resulted in fines aggregating at least $20,000. For this, it is charged, he received from $25 to $50 a month.

The complaint specifies several of these alleged payments, setting forth that William Cadigan received $25 from some on conected with the Company, Dec. 19, 1914, and $50 from Cassidy on Feb. 15, 1915. At the begining of the conspiracy, it is further stated in the complaint, Cadigan merely held up the complaints until they numbered 900 and then, classing them as satisfactory, destroyed them all, thus preventing their transmission to Washington. Thereafter, Mr. Osborne said in court, Cadigan found it more effective to steal the reports upon their reception and make no entry of them in the books.

As the investigation disclosed that other Government employes were involved in the frauds Mr. Osborne obtained a subpoena deuces tecum, upon the service of which Post Office Inspectors Pollitt and Barber took possession of a truck load of books, reports, and other papers at the offices of the Postal Transfer Service.

Mr. Osborne said he expected to show that the Government had been defrauded out of fines and penalties aggregating more than $100,000 a year. It is suspected that the same plan has been going on in other cities where the same company has contracts for handling the mails. The company transports mails in Boston and has tried to obtain contracts for the same work in Chicago, St. Paul, St. Louis, and Brooklyn.

The Chauffeurs employed by the company in this city struck a year ago for shorter hours and they were replaced by strikebreakers. Vice President Cassidy at the time alleged that the strikers had plotted to blow him up with dynamite.

ASKS HOTEL TO CHECK BABY

McAlpin Porter Tells Woman That They Didn't "Take 'Em."

For the first time since the McAlpin was opened a demand was made yesterday at the hotel that a baby be checked. A young woman carrying a child in her arms appeared before Tom McGuire at the porters' desk about 9:30 o'clock in the morning.

"I would like to leave my baby here and get a check for it," she said.

"We don't take 'em, ma'am," was the reply of the poter.

"But you must. I have read it somewhere. I want to do some shopping, and I understood that you would take the baby and look after it until I got back."

McGuire explained that the custom had not been established yet, though if the woman was registered at the hotel no doubt the management would be glad to have the child looked after by a maid while she went out for her errands, and the woman, apparently keenly disappointed, went out.

STRAUS MILK SEASON ENDS.

Stations Have Distributed 2,175,208 Bottles This Summer.

Nathan Straus has completed the twenty-fourth year of his work of distributing milk for the babies of this city, and the report completed by Miss Annie Nason, Superintendent of the Nathan Straus Laboratories, shows that the output of milk from the eighteen Straus stations in the past year amounted to 2,175,208 bottles. Besides this, during the three Summer months, 1,441,580 glasses of pasteurized milk were served at the stations in the parks and on the recreation piers.

The milk was supplied at less than cast, the bottled milk being in nursing bottles, one feeding to a bottle, ready for use upon warming, the size of the bottle and farmula used varying according to the ages of the babies.

In the twenty-four years that Mr. Straus has maintained this work, besides what he has done on similar lines in other cities in this country and abroad, he has supplied over 39,000,000 bottles of milk for the babies of Manhattan, and during the Summers he has served 21,500,000 glasses of pasteurized milk to the children playing in the parks and on the recreation piers. The work was started in 1892 with 34,000 bottles in the first year.

Only certified milk is used at the Straus Laboratories. This is modified according to formulae prepared by Dr. Abraham Jacobi, Dr. Rowland G. Freeman, Dr. Arthur Randolph Green and Dr. Alfred Hess. The milk is then pasteurized in the bottles, so as surely to kinll any germs that may be in the milk, and then is quickly cooled.

Mr. Straus's method of making milk safe food for babies and free from the germs of tuberculosis and other infectious diseases has been approved and recommended by the United States Public Health Service, the National Commission on Milk Standards, and the health authorities of practically the whole world, and pasteurization of milk is now required in many cities.

In the past year, in addition to the ordinary work of the Straus Depots, the period of unemployment following the outbreak of the war led Mr. Straus to provide meals at one cent each at those of his stations that were in the districts where unemploymetn was most seriously felt. In all 1,135,731 such meals were served.

CHAUFFEUR STOPS RUNAWAY

Commissioner Adamson's Driver Hurt as He Leaps for Horse.

William Doyle, chauffeur for Fire Commisioner Adamson, stopped the runaway horse of John Seery, an express wagon driver, yesterday on Broadway near Sixty-third Street, after he had been dragged over a block.

The horse, which was standing at 158 West Sixty-fifth Street, became frightened at passing fire engines and bolted. Seery who had just mounted the wagon, was thrown to the curb. At Broadway, Traffic Policeman Cox jumped to the horse's head and was thrown against an elevated pillar and injured his left arm. Policeman Farrell of the West Sixty-eighth Street Station, jumped into the wagon as the horse tore past an automobile supply store where Doyle was waiting for the Commissioner.

He ran into the street and swung onto the horse's bridle and with the help of Farrell, who crawled out on the shafts to clutch the horse's head, stopped the animal at Sixty-third Street. Doyle suffered a few bruises and returned to his car, where he was congratulated by the Commissioner.

INVESTIGATORS FORGET.

Not an Up-State Member of Public Service Committee at Meeting.

The Public Service Investigating Committee was to have met yesterday for its first Fall session at the Bar Association, 42 West Forty-fourth Street, but only Senator George F. Thompson and a few New York members attended. Telegrams were sent to absent members asking them to attend this morning.

Senator Thompson said yesterday afternoon that the up-State members were all absent. "Probably the date of the meeting slipped their minds," he said, "and when they receive the telegrams today they will start for New York and be ready for work tomorrow.

The committeed was named by Governor Whitman on Jan. 21, 1915.

WAR GAS EMPTIES RUBBER LABORATORY

Clerks and Chemists Flee to Street Before Invasion of Sulphur Chloride Fumes.

POISON BAFFLES FIREMEN

Rescue Company, Protected by Helmets, Carries Out Defective Container.

Firemen of Hook and Ladder Truck 35, under Battalion Chief McKiernan, had a taste yesterday of conditions in the Allies' trenches when poisonous gas is creeping over them. The firemen had answered a call from the United States Rubber Company at 561 West Fifty-eighth Street, sent in when gas from 100 gallons of sulphur of chloride, stored in a tank in a vault in the sub-basement of the building, began to permeate the laboratories with its paralyzing odor.

Men working in the laboratories just before noon noticed the air becoming heavy with gas. They thought of the sulphur chloride tanks below as the greenish yellow fumes began to fill the building.

The employes hurried to the streets without hats or coats to get away from the odor, and a call was sent to the Fire Department. When Chief McKiernan and his men got there, they tried to get into the vault, but found it impossible.

The fumes are heavier than air, and that is why they lay a thick cloud close to the floor of the vault and forbade entrance without protectors for the lungs.

A fireman of Hook and Ladder Company 35 said the gas seemed to grip the lungs with paralyzing force.

"In the case of smoke," he said, "we don't mind, for we can always get fresh air by putting our mouths close to the ground, but that stuff lay like a carpet, and the only way to breathe was to go up near the ceiling, and you know we can't work up there."

When Chief McKiernan saw that his men could not do anything in the fumes, he called Rescue Company 1, under Lieutenant Hotchkiss, who are known as smoke-eaters, and are equipped with safety helmets. When the rescue company arrived, they donned their helmets, plunged into the basement and bore the tank outside. A large crowd which had gathered scattered when the odor of the gas reached them, and the tank was set down in a practically deserted street.

There it was found that a hole had been eaten through the tank and allowed the gas to escape. A draft probably carried it through the building.

The firemen emptied the large tank into several smaller ones and carried them back into the building. No one was hurt, but the employes could not return to their work until the building had been well aired.

VOLUNTEER ARMIES FUTILE, MAYOR SAYS

Experience in Plattsburg Camp Taught Him Lesson of Preparedness.

SOLDIERS MADE, NOT BORN

City's Head Came Back a Lieutenant After Putting in Four Weeks of Vacation in Work.

Mayor Mitchel was back at the City Hall yesterday after a month's absence at the military training camp at Plattsburg. The Mayor, who reached the grade of Lieutenant, was enthusiastic over the camp life, and he pronounced it a decided success in that it furnished the ground work for the training of officers who would be badly needed in a volunteer army.

The Mayor was strongly convinced of the necessity of national preparedness. He found out, he said, that a soldier, much less an officer, cannot be made in a few weeks of training. It would be a crime against the people, amounting to nothing less than national suicide, he said, to send into the field armies manned and officered by untrained volunteers. When asked to comment upon his camp experience, the Mayor said:

"I have returned from Plattsburg deeply convinced of the great value of this experiment. The encampment was a thorough success, and the spirit brought to the work by the 1,300 members of the provisional regiment was an inspiration and something to be remembered through a lifetime. The discipline was strict, the work hard and the results achieved remarkable, considering the very brief period of training.

"The regular army officers assigned to duty in the camp did a splendid piece of work, and deserve great credit. Their patience was inexhaustible, their enthusiasm is unbounded, and their courtesy, while exacting strict adherence to discipline, unfailing. All of us leave Plattsburg with an increased respect for the efficiency and character of the officers of our regular army and with the warmest feeling of personal friendship for those with whom we were there thrown into personal contact.

Objects of the Camp.

"The fundamental objects of the Plattsburg training camp were, to my mind, two in number:

"First, to give the members of the camp that initial and elementary training in the use of arms and the command of military forces, which, if followed by more advanced and more thorough training, would fit them to become officers in the event of a national emergency. This the camp did. No one claims that any of us by virtue of these four weeks of instruction alone is now competent to command troops. On the contrary, we appreciate now how little competent we are. We have received, however, a groundwork which can easily be built upon to make of these 1,300 men material fit to supplement with officers the nation's meagre quota of trained regulars and trained militia.

"Second, and by far more important, this encampment by practical demonstration has taught 1,300 of the representative men of the nation the futility of relying upon volunteer armies in case of need, and the certain national disaster that would follow a continuation of that national policy. We know now in a way that arguments can never bring home that a soldier, much less an officer, cannot be made in a few weeks of training, and that it would be a crime against our people amounting to nothing less than national suicide to send into the field armies manned and officered by untrained volunteers.

"These are the lessons taught at Plattsburg, lessons which this nation must learn and take to heart if it would preserve its free institutions and maintain its position of dignity and independence among the nations of the world. The Plattsburg camp should be followed by many others of its kind pending the adoption by the National Government of full and adequate measures of national preparedness.

The Mayor's Annual Vacation.

"I have been asked once or twice to comment upon certain criticisms of myself for my participation in this camp indulged in by a few personally unfriendly. While I have no disposition to give them serious consideration, I think it not amiss to point out to those who may have been confused by misrepresentation that my time at Plattsburg was my own vacation time which I was entitled to spend at leisure, and if I chose to spend it in hard work in camp in the interest of a movement in which I profoundly believe, and at a time when my absence from the city could not and did not in any respect prejudice the city's interest, it was a matter purely of my own concern."

The Mayor said he had not kept in touch with the political situation in the city and did not care to comment upon it. Just as soon as he could get around to it, he said he intended to pick a successor to Corporation Counsel Frank L. Polk, who resigned to become Counselor to the State Department at Washington. He said he was considering several candidates, but had not made up his mind about any one in particular. He said he was also looking around for a successor to Health Commissioner Goldwater, who is anxious to return to private practice.

On the Mayor's desk was a large bouquet of American Beauty roses, a gift from Charles T. Wills, head of the building firm of Charles T. Wills, Inc., which had charge of reconstructing the Mayor's office. When the work was completed last week Mr. Wills ordered the flowers sent to the Mayor. A few days later Mr. Wills died. The Mayor said he was greatly pleased with the reconstruction work.

OPEN NEW CAMP TODAY.

Rookies from Many States to Take Instruction.

Special to The New York Times.

PLATTSBURG, Sept. 7.—Everything is in readiness for the men who have registered for the third camp of military instruction, which will open tomorrow. There are already on the camp grounds about seventy-five recruits. A special train of twenty-two cars will bring most of the New York contingent tomorrow morning.

The camp will have members from nearly every State from Maine to Colorado, but New York will have the largest representation with 216. Massachusetts is second with 132 enlistments.

MORGAN'S SON BEGINS WORK

Desk Given to Him Among Partners of the Big Banking Firm.

Two new desks were put in the offices of J. P. Morgan & Co. yesterday. One of them was for Junius Spencer Morgan, son of J. P. Morgan, who recently returned from a trip with his bride to San Francisco, while the other was givin to Irving Bowdoin Kingsford. The latter is the grandson of George S. Bowdoin, who was one of the late J. P. Morgan's earliest partners. Both young men were on hand early yesterday morning to begin their careers with the banking firm.

There are now four young men with desks in the quarters on the Broad Street side of the Morgan building set aside for the partners. The other two are Elliot O. Bacon, son of Robert Bacon, at one time Ambassador to France and a former partner in the firm, and R. Cecil St. George, who came from the First National Bank.

War Made Him a Suicide.

Simon Herrnstadt, 49 years old, a wholesale lumber dealer of 117 East Eighty-sixth Street, shot himself yesterday morning in his home. His wife was out shopping, and when she returned to the apartment she found a note in which Herrnstadt asked for forgiveness and begged her to take good care of their three small children. According to Mrs. Herrnstadt, her husband had been prosperous until the war and had offices in Broad Street, which he had been recently forced to give up. This, coupled with worry over his five brothers, all of whom are in the German Army, had preyed on his mind, and for some weeks he had been despondent.

JEWISH NEW YEAR BEGINS AT SUNSET

Rosh ha-Shanah to be Observed by the Devout by Resting from Labor and Business.

RELIGIOUS RITE IMPRESSIVE

Committee Reports $1,000,000 Raised by Jews for War Sufferers and Hopes to Double the Sum.

The celebration of Rosh ha-Shanah, or the New York, will be begun by the Jewish people throughout the world at sunset this evening. It is the beginning of the year 5676 of the Hebrew calendar, commencing on the first day of the seventh month, Tishri.

On the eve of the Jewish holidays it was announced yesterday that the response to the appeal of the American Jewish Relief Committee, made to Jews throughout the country in behalf of the suffering in Europe, was about $1,000,000, and that the committee expected the further contributions during the holidays would equal another $1,000,000. In this city the special collection for the fund will be taken in almost all synagogues on the Day of Atonement, Sept. 17-18.

The month of Tishri, while the seventh in the Jewish ecclesiastical year, is the first in the civil year and is regarded of great importance, as the festival of the New Year, the solemn fast of Yom Kippur, and the Feast of Succoth, or Tabernacles, occur during the month. Among the orthodox Jews the first and second days of Tishri constitute the New Year's festival, but the Reform element among the Jewish people celebrate the festival on the first day of the month only.

Rosh ha-Shanah, or, literally translated, "The Head of the Year," is very generally observed by the Jewish community. The abstention from all business or labor of any kind, save only works of absolute necessity or charity, is strictly enjoined upon the observant Jew, as is also attendance upon the solemn religious services of the festival. These services commence at sunset this evening at all the Hebrew places of worship, and are continued tomorrow.

For the accommodation of the very many orthodox Jews who do not hold membership in any regular constituted synagogues temporary places of worship are provided throughout the city in many public halls, meeting and lodge rooms, and these will be thronged during the two days of Rosh ha-Shanah by devout worshippers.

In addition to the regular services at the temples and synagogues there will be special services in the auditorium of the Young Men's Hebrew Association at Lexington Avenue and Ninety-ninth Street, at the Bronx Branch at 165th Street and Boston Road, and at the Young Women's Hebrew Association Building on 110th Street, near Lenox Avenue. The first services of the New Synagogue which has been recently organized by a number of the exponents of liberal Judaism on the west side of the city under the leadership of the Rev. Ephraim Frisch, formerly of the Far Rockaway congregation, will be held this evening at Aeolian Hall in West Forty-second Street.

The days intervening between Rosh ha-Shanah and the solemn fast day of Yom Kippur, the Day of Atonement, the most important event in the Hebraic religious calendar, which occurs on Saturday, the 18th inst., are designated as the Days of Repentance, and are devoted to prayer and devotional exercises in preparation for the Yom Kippur fast.

KILLED IN LEAP FROM AUTO.

John G. Bennett of Brooklyn Loses Life When Brakes Fail to Work.

Special to The New York Times.

CATSKILL, N. Y., Sept. 7.—When the brakes of the automobile in which John J. Bennett of 65 Van Sicklen Avenue, Brooklyn, and a party of friends were riding failed to work while the car was descending a steep hill between Leeds and West Athens this afternoon Mr. Bennett, his wife, and Mrs. Margaret McCarter jumped from the auto. Bennett struck on his head and was instantly killed. The women were only slightly bruised.

The others in the party, Miss Marie, Bennett's daughter; Miss Genevieve, his granddaughter; Miss May Young, John Carr, all of Brooklyn, and the owner of the car, John E. Miller of Cairo Junction, stayed in the auto and reached the bottom of the hill in safety.

Miller, from whom Mr. Bennett had hired the automobile for an afternoon's outing, will be held for examination.

WAR HITS TERRACE GARDEN.

East Side German Resort in Hands of an Assignee.

Terrace Garden, in Fifty-eighth Street near Third Avenue, a famous place for German balls and parties, has not been able to weather the European war. Adolph Suesskind, the proprietor, made an assignment yesterday to Bernard Stahl for the benefit of creditors. Abraham Gruber, of counsel for the assignee, estimated the liabilities at between $150,000 and $200,000 and the assets at about the same figure.

"Terrace Garden is one of the unfortunate victims of the great European war," said Nathan Vidaver of 116 Nassau Street, counsel for Mr. Suesskind. "Not only has it in the past been the headquarters for most of the German societies in that section of the city, but it had until the outbreak of the war received the patronage of a number of important and influential French organizations. They held lodge meetings there and had frequent entertainments, and the restaurant proper was always well patronized by German, French, and English persons. Naturally, after the war began some of the French societies withdrew their patronage and the Germans didn't feel like holding their usual festivities. The result of course has been a gradual shrinkage of the concern's business."

Suesskind, it was said, expects to pay in full if given time. He has been in business since 1892 and has been interested in Terrace Garden since 1901, when he bought a half interest in the place for $35,000, it is said. His partner, Otto Rehfield, died in November, 1909, and Suesskind has carried on the business alone since that time. Terrace Garden was built about forty years ago. A meeting of the creditors will be held within a few days to try and arrange a settlement.

FLOWERS FROM THE SKY.

They Fell on a Bride and Container Knocked Her Down.

While Mr. and Mrs. Harry Van Duser of Indiana, Penn., who were married last week and came to New York for the honeymoon, have steadfastly refrained from walking under ladders since they reached town, that abstention had no effect on Monday, when they happened to be in Thirty-third Street, between Madison and Park Avenues. True, there was no ladder standing against an office and loft building near the Vanderbilt Hotel, but on the window sill of a room on the tenth floor was a flower pot containing a plant. Something—said to be the wind—disturbed the flower pot and it fell out.

With Mr. and Mrs. Van Duser at the time was Miss Laura Elkin, a daughter of Supreme Court Justice Elkin of Pennsylvania. The flower pot struck Mrs. Van Duser upon the head and, grazing her shoulder, smashed upon the pavement.

Mrs. Van Duser fell unconscious. She was taken into the Vanderbilt, where Dr. Murray, the house physician, found she had a scalp wound on the right side of her head and abrasions of her hand and shoulder. After the wounds were treated she was taken to the house of Mrs. H. E. Armstrong, 419 West 119th Street, where she is visiting.

A Daring, New Idea
IN MILLINERY

THE creation of a most remarkable special collection of new hats, embodying the very latest and newest Parisian Fashions, to be known as the

Chapeaux La Marquise

at $8.50

The same styles and qualities that will be sold at $12 to $15 by "exclusive" stores and shops

The assemblage, which opens for your inspection Wednesday, Sept. 8th, represents 300 of the smartest, newest millinery fashions of the season. They will be without doubt—

The Most Talked of Hats in New York

This daring step is taken for a two-fold purpose:

First: To place within the reach of every discriminating woman the most authentic hat styles, inspired by the very latest Parisian creations, developed in the best materials at a price based on efficiency and not on sentiment.

Second: By a master stroke of merchandising to place this store in the front rank as an authority for and an originator of millinery fashions. Chapeaux "La Marquise" will set a new standard of millinery values.

We invite every woman of taste who intends to spend $12 to $20 for her smartest hat to first become acquainted with Chapeaux "La Marquise," at $8.50.

P. S.—You are urged to visit the exhibit tomorrow, although we will make Chapeaux "La Marquise" a continuous through-the-season attraction. The two hats illustrated are typical of the style and the value represented in Chapeaux "La Marquise."

PARADED AS A LORD TO WIN GIRL ON SHIP

"Norton" Admits Masquerading and Miss Campbell Does Not Marry Him.

LIVES IN LUXURY AT HOTEL

$45 Taxi Bill Charged to Impostor in Two Days—Girl's Relatives Are Reticent.

A marriage that was to have been the culmination of an international romance did not take place yesterday as scheduled. As a sequel to a courtship aboard the steamship St. Paul on her last voyage—the liner arrived here last Thursday—"Lord W. A. Morton" was to have wedded Miss Eleanor Campbell, daughter of Mrs. Mary H. Campbell, of 20 West Eighty-second Street.

There were various reasons why the marriage did not take place as planned. One was that Mrs. Campbell and her daughter discovered that Ernest William Andrews was only "spoofing," as one says in England, when he said on the ship that he was a nobleman and passed over a card which apparently bore out his statement.

No authoritative information could be had last night as to whether the marriage would take place. Mr. Andrews—for he says that is his real name—seemed optimistic. Neither Mrs. Campbell nor Miss Campbell could be seen. Miss Campbell's brother, Robert C. Campbell, when interviewed over the telephone would not commit himself.

Mr. Andrews appeared at the Vanderbilt last Saturday, although he arrived here on the St. Paul, which had docked two days before. He was more than six feet tall, dark, and handsome. He appeared to be about 25 years old. His stooping shoulders gave him an air of distinction, and he said he wanted something good in the way of accommodation. He got a $20 suite.

Introduced on Liner.

Also coming over on the St. Paul were Mrs. Campbell and her pretty daughter, who is only 19. Andrews immediately fell in love with Miss Campbell. On a ship of the size of the St. Paul, passengers are thrown together more than on the larger liners that were fashionable before the war, and an introduction was arranged. Andrews says he was introduced to the young woman and her mother by Otto T. Bannard, a fellow-passenger, but it is Mrs. Campbell's recollection that the introduction was performed by Clifford N. Carver, Private Secretary of Walter Hines Page, American Ambassador to Great Britain.

So, it seems, when Andrews took occasion to disclose his "incognito," his revelations fell upon credulous ears. He produced a visiting card, bearing the name of "Lord W. A. Norton, 12 Grosvenor Square, London," and he casually mentioned estates in one of the shires and in Scotland.

Andrews's suit won favor. Since their arrival in New York Andrews and Miss Campbell have been about a good deal in the fashionable restaurants and to the theatres, and the young couple tried the supper dancing at the Cascades, on top of the Biltmore. The controller at the Vanderbilt looked over Andrews's account on Monday and his interest was aroused. In two days the visitor had managed to run up a bill of about $165. The controller's interest was stimulated when he noted items for flowers, and a taxicab item for $45 galvanized him into action.

Ralph L. Shainwald, Jr., an industrial engineer, and an official of the Standard Paint Company, whose office is in the Woolworth Building, said that Andrews's mother was a friend of members of Mrs. Shainwald's family, and that he had met the young man two years ago, when the latter was here before. Mr. Shainwald said that Andrews for the present would be his guest at his home, 667 Madison Avenue.

Tales of His Past.

Andrews, who answered some questions about himself with apparent frankness, said yesterday that he was born in Rangoon, his father being an English merchant settled there. His mother, he said, was Mrs. Lewis Andrews. Asked why his clothes happened to be of German make, he said his mother had spent some time in Germany. He added that she was now in Amsterdam, trying to get released an older son, who was in the British Army and had been interned in Holland. He said he had attended school at Uffingham, England, and New College, Oxford.

"How did you come to tell Miss Campbell that you were Lord Norton?" he was asked.

"I was crazy about her," he replied. "I was just crazy, that is all, and when I said I was a nobleman I don't believe I really knew what I was doing."

Robert C. Campbell said last night that his mother and his sister had no statement to make, and that he himself had none. He would not say yes or no to a question as to whether the marriage simply had been postponed.

ALICE HENRY GOES FREE.

Vice Trust Witness Says Police Have Persecuted Her.

Alice Henry, a witness for District Attorney Perkins in his investigation of the Vice Trust in this city, was discharged last night by Magistrate Frothingham in the Women's Night Court when she was arraigned charged with accosting persons in the street last Friday night. The Magistrate said he discharged her because there seemed a reasonable doubt as to her guilt, but he told Detective Dallas that he had been perfectly justified in making the arrest.

The woman complained to the District Attorney and to Deputy Police Commissioner Lord that she was being persecuted by the police, and that Dallas had arrested her when she was waiting on a street corner for two detectives with whom she had an appointment to point out to them a man who had beaten and robbed her in the street.

GOETHALS SPEAKS AT FAIR.

Guest of Honor Says Spirit of Loyalty Built the Canal.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 7.—Major Gen. George Goethals was honored today by the Panama-Pacific Exposition. In the Court of the Universe, in the presence of city, State, and Federal officials and representatives of the exposition, General Goethals addressed an immense crowd, reviewing the history of the canal. Afterward he made a short talk to enlisted men of the United States Army and Navy, who had escorted him to the grounds.

"It was not the army that built the canal," he told them, "nor was it the civilians—it was the loyalty and spirit of the cause."

An evergreen, to be known as the "Goethals tree," was planted, the guest of honor turning the first spadeful of dirt.

CALLS TAFT A SHIFTER.

Was for Filipino Independence When in Islands, Says Harrison.

MANILA, Wednesday, Sept. 8.—Francis Burton Harrison, Governor General of the Philippines, said today in reply to strictures on the Administration of the Philippines, voiced by ex-President William H. Taft in an address at San Francisco on Labor Day, that he attached no importance to Mr. Taft's statements.

Governor Harrison declared that when Mr. Taft was in the Philippines he was the most prominent among those advocating Filipino independence, but was "the leader of the retentionists" when in America.

MAGGIE AND MAGGIE TO SHAKE FOR VOTES

Miss Foley of Boston and Miss Hinchey of New York to Put Irish Vim Into Campaign.

BAY STATE WILL AID JERSEY

Two Luncheons Today with Little Doc Dock to Look After Digestion of the Workers.

Miss Margaret Hinchey of New York and Miss Margaret Foley of Massachusetts, who are classed among suffragists as stalwart working women and and among the best campaigners of their States, will shake hands each from her automobile in front of the Woman Suffrage Party Headquarters, 48 East Thirty-fourth Street, at 11:30 this morning and a big interstate suffrage movement will be begun.

A delegation of Massachusetts women is coming on to help the New Jersey women with their campaign. The New Jersey women will receive them in New York and the National Woman Suffrage Association and the party will entertain them while they are here and give them a brisk godspeed. There will be two luncheons for the suffrage leaders, a big one at the Hotel McAlpin, with Dr. Anna Howard Shaw presiding.

While the workers who are to make open-air speeches will take luncheon at the party headquarters with little Doc Dock, who has campaigned in the trenches, with Maggie Hinchey to look after them.

Miss Foley will speak in Times Square at noon and at 1 P. M. at another meeting in Park Row. There will be a parade of sixteen automobiles with waving banners at 3:30 to escort the New Jersey and Massachusetts women to the Twenty-third Street Ferry.

Mrs. Robert Gould Shaw of Boston will bring the Massachusetts women to New York in her automobile. They are Mrs. Susan Fitzgerald, Miss Foley, and Miss Frances Megoun, formerly of New Jersey, but now working in Massachusetts.

All the chief suffrage leaders with headquarters in New York, and the Executive Board of the National will be among the National's guests at the McAlpin. There will be Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, head of the International Association and Empire State Campaign Committee; Mrs. Raymond Brown, State President; Mary Garrett Hay, head of the Woman Suffrage Party; Mrs. James Lees Laidlaw, Chairman of Manhattan for the party; Miss Katherine Devereux Blake, Commissioner Katharine Bement Davis, Mrs. Walter McNab Miller of Missouri, Dr. Aletta Jacobs, who accompanied Mrs. Catt in her famous suffrage trip around the world; Miss Lucy E. Anthony, Mrs. J. Norman de R. Whitehouse, Mrs. Winston Churchill, Mrs. Howard Mansfield, Mrs. Charles Tiffany, Miss Caroline Ruutz Rees, Mrs. H. O. Havemeyer, Mrs. Mina Van Winkle, and Mrs. Lillian F. Feickert of New Jersey; Mrs. Antoinette Funk, Mrs. George Bass, Chicago; Mrs. Frank Hiram Snell of Washington, now working for the National in New Jersey; Mrs. Henry Villard, Mrs. Everett Colby. Mme. Rosika Schimmer and Miss Crystal McMillan, who are about due to arrive in New York by steamer, it is hoped will be present.

POLICEMEN FOR SUFFRAGE.

Lieutenants' Benevolent Association Passes Formal Indorsement.

It was announced at the suffrage campaign headquarters yesterday that the Lieutenants' Benevolent Association of the Police Department had offered the women its "unqualified sympathy and support in their struggle for their political rights and recommend to the citizens of the State that the elective franchise be extended to the women of New York."

This was in a resolution passed at a meeting of the association at Terrace Garden Saturday night, when Mrs. Mary Ware Dennett made a suffrage speech to the members. Lieutenant Enright, in introducing the speaker, said the association had been converted by Dr. Anna Howard Shaw four years ago, and its members had been ardent suffragists ever since. The first clause of the long suffrage resolution which was adopted read:

"The men of America believe in according to their mothers, wives, sisters, and daughters every right which they claim for themselves, and one more—the right to be protected."

SAYS SON WAS SECRETED.

Late J. C. C. Mayo Involved by Mrs. Gay in Habeas Corpus Suit.

Special to The New York Times.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, Sept. 7.—On the witness stand in the habeas corpus proceedings against Dr. S. J. D. Meade, a prominent Cincinnati physician, and his mother-in-law, Mrs. Laura Mullins, in Judge F. L. Hoffman's court today, Mrs. Estelle Cooper Gay, a widow, of New York, charged that Dr. Meade had secreted her two-year-old son, the child of the late Kentucky millionaire and politician, John C. C. Mayo. She said Dr. Meade received a fee of $4,000 from Mayo for attending her when the child was born.

Into her recital Mrs. Gay brought the names of many prominent men, including a United States Senator, whose friendship she says he lost through work of agents for the Mayo estate. Mrs. Gay seemed prepared to remove the lid from a secret chapter of Kentucky politics and of the Baltimore convention that nominated Woodrow Wilson, because of her knowledge of Mayo's plan to be elected a Kentucky Senator.

Mrs. Gay asserted that Dr. Meade seized her trunk; that letters vital to her case were stolen; that Dr. Meade had threatened her life and to place her in an asylum; that upon promise to restore her baby to her he induced her to write letters declaring the child had died; had induced her to tell several persons there never had been a child; had forced her to sign a document pledging him 5 per cent. of any sum she might recover from the Mayo estate, and had forced her to write a long document exposing "everything she knew" about men of national prominence who were Mayo's friends.

Judge Hoffman continued the case for two weeks to give Mrs. Gay's counsel time to gather testimony in other States.

Asphalt Company Charges Prince Line Violated Contract.

TRENTON, N. J., Sept. 7.—Alleging breach of contract, the United States Asphalt Refining Company of Pierre, S. D., and New York City filed two libel suits here today for $550,000 each against the Prince Line, Limited, owner of the steamship Georgian Prince.

The asphalt company alleges a contract was entered into for five years in 1912 between it and the steamship company through Houlder, Weir & Boyd of 24 State Street, New York, for the transportation of crude oil from Mexico and Europe. The asphalt company was to pay over £1,000 monthly. The steamship returned the latter part of last month from Mexico and discharged a cargo at Carteret, the asphalt company alleges.

Arrangements had been made by the asphalt company to sublet the contract, but the master of the ship refused to take orders to go to Spain, and a violation of the contract was considered to have been committed by such refusal. The company alleges it has paid its installments up to Sept. 17 and has been deprived of the steamship's use. It also alleges the loss of an immense sum of money by reason thereof.

PROMISE TO WED GOT HER $3,000, SHE SAYS

English Woman of 35 Tells in Suit of 60-Year-Old Doctor's Blandishments.

CALLED HER BEAUTIFUL

Found Her Tendencies Aristocratic, She Avers, Till Her Bonds Were in His Hands.

Miss Amy Perkins, an English spinster, sued Robert E. Clarke in the Supreme Court yesterday for $3,000, which she said he induced her to give him by promising to marry her, by pretending that they were soul mates, by making a will in her favor, and by other arts, cajoleries, and blandishments.

Miss Perkins, according to her attorney, James F. Dillon, is about 35 years old. She came to America to study music in the Boston Conservatory, and later made her residence at 49 East Thirtieth Street in this city, where she still lives. She receives remittances from England and occupies much of her time with music and the study of spiritualism.

Mr. Clarke is said to live in Poughkeepsie, where he was served with the papers in the case on Friday last. He is about 60 years old. A year ago last July he lived in the same house with Miss Perkins. The latter was ill and weak and Mr. Clarke, who is said to be a physician, attended her. He became very friendly with his patient and used to visit her, she said, when medical treatment was not really needed. Miss Perkins became fond of him, believed all he told her, she says, and was especially credulous when he said he was single, that he was not entangled with any woman, and that he was a very expert physician, having studied medicine in France, Germany, and England. Miss Perkins said that he also told her he was a specialist in curing ills of the human body, directing and dissecting the preconceived thoughts of others, controlling their minds, and applying an infallible remedy to each sickness or disease, thereby effecting a sure and permanent cure.

Sometimes, she says, he spoke of his great wealth. He told her he had an estate at Poughkeepsie overlooking the famous Morgan estate and that it was "a haven of rest, balmy air, the fragrance of trees, plants, and flowers, and beautiful lawns and shrubberies." Miss Perkins also said that the defendant assured her that she was a "sweetly beautiful woman, an authoress with a great future if properly directed, and an intelligent woman of aristocratic tendencies." He also assured her, she said, that he and she were of the same character, each being endowed with the power of communicating with the spirit world, and that they could fathom the unsolved mysteries of life, which was a power denied to all others.

Miss Perkins and the defendant talked of the union of souls and other kindred subjects. Once, she said, he told her that "the dome of the blue sky and the planet walls were not a limitation to their terrestrial bliss." He also told her, she said, that if she would go to Pasadena, Cal., he would follow and marry her and there they would buy a home and settle down; also that he would give her a sealskin coat, diamonds, an automobile, a retinue of servants, and as many flowers as she wanted. To explain how he would get these things he said that his income was only limited by the kind of society he was in. He could earn all his needs demanded.

The plaintiff said that being weak she believed all these statements and gave to the defendant $3,000 worth of United States Rubber bonds which he promised to use in buying a home in California. Miss Perkins started for Pasadena, arriving there on Dec. 2, but the defendant did not meet her, and, she has since learned, she said, that all of his statements about himself were untrue. So she wants him to pay her back the value of the bonds. Several banks and trust companies through whose hands the bonds are alleged to have passed are made co-defendants in the suit.

Stricken Blind After Movies.

NEWARK, N. J., Sept. 7.—After attending a moving picture entertainment tonight Charles McDonald, 33 years old, was stricken with blindness. He was taken to the City Hospital, but refused to remain there. A relative refused to take him in with his disability, and McDonald was held at a police station.

Hampton Furniture

Fall and Winter Home Comforts

MANY have chosen a house or apartment for the new home this Fall and Winter. Others again are preparing their old homes for the long, dark and cold mornings and evenings that are fast approaching.

This, then, is the time for you to consider the use of Gas—not only for cooking purposes—but for

Lighting and Heating

Remarkable improvements have been made recently not only in Gas Fixtures but in Mantles and Burners. Eye-strain is unknown where Gas is used for lighting in the Home, Office, Store or Factory. Gas is economical.

We would call your attention to our new lines of Gas Heaters and Radiators. Now is the time to install them. A Gas Water Heater gives you hot water when you want it—any hour of the day or night. This valuable appliance we sell on very easy terms.

Gas Irons use very little gas—the Irons for Domestic use about 2 cents worth a day—but they save the user hundreds of steps.

Gas Ranges we rent for $2.50 a year and upwards. We have appliances for Club, Hotel and Restaurant use, which are a trifle "shop-worn," but which may be purchased below cost figures.

TAKE HOSTILE VIEW OF RESERVE SYSTEM

New Law Needs Amendment, Trust Companies Tell National Banking Convention.

NOT YET WILLING TO JOIN

Liquid Assets for Savings Banks Advocated—Dr. Hill Deplores Attacks on Railroads.

SEATTLE, Sept. 7.—The various sections of the American Bankers' Association held meetings today, and tomorrow morning the big convention will be called to order. A new section was formed today for national banks, with one-third of the membership of the parent organization enrolled.

The section elected these officers: President, Fred W. Hyde, Jamestown, N. Y.; Vice President, J. S. Calfes, St. Louis; Executive Committee, J. E. Cox, High Point, N. C.; Oliver J. Sands, Richmond, Va.; W. H. Bucholz, Omaha; H. E. Otte, Chicago; J. E. Spangle, Seattle; W. M. Van Dusen, New York.

President William A. Law of the association, addressing the Washington State Bankers' convention today, said that before the nation could become prepared for successful defense, its methods of Governmental expenditure must be reformed in order that they might come abreast of the prevailing standards of business efficiency.

The workings of the Federal Reserve act and the possibility of its amendment were discussed in the various section meetings today. The outstanding feature of the program in the trust company division was a discussion of the right of Congress to confer trust powers upon national banks.

In the Clearing House section an address on the "Settlement of Clearing House Balances" by O. Howard Wolfe of Philadelphia gave direction to the deliberations of that body. The need for great liquidity of savings bank investments was one of the more important topics before the savings bank division, after a symposium on "The Railroads and the People" led by William Sproule, President of the Southern Pacific Railroad.

Henry M. Campbell of Detroit, the chief speaker before the trust company section, said that Congress did not have the authority to confer trust company powers on national banks, as provided in the Federal Reserve act.

Mr. Campbell is one of the counsel for the trust companies which have undertaken a joint action contesting the constitutionality of Section 11 (k) of the act giving the board power to grant to national banks, when not in contravention of State laws, the right to act as trustees, executor, administrator, and registrar of stocks and bonds.

The paragraph was added to the act at the eleventh hour, Mr. Campbell said, and gave the Reserve Board power over many domestic affairsw holly foreign to national banking business, and which before were regulated by local law.

Mr. Campbell said, conceding that Congress did have the authority to grant trust company rights to national banks, all constitutional law was to the effect that Congress could not delegate this authority to the Reserve Board. Regarding the question of whether a Legislature might relinquish the State's control over trust companies to the Federal Reserve Board, he said:

"It is inconceivable that the people o fany State, if they understand the situation, will consent that officials not selected by the State, or responsible to it, shall define and regulate trusts to the exclusion of State officials."

The Executive Committee of the trust company section in its report to the convention urged "extreme conservatism" on the part of trust companies in the extension of business. It also held the view that the Federal Reserve act must undergo a number of changes before trust companies should consider entering the Federal Reserve system.

The action which the trust companies have taken jointly to test the constitutionality of the portion of the Federal Reserve act in which the granting of trust powers is given to national banks, was referred to in the report. Pending the outcome of this suit, the committee had also taken up with the Federal Reserve Board the question of certain regulations in relation to trust companies. The report had this to say:

"While the Reserve Board has met your committee's suggestion in some particulars, nevertheless it is the judgment of your committee that the Federal officials have not as yet gone far enough in this regard to permit it to advise the trust companies of the country to join the system. On the contrary, it is the judgment of your committee that certain necessary changes in the act itself, as well as in the regulations of the board, ought to be made before the trust companies should consider entering the Federal Reserve system."

In addressing the savings banks section George E. Edwards of New York advocated means whereby the savings banks of the country might abolish the provision that calls for advance notice before a depositor withdraws his money. The solution of the problem, he contended, was in allowing savings banks to invest in liquid securities. Panics, he continued, were not developed from the fear of depositors that they would not ultimately get their money from the banks, but from the fear that they would not be able to get the money just when they wanted it.

"Not only in fairness to depositors, but as a matter of policy," he said, "would it not be far wiser to invest a portion of our funds in short-time loans, of the character generally referred to as liquid, and in time of emergency depend upon such loans rather than upon the required notices of withdrawal. As an aid in arriving at a plan, it seems essential: First—That the Federal Reserve banks should have power to accept the collateral of savings banks for currency. This may be done through member banks authorized to act as intermediaries. Second—That State laws should be enacted permitting investment by savings banks in certain securities acceptable to the Federal Reserve Board."

William E. Knox, Controller of the Bowery Savings Bank of New York and President of the Savings Bank Section, said:

"There are in the United States 10,500,000 savings bank depositors; every one of them is, to some extent, a partner of the railroads, because of the fact that the vast amount of $850,000,000 is invested by the savings banks in railroad bonds.

"Every law that is passed affecting the railroads has an effect upon the investments held by the savings banks as the trustees of the people. If this fact were kept clearly in view by our legislators it would go far toward having a steadying effect upon them, with beneficial results for all parties concerned."

Dr. John Wesley Hill, President of the International Peace Forum of New York, in speaking of the interests of the people and the railroads said:

"Speaking for the people, who suffer most as the result of dangerous agitation and destructive legislation, I say it is high time to call a halt upon the all too prevalent disposition to attack property and capital and paralyze industry by legislative and executive restriction. Give business a chance. It should not be kept upon the witness stand indefinitely. Government by commission is headed toward tyranny. Practically all of the forty-eight States of the Union have commissions in some form or another governing their railroads, while, upon the other hand, the Interstate Commerce Commission of the Federal Government has an almost unlimited power to fix rates.

"Shall this warfare upon private property and private ownership continue unimpeded? To an outsider, viewing the situation from the standpoint of justice rather than prejudice, it would seem that unless the railroads are given the opportunity of self-direction and efficiency under law, there can be but one outcome—Government ownership of railroads and other business. If the Government will not permit the industries to make fair profits the only alternative is for the Government to take them over and operate them.

"This would be a step in the direction of State Socialism; it would inevitably be followed by State ownership of the land, and, with the fundamental instrumentalities of production and transportation in the hands of the Government, the servitude of the people would be complete; over and against this program the people demand progress, improvement and orderly development by evolution; or, if you please, reform, the genius of both being the same and standing in striking contrast with revolution.

"Surely there has been enough agitation. A little never hurts; too much results in fanaticism, demoralization, and confusion."

MRS. ARMOUR FOUGHT THUG.

Packer's Wife Describes Struggle with Masked Burglar.

CHICAGO, Sept. 7.—Mrs. J. Ogden Armour, wife of the packer, today related the story of her experience last night with two masked and armed thugs, who robbed the Armour home at 3,724 Michigan Avenue of jewelry valued at $3,400. Mrs. Armour had retired, and not more than a half hour had passed when a knock was heard at her door. She called the name of her maid. The man answered in a falsetto voice. Fearing something wrong she threw open the door and stood face to face with a masked robber. His companion, in the meantime, had overpowered three maids.

"I tried to shut the door," Mrs. Armour said today, "but the man thrust his foot into the opening and through this aperture pressed a revolver into my face. I seized the barrel of the weapon and pushed it up over my head. Then I tried to push the door shut. But he hurled himself against the door, and as it flew open raised a 'billy,' bringing it down on my head.

"I called for help, but the three servants were confronted with a revolver held by the second robber and were forced into the room with me. One of the robbers asked me where I had been, and I replied to my Lake Forest home. 'Did you bring all your diamonds?' he asked. I replied that I left most of my jewels up there.

"'I'll knock your teeth down your throat if you don't tell where the stuff is,' he said."

While Mrs. Armour and her maids were held in a corner under threats of death one of the robbers swept the dresser of jewels. Then all rooms were searched. Completing their task the men ran downstairs and escaped through a rear door. Although provided with an excellent description of the robbers no arrests have been made.

WILL PUSH THE MOHR CASE.

Special Arrangements Made to Hasten Trial of the Accused.

PROVIDENCE, Sept. 7.—All the evidence which the State has against the three negroes who are charged with the murder of Dr. C. Franklin Mohr and against Mrs. Mohr, who is accused of having plotted her husband's death, will be presented to the Grand Jury when that body convenes on Sept. 20, it was announced tonight. The case has been placed first in the docket, and if indictments are obtained, the case will go to an immediate trial.

Special arrangements by the Attorney General's office with the court were necessary to prevent the case from going over until the December term of the Grand Jury, as would have happened in the ordinary course of procedure.

When Mrs. Mohr and the negroes appear before Judge Hamill of the Bristol District Court, on Sept. 16, a postponement of two weeks will be asked by the Attorney General in order that the State's evidence may not be disclosed until it is laid before the Grand Jury.

Chief of Police Robbins of Barrington had a long conference this afternoon with the Attorney General, the nature of which was not disclosed. Miss Emily G. Burger, the doctor's secretary, who was shot down with him in their automobile last Tuesday night, has not yet been told of his death. She is still in a serious condition at the Rhode Island Hospital.

GODOWSKY FINDS HIMSELF BY MAIL

In Letter to His Wife He Says He Only Just Heard That He Was Lost.

PROMISES TO RETURN SOON

Explains Departure by Saying He Was Interrupted in His Work While at Home.

The sudden disappearance of Leopold Godowsky, the Polish pianist, for whom the police of the United States have been searching for five days, was solved last night when Mme. Godowsky received a letter at their home in Avon, N. J., from the musician, who disappeared a week ago today, saying he was in hiding and doing musical work he couldn't do at home because there were too many interruptions.

The letter, which was written on Monday night, was mailed late the same night at Hackensack and was delivered at the Godowsky home at 8:30 o'clock last night. The pianist refused to reveal his hiding place, chided his family for asking the police to find him, and said he would be home when he finished his work.

He wrote that Monday was the first day he had been out of his room since he started to work last Wednesday night and that when he saw what a furore his self-imposed exile had created, he hastened to assure his wife he was unharmed. The letter follows:

Sorry He Caused Worry.

My Dearest: I just phoned you after having read in the newspapers about my disappearance. I am consternated more than I can explain that I should have given you, the children, and my friends so much trouble and unwarranted worry. It makes me sick to think of the mystery my harmless act has given.

Since Wednesday I have not been out of my room. I was working uninterruptedly on the educational adaptations. Today for the first time I went out, and also for the first time since my absence I read a paper. You can well imagine my surprise and fright when I saw how my innocent obsence was misinterpreted. What I don't understand is the fact that I left a letter addressed to you in your bedroom explaining my sudden departure and my intended absence from home until my work is done. Where is the letter? You evidently did not read it. I simply can't understand it.

It was absolutely impossible for me to do the work which has to be done by Sept. 15 with all the interruptions I have had to suffer at home, with the callers, the thousand and one distractions. I have accomplished a great deal in my voluntary exile, but must as yet remain a few days in hiding to complete the work for the Art Publishing Society. I expect to be finished in a few days. I will phone you before I return. I don't give you my whereabouts, as I must be left alone until all is ready for St. Louis.

With all my best love to you and the children, your devoted husband,

LEOPOLD.

P. S.—Give my best wishes to Whithorne. I appreciate his efforts to locate me.

Family Overjoyed.

Miss Vanita Godowsky said last night that the family had been unable to find the letter to which Godowsky referred.

On Monday night Miss Vanita received a telephone call from a person who said: "This is papa. Don't worry. I am well."

All yesterday while friends told her it was the work of a practical joker with a distorted sense of humor she persisted in her belief that it was her father's voice which had spoken to her.

"We are all so happy to hear that he is well we just can't talk about it," she said last night. "I want to thank all the newspapers and everybody for the work they did in trying to find papa."

Emerson Withorne, a business associate of Godowsky, and other friends will start out in automobiles this morning to find the pianist, whether he wishes to be found or not.

"I do not believe he is in Hackensack," said Mr. Whithorne last night. "He probably motored in to mail the letter. But we will try our best to find where he is without disturbing the quiet he seeks. I have known him intimately for many years and I do not know that he was ever in Hackensack before."

On the night before Godowsky disappeared, Mr. Whithorne was a guest at his Avon home, when the pianist remarked:

"We have had so much company that I have not been able to do my work. I fear I will be accused of not keeping my contract if I do not complete what I have undertaken by Sept. 15."

The work to which the musician referred was a number of adaptations which he had promised to finish for the Art Publishing Society of St. Louis, in which he and Mr. Whithorne are interested.

As soon as he was notified of the receipt of the letter, Fifth Deputy Police Commissioner Scull sent a detective to Avon to read it.

Police Got No Clue.

The pianist succeeded in keeping his whereabouts completely secret until he wrote the letter. Commissioner Scull said last night, half an hour before he heard of the letter:

"The five days' investigation may be summed up by saying we are just where we were when we started to look for Godowsky on Friday morning."

When the pianist left his home last Wednesday morning he carried a suitcase full of music books and at a music store that afternoon purchased more.

Louis G. Saxe, a brother-in-law of Godowsky; William Kempland, another relative, and Mr. Withhorne yesterday confronted a manager of a vaudeville theatre who had been quoted as saying he had a contract with Godowsky, who would apepar in due time. The manager said he had no contract, although he would like to have; did not know Mr. Godowsky, and said that the report came from an ambitious pianist who posed as "Godowsky's favorite pupil," and who had told him that in return for an engagement of one week he would produce Godowsky, willing to appear also. From the atmosphere about the theatre yesterday it is safe to say that the "favorite pupil" will not get his week's engagement.

Mellisch Discovers Another Comet.

CHICAGO, Sept. 7.—John E. Mellisch of the Yerkes Observatory discovered his fourth comet last night. It is in the Constellation of Monoceros, right ascension, 6 hours and 37 minutes declination north, 8 degrees and 50 minutes.

WIFE DEFENDS PETERSON.

Says He Has Nothing to Fear in Cord Murder Inquiry.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMDEN, N. J., Sept. 7.—"My husband has nothing to fear. He is innocent. I am willing to swear to that. He did not kill Samuel Cord, and Prosecutor Kraft and his detectives will have to admit later that he knows nothing about the murder."

Hysterical from worry, Mrs. Rae Peterson, wife of Olaf Peterson of Riverton, N. J., today thus defended her husband, who is held by the Camden County authorities as a material witness in the killing of Cord, a wealthy real estate man of Laurel Springs, N. J., who was Peterson's business associate. Cord's body, with five bullet wounds, was found a week ago today in a hollow along the River Road, in Pensauken Township, N. J., between Camden and Delair.

"I want to say that there is nothing suspicious in my actions since I left Riverton," Mrs. Peterson continues. "I went away from home because I had been ill. I am being cared for by friends, and I have remained away from the Camden Court House on the advice of the people with whom I am now living. It was my impulse, as well as my duty, to rush over to Camden to be near my husband as soon as I heard he had been arrested. My friends persuaded me to remain away. They told me of the notority that would follow and I am yielding to their advice.

"Mr. Peterson had all to lose and absolutely nothing to gain by Mr. Cord's death. They were virtually business partners, although my husband never told me much about his business affairs and I never questioned him.

"My husband told the detectives he was at home playing solitaire the day Mr. Cord was killed. I was in Clayton that day, but I believe he told the truth. He played solitaire every spare minute he had. He used to sit in the kitchen, night after night, playing it, and the detectives should not doubt his statements just because the neighbors said they did not see a light in the house. I am not friendly with one of the families near me, and would not be surprised if they tried to question Mr. Peterson's statements. It is impossible for any one to see a light in the kitchen from the street."

County and city detectives endeavored today to find the automobile believed to have been used to carry the body of Cord to the spot where it was found. To aid in the work, the jitney drivers of this city and Philadelphia were questioned closely. Peterson is still held as a material witness. Prosecutor Kraft has the statements of several automobilists who profess to have seen and talked to a man standing beside an automobile near where the body was found on the night before its discovery.

MAYOR BELL ON TRIAL.

Indianapolis Executive Faces Court on Election Fraud Charge.

INDIANAPOLIS, Sept. 7.—The defense in the trial of Mayor Joseph E. Bell, who was placed on trial before special Judge W. H. Eichhorn in Criminal Court here today, won a victory this afternoon when the court sustained a motion to unseat seven members of the regular jury panel on the ground that they had not been properly and legally chosen.

"I am of the opinion," said Judge Eichhorn in making his ruling, "that if the motion were overruled no hardship would be worked on the defense, but to avoid any question of irregularity the court will sustain the motion." The jury box was then filled from the special venire.

That the part which a local newspaper is alleged to have taken in the investigation of election irregularities will be made an important phase of the case was indicated by the questions asked prospective jurors. It was intimated by the defense that the indictment against Mayor Bell, which also names Thomas Taggart and 126 others, was drawn in the office of the newspaper and under the supervision of its management. Prosecutor Alvah J. Rucker denied these assertions.

CLUE TO JUDGE'S SLAYER.

Providence Police Looking for Suspect Who Threatened Jurist.

PROVIDENCE, Sept. 7.—The police investigation of the murder of Judge Willis S. Knowles, near his Summer home at North Scituate yesterday, has narrowed down today to a search for one suspect. The woods in the vicinity of the Knowles home were watched throughout the night, but the suspect eluded the cordon of officers and citizens, and made his way to this city, where he was seen last night. The police learned later that he had told friends he was going to New York.

According to the police, the man for whom they are searching had made threats against the Judge. It is further alleged that he was near the Knowles home on the night before the murder, and was seen in the vicinity yesterday afternoon.

The body of the murdered man was taken today to his former home at Hockingport, Ohio, by his brother, Horace Knowles, a real estate broker of New York.

BOY KILLED BY PRANK.

Held Up to Air Hose While 80-Pound Pressure Is Turned On.

Special to The New York Times.

SOUTH BETHLEHEM, Penn., Sept. 7.—Joseph Wean, aged 16, died at a local hospital today as the result of a prank played on him by workmen of the Bethlehem Steel Works, during the noon hour.

The employes in the shipping department of the plant had finished their lunch when John Gresh, aged 25 and married, seized a pneumatic air hose, and placing the nozzle into Wean's mouth, opened the air cock. The air, which was under an eighty-pound pressure, caused the boy's body to swell to abnormal proportions. He became unconscious almost immediately. Detectives are looking for Gresh, who has disappeared, and the coroner has impaneled a jury to investigate the case.

"The Allies might cut off the Turks from Europe at once, could they but land in Bulgaria," says Arthur Ruhl, and then he paints a vivid portrait of this homespun country and its gay, Paris-like little neighbor (Rumania) in "The Road to Constantinople" in this week's issue of

BROOKLYN ONE GAME BEHIND PHILLIES, NATIONAL LEAGUE LEADERS --- GIANTS LOSE TO BRAVES

DODGERS MAKE IT THREE STRAIGHT

Douglas Allows Only Three Hits and the Phillies Are Beaten, 7 to 1.

A mournful crowd boarded the 7 o'clock Philadelphia Express at the Pennsylvania Station last night. It was Pat Moran's Quaker City baseball team and for utter dejection it rivaled a stranded theatrical troupe. The fact is all of the certainty regarding the National League pennant has been knocked out of the Phillies. They lost the third straight game to the Dodgers yesterday afternoon at Ebbets Field by a score of 7 to 1. The Brooklyns are now picking out the furnishings for the topmost roost. Only one game separates them from Philadelphia in the league race.

You will notice there is one run for the Phillies. That was in the nature of a consolation prize. It came in the last inning and was scored on a wild pitch that Miller did not bother to go after and Paskert actually walked around from second base. Aside from that one instance the Phillies were easy prey for Phil Douglas. He had a regular ocean splash on that wet ball and it acted so crazy the Quakers thought it ought to be put in an asylum. They might just as well have used toothpicks for bats. The total hits that the Phillies made was three and until the seventh inning a baseball game by telegraph would have been just as effective as far as the Quakers were concerned. Not a hit had been made up to that time.

For three innings the Dodgers did not solve McQuillan. Then just when a Philadelphian was saying that Casey Stengel would be a better ball player if he didn't try to hit so hard Casey produced a hit that went for three bases. A sacrifice fly by Cutshaw brought him to the plate. In the fifth inning after Getz had gone out on an infield tap the Dodgers began to get busy. Smyth, who was pulled out of the bushes near the Fort Wayne club, forced McQuillan into passing him. It was "three and two," and after that Red spoiled all of the good ones and McQuillan couldn't keep away from the bad ones forever. Miller advanced him to third on a hit past Niehoff. Douglas hit to Bancroft and the latter's bad throw let Smyth score, Douglas taking second. O'Mara lined out to right, and when Niehoff juggled Daubert's hit Miller came all the way from second.

Two more runs were added in the next. Cutshaw flied out to centre, and then Niehoff—his name appears all through the Philadelphia tragedy—made a fumble that put Myers on first base. A single to centre by Getz put him on third. He scored on a sacrifice fly by Smyth, Getz going to second on the play. Miller's single past Stock scored Getz.

In the seventh the Quakers lost themselves completely. O'Mara singled. Daubert hit to Stock and O'Mara went to third on the wild heave to catch him at second. Daubert going to second on the error. Stengel's out scored O'Mara and advanced Daubert, who scored on Cutshaw's single past Bancroft. The score:

Cubs Win on Bunched Hits.

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 7.—Singles by Vaughn, Good, Saier, and Zimmerman's double in the sixth inning sent Meadows to the clubhouse in favor of Robinson and gave Chicago a 3 to 1 victory over St. Louis here today. In this inning Fisher and Manager Bresnahan were put out of the game for disputing O'Day's ball and strike decisions. The locals' tally came in the fourth when with the bases full Vaughn passed Butler, forcing in Miller. Score:

Brooklyn Hits Reulbach Hard and Defeats Newark, 6 to 0.

NEWARK, N. J., Sept. 7.—The Brooklyn Federals made it three in a row by taking today's game from Newark by a score of 6 to 0. Joe Finneran, aided by what at times was sensational support, held the home team to three hits. Reulbach was ineffective, and the invaders had little difficulty in batting him. The score:

YANKS BUNT THEIR WAY TO VICTORY

Boston Red Sox Upset by Speed and Hitting of Donovan's Men, Who Win, 8 to 3.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Mass., Sept. 7.—Well, those Yankees did it again. They batted the somewhat celebrated Shore out of the box in the third inning and amazed a crowd of loyal Bostonians by outplaying the Red Sox and running away with the game, 8 to 3.

It was a loosely played affair, but errors did not contribute much to the result. The faster team won.

Mogridge, who pitched for the Yanks, had command of the ball throughout and at no time was there danger of an upset.

In the first inning Shore's vulnerability was shown. With one down, Peckinpaugh, Bauman, and High hit safely, and when Pipp forced Bauman Peck went to third on the play and scored when High got an infield single.

But it was in the third that the game was clinched. After Cook had walked Peck laid down a sacrifice, but Shore's throw to Barry was too late to get Cook and both men were safe. Bauman bunted to Gardner, who threw low to first base, the ball rolling to the stand, and Cook and Peck scored. Hooper recovered the ball and threw toward third base, but there was nobody there and the ball went to the opposite stand and Bauman scored. Pipp walked; High beat out a bunt; Miller kept up the bunting, hitting to Shore, and was safe when Barry muffed Shore's throw, Pipp scoring. Boone beat out a bunt down the first-base line, High scoring. Krueger sacrificed, Shore to Gainer. Mogridge hit to Barry, who threw Miller out at the plate, Boone going to third. Cook was tossed out by Barry, and five runs had been laid away in cold storage, making a total of six.

The Yankees added two more in the sixth, when Cook singled to left centre and Peck sacrificed. Bauman was safe when Janvrin, who had displaced Gardner, fumbled his hit, Cook taking third, and Bauman stole second. Pipp fanned in his effort to clear the bases, but High doubled to left, bringing both men home.

The Red Sox scored twice in the fifth inning, when Janvrin poked a single to left and Barry doubled over third base, Janvrin pulling up at the third corner. Carrigan went out, Boone to Pipp, Janvrin scoring and Barry going to third. Collins singled to centre, scoring Barry. Hooper flied to Miller. Scott singled to left centre, Collins stopping at second, and then Speaker flied to High for the third out.

Boston's other run came in the seventh, and was due to a fumble by Peck and a passed ball, followed by Collins's out, Peck to Pipp. The score:

Mackmen Split with Senators.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 7.—Philadelphia and Washington split even here today, the former winning the first game, 6 to 5, and the visitors the second, 7 to 4. Philadelphia scored the winning run of the opener in the eighth inning, when Strunk tripled, and tallied on Milan's wild throw. In the second game Washington won by knocking Fillingim off the rubber in the sixth inning. After the second inning Rice pitched in fine style for the visitors. Schang was spiked on the thumb in the first game and was forced to leave the game. The scores:

Tigers' Errors Aid in Their Defeat.

CHICAGO, Sept. 7.—Chicago today defeated Detroit, 10 to 8, in one of the most exciting games of the season. In the sixth inning the locals bunched hits and this, coupled with the erratic fielding of Vitt, Stanage, and Bush, clinched the game. The Tigers' infield was off its guard in this inning, Jackson and Schalk each beating out bunts, which should have been easy outs. The Tigers played an uphill battle and in the eighth inning were within striking distance of tying the score. Russell was driven off the mound, after one man had counted and two more were on the paths. Cobb was the first to face Scott, who succeeded the Texan and singled to left, scoring Vitt and Bush. He reached third when Fournier fumbled and scored on Crawford's double. Crawford, however, spoiled the rally when he tried to stretch his hit into a triple, because of the fast fielding of Fournier, Weaver, and Johns. Manager Jennings used seventeen men in the battle in an effort to stop Chicago. The score:

BRINGS BACK YACHT CUP.

Josephine Wins All of Series of Races for Manhasset Trophy.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Ill., Sept. 7.—By winning the race on Lake Michigan off here today, the Eastern Class P yacht Josephine, owned by Addison J. Harmon of Greenwich, Conn., takes back to Long Island Sound the Manhasset challenge cup, won by the Chicago Yacht Club in 1912, and with it the new Ocean-Great Lakes trophy, donated by the Chicago Yacht Club, to promote yacht racing between the Great Lakes and the Atlantic coast.

This was the third straight win for the Indian Harbor Yacht Club's representative, and she has proved conclusively that she is faster than the Chicago Yacht Club's Valiant, sailed by Fred A. Price. The Josephine was sailed by Mr. Hanan, and he had with him as a crew, Butler Whiting, C. D. Mower and John Alden of Boston. They handled their yacht to perfection and won easily by 9 minutes and 3 seconds.

The wind was light southerly and the Josephine got the coveted position at the windward end of the line at the start, the first leg being to windward. The course was a windward and leeward one of sixteen miles in length and Josephine, as she did yesterday, gained on every leg of the course, and on every point of sailing. She increased her lead on the first beat to windward until she had the Chicago yacht by 3 minutes and 48 seconds at the first mark. On the run back before the wind with spinnaker set, she increased this lead to 6 minutes and 36 seconds and had the race cinched, barring flukes or accidents.

Valiant did well on the second windward leg and got a good slant of wind off the shore, and while she nearly held her own she could not gain any and went into the last leg over seven minutes to the bad, it was a hopeless task to catch the flying Josephine, nearly hull down ahead, but her crew stuck to their task and she crossed the finish line 9 minutes and 3 seconds after the Eastern yacht. The whole series was well sailed and was marked by the very best of sportsmanship. The Chicago Yacht Club members are already laying plans to build a new boat for next year, to come down to Long Island Sound to recapture the trophies.

RACE FOR DISTURBER IV.

James A. Pugh's Motor Boat Takes First Run for Championship.

CHICAGO, Sept. 7.—Disturber IV., James A. Pugh's big Chicago motor boat racer, won the first of the series of races for the national championship and the Wirgle Cup in easy style today. Miss Detroit was second. The course was twice around the outer cribs, a distance of thirty and a half miles. Disturber IV., made the first round, or 15 miles, at the rate of 55 miles an hour, but Skipper Pugh, finding that his speedy craft had a great advantage, reduced his speed and the average rate per mile for the entire distance was 49 4-10 miles an hour.

Six motor boats of the ten originally entered for the United States motor boat championship competed. The time of the first run was: Disturber IV., 36:58; Miss Detroit, 42:37; Baby Reliance, 42:37 4-5; Peter Pan, 42:38 3-5.

Disturber IV., had the race so much to itself so far as the first place was concerned that the interest of the motor boat enthusiasts was directed to the contest between the three that followed Pugh's speedy boat. The real race was between Miss Detroit, Baby Reliance, and Peter Pan, and those who followed the struggle between these three said that a closer contest had never taken place on Lake Michigan waters.

The points distributed by the Judges of the race were: Disturber IV., of Chicago, 9; Miss Detroit of Detroit, 8; Baby Reliance of New York, 7; Peter Pan of Toronto, 6; Barnacle of Chicago, 5; Billiken of Detroit, 4.

The second of the series of races will take place tomorrow.

New Fly-Casting Record.

CHICAGO, Sept. 7.—A new world's record for casting was claimed today for F. E. Moffatt of Chicago, who sent a half ounce bait 215 feet in the distance event of the National Amateur Fly-casters' Association here yesterday. The former record was 211 feet.

BRAVES UNLIMBER BATS ON GIANTS

Perritt and Matty Victims of Hard Batting in 7 to 2 Game at Polo Grounds.

The Boston Braves quickly recovered from the double defeat the Giants handed them Monday, and yesterday they hammered Pol Perritt and Matty for thirteen hits, winning easily by the score of 7 to 2. The Giants unlimbered their bats, too, but when they got on bases, there they stayed. Some of them stayed glued to the bags and others danced so far away that they were easily put out.

It doesn't seem to make any difference whether Boston is winning or losing, they have acquired a habit of disagreeing with the arbiters. They snarled at Umpire Byron yesterday so much and so often that Bill was close to distraction, but he did not allow his gentle disposition to break forth in anger. Even Butch Schmidt could not ruffle Byron's feelings. Butch told the umpire that he had one bad ear and that it was on the right side of his head. The right side of Byron's head is in the general direction of the Giants' bench, but the umpire smilingly ignored the insinuation.

Pat Ragan hurled for the Braves and Pat was backed up with flawless support. That Boston infield sadly misses the presence of Johnny Evers, who has fallen from the good graces of President Tener. But yesterday they rallied and played championship ball. The score:

PACKEY AND MIKE READY.

Boxers Will Only Keep Limbered Up for Bout Saturday.

One of the many reasons why Packey McFarland is listed among the greatest boxers in the sport's annals is the unbounded confidence he possesses in himself. It is not the type bordering on egotism which has caused the downfall of more than one noted boxer, but is born of his wonderful ability in the "squared circle" and the knowledge that he is yet to oppose the man who can cope with him.

So firmly does McFarland believe he will master Mike Gibbons in the ten-round bout at the Brighton Beach Motordrome on Saturday night, which will involve almost $150,000, that he will practically discontinue his training after a hard workout this afternoon. According to Packey's trainer, Ike Bernstein, the Chicago boxer is now within a pound of the required 147 pounds and after his "stunts" this afternoon will be within the limit. Tomorrow and Friday he will engage only in limbering-up exercises, and there will be nothing but rest for the Chicagoan on Saturday, the day of the battle

Boxing was McFarland's principal exercise at the Brighton Beach Casino yesterday and in turn he took on for two rounds each Tommy Burke, George Thompson, Dick Peters, and Mel Coogan, and they were warm sessions for the sparring partners. So many persons desired to see McFarland in action that the Casino was too small to accommodate all and many were denied admission.

Over at the Brighton Roller Rink the same conditions prevailed when Mike Gibbons engaged in his afternoon workout. Mike Farrell, Allie Nack, one of the amateur boxers of New York who made good in the championships at the Panama-Pacific Exposition, and Tom Gibbons, Mike's brother, gave the St. Paul phantom all the work he desired, each facing him for three strenuous sessions.

Gibbons now is in the best condition of his career. He has worked himself down to about 148½ pounds, but unlike McFarland he will not rest until the last minute, having booked strenuous preliminary sessions right through to Saturday morning. As evidence of the conscientiousness with which Gibbons has faced the task before him, he skipped the rope yesterday 1,200 times, and when through did not seem the least fatigued.

Warning was issued yesterday by the Marshalls, promoters of the exhibition, that spurious $2 tickets have found their way into the market, and efforts are being made to trace the source of their origin. The promoters believe they have found the counterfeiters, but warn the public not to purchase their tickets from other than official offices.

The $32,000 guaranteed McFarland and Gibbons has been placed in the hands of the stakeholder, Robert Edgren, and more than this sum has been received through the advance ticket sale.

Giants Sign First Baseman.

Joe Rodriguez, first baseman of the Havana Reds, was signed last night by the New York Giants and will report to Manager McGraw next Spring at the training camp at Marlin. Rodriguez is only 20 years old, and has only been playing professional baseball since last December. He is a right-handed batter and thrower, and his batting average for the recent tour of the Havana Reds throughout the country was .400. When McGraw goes to Havana next Winter he will coach his new recruit in the inside points of the game. Joe Massaguer, probably the greatest baseball enthusiast in Cuba, is responsible for "finding" Rodriguez, for he brought him north on the touring trip with the Havana Reds and subsequently under the eyes of the local club.

Athlete Rourke Suspended.

Acting upon information supplied by Registration Committeeman John M. Connolly, the Metropolitan Association of the A. A. U. yesterday suspended F. J. Rourke of the Boston A. A. for competing in the professional games of the Caledonian Club on Monday. Rourke was the New England javelin throwing champion in 1914 and an athlete of some repute in his district. He is the only man of the unidentified amateur athletes in the Scotch games to be disciplined by the A. A. U. The Boston man's card cannot be revoked unless the action is taken by the New England Association. Henry Oltman, who resigned from the New York A. C. a month ago, turned over his card to Chairman Stumpf of the Registration Committee yesterday. The athlete who competed under the name of "Al Copland" has been identified as Bredemus, former all-around champion of the district, now a coach at Horace Mann School.

SOLDIERS POLO VICTORS.

Squadron A Defeats Piping Rock Freebooters, 10 1-2 to 8.

In a close and interesting match Squadron A polo team defeated Piping Rock Freebooters in the opening game of their annual association tournament for the Squadron Cups, at Van Cortlandt Park yesterday. The score was 10½ to 8 goals.

While the cavalrymen won, it was by no means an easy victory. The first half ended overwhelmingly in their favor by 7½ goals to 2¾, but in the second part of the game the Locust Valley players struck their gait and piled up goals with rapidity, and they were going strong when the final bugle blew.

Both sides earned two goals in the opening period, and with one allowed by handicap gave the Freebooters the lead. But this advantage was short-lived, as no sooner had the second chukkar started than Eaton placed his side on even terms with the visitors. Thereafter the Squadron assumed the lead and was never headed. Before the period closed Johnson had scored twice for the soldiers.

From a scrimmage around the Piping Rock goal Boulton was enabled to score the one point in the third period, and this only after nearly seven minutes of the hardest kind of play. Eastman was then forced to make a safety, which took a quarter of a goal off the visitors' score, which made them 2¾ goals instead of 3. Eaton and Smidt both tallied in the fourth chukkar, but the side was penalized a half when Johnson crossed Ripley.

With the beginning of the fifth period the Long Islanders took a decided brace, and Alexander opened the proceedings with a pretty goal from a difficult angle at the lower end of the field. Boulton then distinguished himself for the squadron when he scored almost unassisted. Ripley tallied again for the Freebooters just before the chukkar closed.

Although they frequently had their opponents on the defensive, the squadron team was unable to score during the fifth period. But, for the Freebooters, Alexander once more came into the limelight and tallied twice. Just before time was called Ceballos was forced to make another safety. Both sides worked hard in the closing periods. The Freebooters became more aggressive with each minute of play, and had their direction been better, would have scored more often than they did.

Each side added to its total in the seventh period. But here the Long Islanders lost half a goal, when Eastman crossed Johnson. From then to the end, it was nip and tuck. The squadron team, with a two and one-half goal lead was content to play on the defensive, while the Freebooters tried desperately to score. Time after time they took the ball down to the field almost opposite their opponents' goal, yet through poor direction they were unable to tally.

Today Piping Rock Wanderers will play the Whippany Whips in the second round of the tournament.

Athlete Lippincott Exonerated.

Donald Lippincott, the University of Pennsylvania sprinter, who was suspended by the Metropolitan Association of the A. A. U., following information that he was alleged to be one of the participants in a professional match race at Ilion, N. Y., last month, was reinstated yesterday. J. P. Eaton, the Metropolitan Association delegate at Schenectady, in whose territory the race took place, reported to President Frederick W. Rubien that upon investigation he was certain it was not Lippincott who opposed Hal Heiland, the former Xavier A. A. athlete. He produced half a dozen affidavits from men who knew Lippincott, in which he was exonerated. Eaton will continue his investigation into the identification of Heiland's rival, and the trail now leads to a prominent athlete in a New England college. He expects to land his quarry in a few days. That considerable money was bet on the race, and that one of the men made a getaway in an automobile after it was over, is some of the information turned over to Mr. Rubien by his Commissioner.

Regatta for Newark Next Year.

At the meeting of the New York Rowing Association at the New York Athletic Club last night the entries in the Fall regatta, to be held next Sunday, were opened. Some of the events were not filled, but it was decided to leave the events open until the day of the regatta. A committee of citizens from Newark applied for permission to hold a regatta in connection with the celebration of the two hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the founding of the city. Newark has voted $55,000 to be spent in athletic sports during the week, beginning with the regatta on May 29, 1916.

The races will be held on the Passaic River, and all entry fees will be returned to any crew that starts in the events, and the boats will be transported to and from Newark at the expense of that city. Out-of-town crews that are entered in the annual Decoration Day regatta on the Harlem can stop off at Newark and their shells will be brought to the Harlem during the night, to be ready in the morning for the local regatta.

The permission was granted and a committee from the New York Rowing Association was appointed to act with the Newark committee to arrange for the events.

PUSS IN BOOTS RUNS FAST FIVE FURLONGS

Foxhall P. Keene's Crack Filly Outclasses Her Field in Belmont Park Race.

To the dyed-in-the-wool sportsman—and there are a few of them left—the feature of the racing at Belmont Park yesterday was the appearance of Foxhall P. Keene's crack filly, Pull in Boots. She made her metropolitan début in a five-furlong dash for fillies, and by reason of her performances at Saratoga was made an odds-on favorite. This fleet and graceful daughter of Peter Pan was all that her admirers had claimed for her in appearance, and the paddock was crowded when she was receiving her final toilet touches in preparation for the race at the hands of her trainer, John Murphy. Puss in Boots had a field of seven running against her, to which she was giving from twelve to twenty-one pounds each, for she carried the top weight of 124 pounds, which was five pounds over scale weight.

Puss in Boots played with her field, and the only reason why Malachite, the best of the Belmont fillies, was so close to her at the end of the race was that Garner, who rode the Keene filly, did not shake her up once during the running. Getting away like a flash at the start and threatening to run away from the rest of the field, Garner took a strong hold of the filly and held her in check until, when half the race had been run, Grasp came with a rush from the rear and ranged alongside for an instant. Then Garner leisurely unwound the wraps in his reins, gave her her head, and she shook off Grasp as readily as a duck sheds water. At the last sixteenth pole McTaggart called on Malachite for a run. She responded gamely, and tried her best to overtake the flying Puss in Boots. It was impossible. Well in hand, the Keene filly won the race by a length from Malachite, completely ridden out, with Grasp four or five lengths further back.

The distance had been run in 0:58 3-5, which was only a fraction slower than the record for the distance, made by the great Colin years ago. Puss in Boots appeared fully able to have gone another furlong, which was, after all, what most impressed the crowd, which cheered her splendid performance as if she had just won a big stake race, instead of a $600 purse. The summary:

TRICKY RACING ON CIRCUIT.

Judge Ormonde Disqualified for Frequent Interference.

HARTFORD, Conn., Sept. 7.—After five heats today, replete with thrills in every one, the 2:10 class pace was put over until tomorrow before a winner could be decided in the second day of the Grand Circuit racing at Charter Oak Park. Hal Boy took the first heat in a close finish from Russell Boy, and then Judge Ormonde took the next two, Russell Boy, both times being the contender. In the third heat Hal Boy was distanced, but after a statement to the judges by Drivers McMahon and Murphy, Hal Boy was placed because of unintentional interference upon the part of Murphy with Peter Farren.

The fourth heat was a thriller, Geers sending Russell Boy out for the front, and with Geers in second place, and Judge Ormonde, driven by Valentine, leading, the latter was seen to swerve out and force Russell Boy to one side, just winning by a head. Geers protested, declaring that three times in the heat Valentine had forced him to the outside as he was about to take the lead, and the judges finally distanced Judge Ormonde for foul driving. Russell Boy took the fifth heat in a sharp drive from Peter Farren, and the race went over until tomorrow, only heat winners to start.

The other two events on the card were tame affairs, Volga winning the two-year-old race in straight heats, and Mirthful never being in danger in the 2:10 trot. A short rainstorm preceded the race, but did not materially affect the track.

JOHNSTON NATIONAL LAWN TENNIS CHAMPION--WOMEN'S AND INTERCOLLEGIATE GOLF

JOHNSTON WEARS TENNIS CROWN

Young Californian Beats M. E. McLoughlin in Slashing Four-Set Match.

'COMET' STARTS OFF LIVELY

But ex-Champion Tires Perceptibly as Games Go Against Him at Forest Hills.

CARRY PLAYERS OFF COURT

Exciting Periods in Championship Final When New Champion Is Within Ace of Victory.

William M. Johnston inscribed his name upon the classic national tennis singles championship most impressively yesterday, using a forehand stroke that left no dispute as to his right to the title. The young player, who two seasons ago was hailed as the successor to Maurice E. McLoughlin, made good the prediction by the score of 1—6, 6—0, 7—5, 10—8, while thousands cheered the vanquished McLoughlin and the new holder of the highest honors of the American courts. It was a memorable battle and an inspiring scene at the climax on the field of the West Side Tennis Club, at Forest Hills, L. I., when the two men fighting for a sporting honor, and fighting with all that was in them, almost collapsed at the end and hoisted on the shoulders of their comrades with the cheers of the 7,000 spectators ringing in their ears, were carried from the field.

While the homage paid to Johnston for winning one of the greatest matches of the All Comers' tournament has ever known in its thirty-five years was sincere and true, still on all sides there was regret that McLoughlin, the hero, who overwhelmed Norman E. Brookes and the late Anthony F. Wilding in the great Davis Cup matches last year, should not have the permanent possession of the All Comers' Cup on which his name is twice inscribed.

It was not the same McLoughlin who stood in the court yesterday that overwhelmed the famous Australasians a year ago. Time had taken something from his game and as ever youth must be served; in this instance it fairly leaped to its reward. Except for the first set and the briefest of intervals thereafter Johnston was always the master of his mighty adversary. He knew the game of his opponent and, as in the ancient days when Greek met Greek, it was the dynamic power, resourcefulness, and stroke of Californian against Californian, with no quarter asked for nor given. Two months before the two had played for the Exposition championship at San Francisco, and at that time McLoughlin had carried the match and title after five of the hardest sets which the tournament produced. Then "The Comet" was on his old field of asphalt with the ball bounding high so that he could bring off his overhanders and where such a thing as ground strokes were unknown.

Probably never in all the years of the historic All Comers has a player displayed such phenomenal command of the ball with a forehand stroke. There were many competent judges present yesterday who declared that its equal was not to be found on the courts anywhere, and it is likely that a representative number of players, including R. Norris Williams, 2d, the playing through title holder who lost to it in the semi-final, Karl H. Behr and Harold H. Hackett, would willingly indorse the statement.

It was a stroke that stood the test, for no less than eight times in the fourth set was Johnston within a point of claiming the All Comers as his own when McLoughlin made thrilling stands as of old, and pushed the victory on a little further. When he moved up to the net in the ever-flashing rallies all of the power and certainty of Johnston's forehand came into action. Alert, with the eye of an eagle that saw every move and the flight of the ball as McLoughlin drove it at him with all his might, the younger player whipped the returns into the corners. He was like a cat on his feet, quick and sure, and never a false move. There were times when he nipped the best drives that the Comet sent over, and turned them back for passes. Repeatedly McLoughlin overhanded the ball for what to him seemed a certain ace, so that he relaxed and dropped his racquet to rest, as if the point was finished. Johnston made his recovery, however, and sending the ball back, found McLoughlin off his guard and so scored the point.

The cross volleys into the corners, the spots that had proved so profitable against Williams on the previous day, were the chief bit of manoeuvring that electrified the crowd. As Johnston played it, it was as irresistible as trying to check the march of time. He sent the ball into the left-hand corner of McLoughlin's court like a bolt of chain lightning. In order to play the ball with any success McLoughlin usually danced around it for a forehand shot, which put him wide of the court. Calmly stepping in to meet it, Johnston crossed with ever-increasing pace into the opposite corner. It was run, run, run for McLoughlin if he wanted the ball. He was on the defensive, and it was a position, as in all of his matches, in which he does not scintillate. So relentlessly was the younger player forcing the former champion and veteran that, even when he had glowing opportunities to make the point, McLoughlin put racquet to the ball too soon, and so piled up a total of 42 nets and 38 outs, as compared to 37 nets and 26 outs for his young rival. That was chiefly where the difference stood, for on actual earned points by placement Johnston only had a tally of 53 to 51 for the Comet.

McLoughlin in the first set played up to the net with his old abandon, smothering the returns so easily as to give no hint whatever as to what was to follow. Johnston probably took that first set to steady himself. He had it down to a hair breadth so that he rattled off seven games in a row to win the second set at love and the opening game of the third set. As he vainly tried to check the criss-cross rallies which inevitably trapped him McLoughlin seemed to feel that he was grimly fighting a hopeless fight. Johnston's drives and volleys were slitting the lines; he could not get the ball inside with any regularity, and when he tried to jam on speed he did not come anywhere near the court. There was not the same bite and the devastating pace to McLoughlin's service either. Johnston always handled the ball easily, so that only three service aces went down to the credit of "The Comet."

Leading at 5—4 on games in the fourth set, Johnston was three times within a stroke of the match, only to have the indomitable courage of McLoughlin flash to the fore as he smashed Johnston out of position and carried the games to 5—all. Leading at 7—6 on games, the same thing was repeated, while the crowd applauded as McLoughlin turned loose the whirlwind power of his volleys and Johnston worked miracles in the way of recoveries. It was repeated with variations until under the strain McLoughlin gave way. He had bellows to mend and failed to control his drives and short shots with anything like the certainty of Johnston, who made a sensational brace at 8—all. It was the spurt that saved the younger player as he forced the volleys to win the American title with a slashing drive straight down McLoughlin's forehand, the ball paralleling the line.

The final of the national doubles championship tournament will be contested this afternoon at the West Side Tennis Club at Forest Hills. McLoughlin and Thomas C. Bundy opposing Johnston and Clarence J. Griffin, another Californian. McLoughlin and Bundy will defend the championship they hold. Johnston and Griffin hold the Pacific Coast title, and earned the right to oppose the champions by triumphing in the sectional elimination trials, which were contested on several courts during this season.

Following the deciding of the doubles championship, the final round in the mixed doubles competition will take place.

On Friday the return matches between selected teams representing the East and West will start. The series will be concluded on Saturday.

JOHNSTON EARNED VICTORY.

New Tennis Champion Defeats Best Players Before Gaining Title.

Youth was served again at the West Side Tennis Club courts, at Forest Hills, L. I., when William M. Johnston, the twenty-year-old California star, won the national tennis crown, defeating in the final round Maurice E. McLoughlin in a nerve-racking, back-breaking four-set match. Johnston's victory keeps the championship bowl in competition for at least another year. Had McLoughlin carried off the honors he would have been entitled to permanent possession of the trophy, as he already had two victories to his credit, and three are required to win the cup outright.

In many quarters the result was considered in the nature of a surprise or upset, whereas a study of the performances of the two finalists during the tournament reveals the fact that the young Pacific Coast star came through a series of matches before reaching the final round that made him the outstanding figure of this tournament. With racquet wizardry and superb court judgment the youngster, who is now hailed as the successor of the "Great Mac," defeated in succession Karl H. Behr, R. Norris Williams and Maurice E. McLoughlin, ranked first, second and third, respectively, in the official rating list, which is an indication of his playing ability and an evidence that the title changed hands in a legitimate manner, with no fluke or series of lucky shots to mar or belittle the victory.

The match, however, was not a perfectly played one, as the two Westerners were good and bad in turns, although the former predominated through the four sets. Both showed flashes of brilliant play, while the pace and strain were unusually severe, even for a challenge round match.

The desperate and determined efforts of McLoughlin to stem the tide of defeat in the fourth set brought forth alternate groans and applause, but the Comet had found his master, and every attempt to change the result was met by strategy and the compelling force of attack from the latest tennis luminary to have his name enrolled in the list of national champions.

Once the winning stroke had been made, however, and Johnston had leaped over the net in the wake of his flying ball, there was an outburst of real enthusiasm that left no doubt as to the genuineness of the acknowledgement of the victory of the young champion and recognition of his successful effort in pursuit of championship.

There was no hint of the impending defeat of the champion of 1912 and 1913 when Johnston and McLoughlin started play shortly after 3 o'clock. The Californian was at his best and with wonderful control of the ball made his younger opponent look like a novice racing through the set before Johnston could shake off his nervousness. Once the latter got going, however, the whole complexion of the match was changed. Little by little Johnston solved the tactics and strokes of the old master, and increasing his speed and control beat McLoughlin in almost every department of play.

The stroke analysis of the match does not show the skill and cleverness with which Johnston worked out his victory. Considering the match as a whole, he proved his better generalship and stroke ability by forcing McLoughlin to play mid-court most of the time. In the first set it was quickly revealed to Johnston that he had absolutely no chance when McLoughlin swung his racquet close to the net. As a result the youthful San Franciscan forced McLoughlin to the base line with deep passing strokes or coaxed him to the service lines with short, low, tantalizing strokes, which McLoughlin, in his eagerness to turn, drove more frequently into the net or out of court than to uncovered spots in the winner's territory.

Not a single point was won or lost without the contestants making the most terrific efforts, and the constant racing about the court in the close and humid atmosphere soon had both dripping. McLoughlin show the physical strain as early as the second set, which he lost at love, thus establishing what is said to be a record in his tennis career. McLoughlin was wild in stroking and uncertain in direction, and before Johnston's fast-steadying game dropped six games in a row in a manner that made him appear as helpless as his opponent had in the first set.

The famous conquerer of Brookes and Wilding appeared to realize that the crucial moment in his remarkable court career had arrived with the opening of the third set. With care and skill he served and stroked the balls at Johnston, only to have them come back at lightning speed or with decisive spin and length.

The rallies were long and terrific, but in the long run it was Johnston who won the deciding points, and McLoughlin was tired and doubtful when he went to the clubhouse for the seven-minute rest following the third set.

The intermission did not appear to help him very much, and when the players took the court again Mac was slow in covering ground and in stroking the ball. He frequently dropped into a linesman's chair between games, and as the set progressed to and beyond deuce, slowed up to such an extent that it was perceptible to the thousands in the stand. He was game to the finish, however, and brought the last iota of experince and racquet technique to his aid in holding Johnston in check. How well this served him as long as his strength remained is shown by the fact that Johnston was within a point of the championship in the tenth game, only to have McLoughlin win it and carry him through another grueling eight games before one of the younger player's returns, hitting and hanging on the net band a moment before falling dead into McLoughlin's court, wrested the last chance of the latter for a further opportunity to continue the almost hopeless struggle.

In the opening set the match had all the appearance of play between master and pupil. McLoughlin was so superior to Johnston that the latter's defense appeared absolutely pitiful. He puzzled his younger opponent with the varety and severity of his service, and his return shots swept from side to side of the court like the flickering rays of the searchlight. He had perfect command of the ball either in the back court or at the net, and frequently he shot the white spheres by Johnston so fast that the latter made no attempt to reach for them with his racquet.

Johnston appeared cold and nervous at the start and did not put up even a mediocre defense until the fifth game, when he broke through McLoughlin's service. The latter immediately went back to his side-line driving and sharp cross-courting returns, and the result of the set was never in doubt. The point score and stroke analysis:

								Pts.	G.
Johnston	0	0	2	1	4	2	2	11	1
McLoughlin	4	4	4	4	2	4	4	26	6

Johnston—No aces, 3 places, 5 nets, 3 outs, 1 double fault.

McLoughlin—Two aces, 15 places, 4 nets, 3 outs, 1 double fault.

There was a complete reversal in the playing form of the two Californians in the second set which Johnston won at 6—0. The latter steadied his game and brought off his strokes like a veteran, playing a clever assortment of drives and chops which were both perfectly timed and placed. He rushed to the net at every opportunity and by his continual blocking off of McLoughlin's returns forced the latter back to his base lines and into a streak of wildness during which he netted and outed the ball like a novice. The point score and stroke analysis:

SECOND SET.

							Pts.	G.
Johnston	5	5	4	4	4	4	26	6
McLoughlin	3	3	2	1	0	1	10	0

Johnston—One ace, 8 places, 2 nets, 2 outs, 1 double fault.

McLoughlin—One ace, 4 places, 7 nets, 9 outs, 1 double fault.

The third set, which furnished the most sensational tennis of the match, was won by Johnston, 7 games to 5, but only after the hardest kind of a court struggle. From the very start it was a battle for the net, in which the Californian type of tennis was constantly used. Each player won on his service until Johnston broke through the Comet's in the sixth and went into the lead, which at one time stood 5 games to 2. Johnston, using the same tactics by which he defeated Williams yesterday, played the majority of his returns to McLoughlin's back hand. His favorite stroke was a sharp ground chop from midcourt, which brought the former champion close to the net to retrieve. The latter's efforts to reach and raise this low bounding ball resulted in many outs and nets by the Davis Cup player. The latter steadied and, going directly to the net, slashed and chopped Johnston's returns until he brought the score up to five all. During this period the rallies were both long and exciting and kept the 8,000 spectators cheering and applauding.

Johnston lifted his game still another notch higher when McLoughlin drew even with him and, playing like a wizard from all portions of the court, ran away with the next two games and set by the use of a clever mixture of strokes which badly confused McLoughlin. The point score and stroke analysis follow:

THIRD SET.

												Pts.	G.
Johnston	4	1	4	2	4	4	4	1	1	1	4	4—34	7
McLoughlin	2	4	1	4	1	2	1	4	4	4	0	0—27	5

Johnston—Two aces, 11 places, 10 nets, 3 outs, 2 double faults.

McLoughlin—No aces, 12 places, 12 nets, 9 outs, no double faults.

Johnston won the fourth and deciding set at 10—8, due partly to his court generalship and partly to greater endurance. Driving McLoughlin into mid court or base line, he rushed to the net toward the end of each long rally and brought off sharp cross-court and forehand strokes for frequent points. McLoughlin eased the severity of his service, but slowness of foot nullified this advantage. The continued rain of low strokes to the service line, made it difficult for him to handle returns, and he netted and outed frequently. Occasionally he brought off long side line passing shots or gained a moment's supremacy at the net, but he only prolonged the struggle by these temporary advantages and was exhausted when Johnston scored the winning point. The point score and stroke analysis of the fourth set:

		Pts.	G.
Johnston—	4 2 4 4 3 2 4 4 4 5 4 5 4 3 1 6 6 4	69	10
McLoughlin—	1 4 1 6 5 4 1 0 2 7 6 3 1 5 4 4 4 2	60	8

Johnston—One ace, 31 places, 20 nets, 18 outs, 2 double faults.

McLoughlin—No aces, 20 places, 19 nets, 17 outs, 1 double fault.

Rumson Golf Starts Tomorrow.

Special to The New York Times.

RUMSON, N. J., Sept. 7.—Much interest is being taken in the annual invitation golf tournament of the Rumson Country Club, which will be held on the club links Thursday, Friday, and Saturday of this week. Many of the golf stars of this section will compete. The qualifying rounds will be played on Thursday and the subsequent rounds on Friday and Saturday, with a special eighteen-hole handicap match on the last day.

FAVORITES WIN IN WOMEN'S GOLF

Few Upsets in Championship's First Match Round on Onwentsia Links.

Special to The New York Times.

LAKE FOREST, Ill., Sept. 7.—With the trials of medal play behind them the women who qualified in the national championship tournament on the links of the Onwentsia Club fought it out in the first match round with increased vigor today. The scoring generally was better, most of the favorites playing along at a pace that would have carried them around under 90 had the bye holes been played. This was particularly the case with regard to Miss Lillian B. Hyde of South Shore, present Metropolitan title holder, who practically went out in 41 in her match with Mrs. A. Liveright, the Philmont golfer.

Miss Hyde did not get credit for the 41, however, as she lost the hole when her ball got into an unplayable lie in a bunker going to the first hole, but even counting two penalty strokes, the Long Island player reached the turn in 43. With her wooden clubs Miss Hyde gets such fine length that her "seconds" are comparatively easy for her. Mrs. Liveright, not having the tournament experience of her opponent, proved an easy victim.

From an Eastern standpoint the day ended satisfactorily, though the defeat of Miss Marion Hollins of Westbrooke marked the removal of one New York favorite. Miss Hollins's defeat was sustained at the hands of Mrs. Ronald H. Barlow of the Merion Club, who holds the Philadelphia title. Mrs. Barlow had to play her best, as Miss Hollins forced her to the home green. It is not often that a golfer can lay a mashie shot stone dead when a great deal depends on the stroke, but Mrs. Barlow was equal to the occasion going to the home hole.

The Philadelphia woman stood dormie, but her second shot left her but a few yards off the green, whereas Miss Hollins got home nicely with a drive and a mashie, the ball coming to rest hole high about twenty feet to the left of the pin. It looked as if Mrs. Barlow might not get her 4, but she straightway set at rest all doubts by chipping stone dead. In order to keep the match alive Miss Hollins then would have had to sink her long putt for a 3. She made a brave try, but the ball ran over the lip of the cup. That left Mrs. Barlow a winner by 1 up. The last named made the round in 90, to 91 for the Westbrooke player. The card follows:

Mrs. Barlow, out	7	4	6	5	5	4	5	5	5—46
Miss Hollins, out	5	4	8	6	5	5	4	4	6—47
Mrs. Barlow, in	5	5	6	5	5	6	3	5	4	44	90
Miss Hollins, in	7	5	6	4	5	4	3	6	4	44	91

Miss Elaine Rosenthal, of Ravisloc, the Western champion, gratified her admirers by coming on her game at the expense of Miss E. Chatfield, a player from Sycamore, Ill. By the time the turn had been reached, Miss Rosenthal stood so far up that the match was as good as won, and it ended a little later on the twelfth green.

Mrs. Caleb F. Fox came in for many congratulations when she won by a 4 and 3 margin over Mrs. Mason Phelps of the Chicago Golf Club. Mrs. Fox, it will be recalled, was runner up in the national women's championship as far back as 1899. The extra hole contest today resulted from the meeting of Miss Alexa Stirling, of Atlanta, the Southern champion, and Mrs. H. G. Hammond, of Indianapolis. The last named drives a long ball and if she keeps on improving, she will make trouble for any woman player. She practically threw her match away today through weak putting at critical stages, though at the extra hole she lost by slicing a drive to trouble, and a second shot out of bounds. Miss Sterling made the round in 94 to the other's 96.

In looking forward to the second round meetings between the survivors the outstanding match looks to be that between Miss Hyde and Mrs. Barlow. A year ago in the national the Philadelphia woman defeated the Long Island girl, and tomorrow's meeting will give Miss Hyde a chance for revenge.

Mrs. J. V. Hurd of Pittsburgh, formerly Miss Dorothy Campbell, is playing well. Out in 43 today, the Scotch woman had no trouble in taking the match well in hand with Mrs. G. F. Henneberry of Glen View. Mrs. C. H. Vanderbeck, the Philadelphia Cricket Club player, badly defeated Miss Eleanor Chandler of Huntington Valley, going at good pace, reaching the turn in 45.

The survivors will play in the second round tomorrow as follows: Mrs. Gavin vs. Mrs. Fox, Mrs. Hurd vs. Miss Eleanor Allen, Miss Hyde vs. Mrs. Barlow, Miss Painter vs. Miss Pearce, Miss Edwards vs. Miss Rosenthal, Miss Sterling vs. Miss Kaiser, Mrs. Vanderbeck vs. Mrs. F. Coldham, Mrs. Beifeld vs. Miss Elizabeth Allan.

Results of today's matches:

Mrs. W. A. Gavin, England, defeated Mrs. G. F. Henneberry, Chicago, 5 and 3.

Mrs. Caleb Fox, Philadelphia, defeated Mrs. Mason Phelps, Chicago, 5 and 3.

Mrs. J. V. Hurd, Pittsburgh, defeated Mrs. Lee Mida, Chicago, 4 and 3.

Eleanor Allen, Boston, defeated Mrs. A. A. Heaning, Chicago, 5 and 3.

Miss Lillian Hyde, New York, defeated Mrs. A. Liveright, Philadelphia, 7 and 5.

Mrs. R. H. Barlow, Philadelphia, defeated Marion Hollins, New York, 1 up.

Caroline Painter, Chicago, defeated Mrs. S. W. Widnety, Chicago, 6 and 4.

Ernestine Pearce, Chicago, defeated Mrs. S. Kunstadter, Chicago, 7 and 6.

Marjorie Edwards, Chicago, defeated Frances Hadfield, Milwaukee, 3 and 2.

Elaine Rosenthal, Chicago, defeated Ethel Chatfield, Dekalb, 7 and 6.

Alexa Stirling, Atlanta, defeated Mrs. H. D. Hammond, Indianapolis, 19 holes.

Laurie Kaiser, Chicago, defeated Grace Semple, St. Louis, 6 and 1.

Mrs. Charles Vanderbeck, Philadelphia, defeated Eleanor Chandler, Philadelphia, 7 and 6.

Winters Coldham, Toledo, defeated Jennie Jones, Sioux City, 1 up.

Mrs. E. L. Beifield, Chicago, defeated Isabel Bridge, Chicago, 5 and 4.

Elizabeth Allen, Rock Island, defeated Marjorie Dodd, Cincinnati, 1 up.

MISS BJURSTEDT LOSES.

National Tennis Champion with Irving Wright Put Out of Tourney.

Miss Molla Bjurstedt of Norway, national tennis champion, lost another match yesterday when, with Irving C. Wright, she was eliminated from the mixed doubles tournament on the West Side Tenis Club courts, at Forest Hills, L. I. Three hard-fought sets were required before Miss Ina Kissel and Frederick C. Inman won with the score of 6—4, 2—6, 6—4. The champion, as is usual when playing doubles, did not appear to advantage. She does not devote her undivided attention to the game and allows her game to lag. After losing the first set Miss Bjurstedt and her partner rallied and equalized at 6—2. They made a plucky fight for the third set but could not maintain the pace.

In the lower half Mrs. Barger-Wallach and Craig Biddle scored a straight set victory over Miss Bessie Moore and Lyle E. Mahan, both of which went to extra games. The summary:

Mixed Doubles, Second Round—Miss Ina Kissel and Frederick C. Inman defeated Mis Molla Bjurstedt and Irving C. Wright, 6—4, 2—6, 6—4; Mrs. Barger Wallach and Craig Biddle defeated Miss Bessie Moore and Lyle E. Mahan, 8—6, 7—5.

Point o' Woods Tennis Tourney.

The Fall tournament of the Point o' Woods Tennis Club closed yesterday. All the events with the exception of the mixed doubles were decided. In the final round of this event Miss Alice Trowbridge and W. Foster won the first set, with the second 8—8 when darkness stopped the match. The men's doubles were won by Stephen Thayer and John Kirkland Clark. The steady, consistent playing of Thayer was a feature of the tournament. The summary:

Men's Doubles.—Second Round—Foster and Benson defeated K. Durham and Marling, 6—3, 2—6, 6—1.

Third Round—R. Durham and G. Thomas defeated Finlay and Rogers, 6—3, 2—6, 7—5.

Semi-final Round—Goodrich and Vanderveer defeated Durham and Thomas, 2—6, 7—5, 6—1; Thayer and Clark defeated Foster and Benson, 3—6, 7—5, 6—2.

Final Round—Thayer and Clark defeated Goodrich and Vanderveer, 7—5, 6—2, 6—4.

Mixed Doubles.—Semi-final Round—Miss Alice Trowbridge and W. Foster defeated Miss Edith Fletcher and Dr. E. M. Alger, 3—6, 6—3, 6—4.

Final Round—Miss Trowbridge and W. Foster defeated Miss Morgan and B. Trowbridge, 6—4, 8—8, unfinished.

INTERCOLLEGIATE GOLF.

Princeton, Yale, and Pennsylvania Winners in First Day's Play.

Intercollegiate golfers began their six-day tournament yesterday over the links of the Greenwich Country Club by playing the first round of the team matches. As a result Princeton, the title holder, defeated Williams by 8 matches to 1, Yale beat Harvard 7 to 2, and Pennsylvania scored over Cornell 7 to 2.

The team of the University of Illinois, which holds the Western intercollegiate title, and is the first team from that territory to enter the championship, was fortunate to draw a bye. Its first appearance will be against Yale today. In the other match Princeton will play Pennsylvania.

In the early hours yesterday the downpour of rain made the going difficult, but as the weather cleared there was a corresponding improvement in the quality of golf. The four-ball contests, played in the morning, were one-sided, only one being carried to extra holes.

It was quite a different story in the afternoon, however, for five matches in the singles were carried to the home hole, and two of them beyond. Williams was rather unfortunate, for its strongest man, John Marshall, Jr., once Kentucky champion, was the only point winner. Marshall went around at a 74 clip, and defeated J. Berndt Rose of Princeton, the medal winner last year, by 6 and 5.

A peculiar situation resulted in the match between C. W. B. Townsend of Pennsylvania and John De Witt of Cornell. Townsend played out in 44 and De Witt in 35, a difference of nine strokes, and the Pennsylvania man was just nine down. De Witt won by 8 and 6. The summary follows:

47-FOOT YACHT CLASS.

Nat Herreshoff to Build Fifteen Sloops for N. Y. Y. C. Members.

Special to The New York Times.

BRISTOL, R. I., Sept. 7.—Several members of the New Yok Yacht Club have decided to build a new 47-foot class of one-design racing sloops, to be ready for racing next Spring. Designer Nat Herreshoff arrived home this afternoon from Glen Cove, N. Y., where the final plans were decided. There are to be at least fifteen sloops in this new class, and amon gthose who, it is reported, will build are Commodore George F. Baker, Jr., William Butler Duncan, George A. Cormack, George Nichols and Tarrant Putnam. Nat Herreshoff has the design ready for sloops of steel frame ond wood planking.

The plan to have a new class of medium-sized sloops was formulated within the past month. The racing men of the New York Yacht Club discussed the project at Newport at the time of the Astor Cup races. Nat Herreshoff was then commissioned to produce a fast design for this class. The work of construction will be started in the latter part of September, when the molds will be ready.

Hathaway Mixed Doubles Finals.

Miss Madeline Metz and George Graham for the third consecutive time won the mixed doubles tennis tournament of the Hathaway Club at Deal Beach, N. J. In the final round of the men's doubles Joseph Thoms and George Graham were returned victors over Harry Bijur and E. Lewisohn. The summary:

Mixed Doubles, First Round—Miss Sue Lyons and Frank Mittag defeated Mr. Steindecker and Miss E. Phillips, 6—4, 1—6, 6—4; Miss Metz and George Graham defeated Mr. Seeber and Miss F. Potts, 6—3, 6—3; Mr. Bedell and Miss Moore defeated Miss Krieger and S. Babbitt by default; F. Potts and Miss K. Potts defeated J. Mansfield and Miss E. Steindecker, 6—2, 6—3.

Second Round—Miss Madeline Metz and George Graham defeated F. Potts and Miss K. Potts, 6—2, 6—4; Miss Sue Lyons and Frank Mittag defeated Mr. Bedell and Miss Moore, 6—4, 6—8, 6—4.

Final Round—Miss Madeline Metz and George Graham defeated Miss Sue Lyons and Frank Mittag, 6—2, 6—4, 6—3.

Men's Doubles, Final Round—Joseph Thoms and George Graham defeated Harry Bijur and E. Lewisohn, 6—4, 6—4, 6—4.

Phillies' Crack Catcher Hurt.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 7.—William Killifer, star catcher of the Philadelphia Nationals, may be out of the game the rest of the season, according to Manager Moran, who returned here tonight from Brooklyn. Killifer did not accompany the other members of the team to this city, but remained in New York under the care of a specialist. He felt a twinge in his shoulder in the afternoon game yesterday, but after a careful massage he thought that it was all right again. He had to retire early in today's game, however, because of the injury.

The Famous "54"
The Latest Model of the Hudson Masterpiece

This "54" is the first great Hudson—the powerful, dependable touring car which brought Hudsons into the limelight.

It is shown today with all the improvements which four years have suggested.

This is monarch of the highways. At no price, in no type, has it ever been excelled.

It now has the endorsement of thousands of owners who have driven it millions of miles.

It won first prize for economy and efficiency against 24 touring car rivals.

It offers a value which has never been matched in any big, high-grade car. And it cannot be matched. It is possible here because of mammoth output. Hudson is now the largest maker of quality cars in the world.

See what a modest price can buy now, in luxury, in distinction and in road efficiency. Some of you have watched this car develop. See the model of today.

DR. DUMBA'S EXPLANATION.

The explanation the Austrian Ambassador offers of his letter to the Minister of Foreign Affairs in his Government is not satisfactory. It will not clear the situation. The letter, which was to have been delivered to the Minister by JAMES F. J. ARCHIBALD, was found among ARCHIBALD's papers when he was detained at Falmouth, England. In it Dr. DUMBA suggested that labor strikes in the munitions factories of this country should be fomented by the use of money. He now declares that he has done nothing except what he was directed by his Government to do.

The Ambassador knows that the President, that all the people of this country have read the objectionable passage in his letter, that they know, therefore, it is not the kind of letter an Ambassador writes by the direction of his Government. It is obviously a letter tendering advice from the Ambassador to his Government. The Austrian Ambassador now declares that he was directed by his Government to warn subjects of Austria-Hungary to stop working in the munition factories. Why, having received this order, he wrote such a letter to his Government as ARCHIBALD carried is not explained. It is surely not customary for an Ambassador, after receiving directions from his Government, to advise that Government thereafter to favor the course implied by the directions. The Ambassador's explanation lends a new touch of mystery to the situation, but no explanation at all would have served as well.

MR. FRANK MOSS'S AMBITION.

Mr. FRANK MOSS has done much service to the city. He has been useful in his activities and in his achievements. He has been the lifelong foe of crime, of criminals, of corruption, of "systems" organized for evil, whether in the Police Department or elsewhere. But we do not believe that Mr. MOSS should be District Attorney of this county, and we feel that his resolve to become a candidate for the nomination against Mr. PERKINS in the Republican primaries is unwise, ill-timed, and should be reconsidered.

Whether he knows it or not, Mr. MOSS is playing directly into the hands of Tammany. If he should cause the defeat of District Attorney PERKINS at the polls and the election of a Tammany District Attorney he would surely have neither pride nor pleasure in his finished work. Yet that is just what it comes to. If, as his supporters rather boastfully predict, he defeats Mr. PERKINS at the primaries, he in turn will pretty surely be defeated by Judge SWANN at the polls. If, on the other hand, he fails at the primaries, he would be very likely to make the run on his own hook as the nominee of some group or organization which could be readily assembled in his behalf. It is hard enough to beat Tammany in this county when the opposition is united; Mr. MOSS might easily draw votes enough from Mr. PERKINS to make it impossible.

Mr. PERKINS should be elected to the office he now so acceptably fills. He has the training, the experience, and the qualities that fit him for the place. He has been designated by the Republican organization, but he is not in politics at all. If elected, he would be no more subject to the influence or the orders of that organization than he would to those of Tammany. That is the kind of District Attorney we want and need. Of Judge SWANN personally nothing can be said that is not in his praise. But he is a Tammany organization man, and there are many reasons why Tammany should not have the District Attorneyship. They will readily occur to every experienced observer. Mr. MOSS would be under the influence neither of Tammany nor of the Republican organization, but he would be in a very marked degree under the influence of his own peculiar and somewhat radical notions of the duty of a public prosecutor. He would be open to the suggestions of those who believe that the District Attorney should be incessantly engaged in crusades of righteousness, a policy which in that office would be absolutely certain to diminish its public usefulness and to interfere with the orderly performance of the duty of bringing to book offenders against the law, of whom there are at all times many.

Mr. PERKINS can be fully trusted to become an efficient crusader if any great public emergency calls for such activities. If he should be elected the community would at the same time feel assured that the due enforcement of the criminal law will at no time be neglected in the interests of more picturesque crusade undertakings. But the chief practical objection to Mr. FRANK MOSS's aspiration is that he is, unwittingly of course, playing the old game of dividing the opposition to Tammany and thus insuring its triumph. The Republican organization in its sinful days, when it was in more or less open alliance with Tammany, used to baffle the reformers by putting up a dummy candidate of its own whenever there was a good outlook for the election of an independent Mayor on the Fusion ticket. Mr. MOSS ought not to persist in a course that promises the election of a Tammany District Attorney.

MODERN TENNIS.

Tennis, as it is played today, has found a new place in the field of sports. This is one of the important things that the national championship tournament that has been in progress for the past week at Forest Hills, and which reached its climax yesterday in the overthrow of the man who was rated as the world's best player of the game, has demonstrated conclusively. This tournament also seems to have repeated the lesson of recent years regarding the supremacy of the West over the East in tennis. R. NORRIS WILLIAMS, 2d, of Philadelphia, last year's holder of the national title, was the last representative of the East to survive the rigid elimination of the earlier days of the contest, and when he was defeated on Monday by the young California player, WILLIAM M. JOHNSTON, there was no longer any chance for the East to make a high showing in this year's history of the game. The final contest for the singles title was between two Californians, and the final match for the doubles title today will be between two teams from California—JOHNSTON and GRIFFIN against MCLOUGHLIN and BUNDY, the present doubles title holders.

This supremacy of the West is due in part to the favorable climate of the Pacific Coast's tennis champion-producing State, which makes it possible for the players to improve their game by practice nearly every month in the year. But it is also due in no small degree to the fact that the game has been played more generally in the West than in the East. In the vicinity of Los Angeles a suburban home is not complete without its tennis court, and the city is fairly spotted with them. New York is just beginning to learn how much this means in the way of healthy exercise and to imitate California by planting tennis courts in every conceivable place where a vacant lot large enough for a court can be found. Thus New York may produce more potential tennis champions in future, as the game becomes more generally known here.

The game itself has changed. It is no longer an "afternoon tea" sport, but as played now is a fast, grueling game which requires all the vigor that can be put into it. Not long ago the champions were middle-aged men who played exclusively a "scientific" game. Yesterday a 19-year-old boy beat a man of 24; the older men had been eliminated several days before. The crowds and not the players, however, demonstrated the most important thing about tennis at the Forest Hills tournament. The stands were well filled every day, and for the two big contests yesterday and the day before they were packed. More than 7,000 persons witnessed these games, it was estimated. Only a few years ago the national championship tennis matches in this country were witnessed by only a handful of spectators. During the critical moments of this new, fast-moving game of the final two days at Forest Hills, moreover, the interest was so keen that the faces in the grand stands wore that tense expression that was so familiar at the Polo Grounds in former years when the Giants had a good chance to pull ahead in the ninth inning.

"A HARE-BRAINED PROJECT."

Perhaps Colonel HENRY WATTERSON looks too confidently into the seeds of time when he warns President WILSON that a revival of the Government Shipping bill "would go far to make the "re-election even of WOODROW WILSON "problematical," but his characteristically vigorous bewhacking of that preposterous project, nursed ever the more tenderly by the Secretary of the Treasury as events have stripped it of even the one clout of reason or plausibility, is refreshing to the ears of common sense.

The stolid facts and figures, not cited by Colonel WATTERSON, fortify inexpugnably his argument against a Federal merchant marine. On Aug. 30 the Department of Commerce showed that in the year June 30, 1914, to June 30, 1915, there had been an increase of 363 American ships registered in the foreign trade, with a tonnage of 737,623. The number of American ships in the foreign trade at the latter date was 2,768, with a gross tonnage of 1,813,775. The remarkable increase was mainly brought about by the Ship Registry law. Has no eye in the Treasury Department been permitted to rest upon this statement of Assistant Secretary SWEET of the Department of Commerce, so discomforting to the curious, artificial, superfluous, and by some suspected, promotion of a Government trading fleet:

> This is about triple the increase in registered tonnage for any previous year in American history. Our registered tonnage is now much greater than at any time since 1863, when we had 2,026,114 gross tons in foreign trade. It is many times more efficient, as the steam tonnage now amounts to 1,273,067 gross tons, while in 1863 it amounted to only 133,215 tons.
> The increase from the Ship Registry act of Aug. 18, 1914, to June 13, 1915, was so rapid that tonnage under the American flag now employed in foreign trade is nearly equal to such tonnage under the French or Norwegian flag.

As Colonel WATTERSON says, "The Treasury is hard up." Still, there ought to be telephone communication between it and the Department of Commerce.

The persistence of Mr. MCADOO in clinging to the ship purchase scheme, which never had a leg to stand on but the very limping one of "emergency," in reviving it long after the "emergency," if it existed, has ceased, in injecting it into the hopes and plan of Pan-American improved commercial relations, is inexplicable and irritating. When the American flag flies over more ships than at any time in fifty-two years, when our commercial fleet is growing rapidly, what ghost of an excuse is there for Government ships? Colonel WATTERSON speaks words of truth and soberness when he adjures Mr. WILSON: "Drop it, Mr. President, drop it."

HE DOESN'T NEED IT.

Mr. WILSON's refusal to permit the New Jersey Democrats to approve his renomination rests on a delicate perception of propriety and good taste, which may be only dimly understood by some of the faithful, but will be appreciated by the nation at large. Mr. WILSON will not seem to take advantage of the international situation to further his political fortunes.

He has been loyally supported by the bulk of the people in trying times and amid the grave and sometimes perilous incidents, contingencies, and problems which the war has been bringing up almost continuously. So far as American relations with the countries at war are concerned, the politics of Americans not hopelessly alien in their sympathies have "stopped at the water's edge." Such, doubtless, will be the case while the war lasts and Mr. WILSON continues to be wise, prudent, and courageous in his external policies. In a sense it may be said that now, as fifty years ago, there is a Union party, now as to foreign, as then as to domestic, affairs.

Of course Mr. WILSON needs no "indorsement" from the Democrats of any State. His renomination is inevitable. In spite of much cheerful whistling, the Republicans are fully aware that the continuance of the war means another term in the White House for him.

CARRANZA AND THE RAIDERS.

The inclination to accept CARRANZA's assurance that his troops have not taken part in the new border warfare will be general in this country, as nothing more embarrassing to his cause than the sudden attacks on Americans and the deliberate invasion of American territory could have happened. His claim to control in the Matamoros neighborhood is completely disproved. His demand for recognition as the actual ruler of Mexico is left without support. The reports of the growth of animosity to Americans in Vera Cruz are equally unfortunate for him. Certainly the Mexicans can have no excuse for disliking Americans unless they are possessed of a "lodged hate and certain loathing" which exists for no reason.

We have borne with their delays to establish peace with unexampled patience, we have provided them freely with arms and ammunition, we have treated them all as friends and brothers in distress and tried to help them out of their difficulties. The only way out, as Mr. DAVID LAWRENCE so ably argues in the September Century, is for the discordant factions to get together and agree upon a reasonable plan for a provisional Government. Mr. LAWRENCE is sure that the first step toward armed intervention by the United States would precipitate this result. Mr. LAWRENCE, like all the rest of us who do not continually clamor for the invasion of Mexico, is open to the charge of being optimistic; but he seems to know Mexico better than most persons who write about it for the magazines.

NEW YORK'S CITIZEN SOLDIERS.

In the official statements of the strength of the National Guard of New York there are discrepancies which should be corrected. The people of this State surely have a right to know exactly how many of their fellow-citizens serve in their organized militia. The new military census of New York State, taken under the direction of Secretary HUGO, gives the number of officers and men in the National Guard as 17,089, while the records of the Adjutant General's office make the total number 16,434, and in an estimate of the strength of the National Guard throughout the country, recently made by regular army officers, New York was credited with fewer than 16,000 citizen soldiers. The popular estimate of the number of our National Guardsmen is 18,000, while its greatest possible strength, under Federal regulations, would be 22,930. The census just taken ought to be accurate, but so ought the records of the Adjutant General. It is clear that we have not quite the 18,000 we pride ourselves upon, and that a great deal of hard recruiting work would be necessary to increase the force to the number of men the War Department expects the State to have under arms. Of course New York's National Guard is nearer to its supposed strength than that of any other State. With 18,000 men in the various divisions, we would have reason to feel proud of our showing in numbers, as we already have of the efficiency displayed by our citizen soldiers in recent years.

The Secretary of State estimates that there are 2,500,000 men available for military duty in New York, but it is not likely that nearly so many would ever be called upon for military duty in any emergency. The suggestion of Lieut. Col. HOWARD of the Adjutant General's office that every able-bodied man in the State should be called to the colors at the age of 18 years, to serve for three years, with a maximum of thirty days' service each year, is the sort of proposal that always appeals to the soldierlike mind. But the public mind is not obsessed by the military idea, and while Colonel HOWARD's plan, if thoroughly put into execution, would solve our problem of national defense so far as New York State is concerned, it would still be a form of conscription, "mild" conscription, to be sure, but the word is disagreeable even with the adjective. The voluntary system is better so long as it can be made effective, and the system of training camps under Federal military supervision, which will now become an institution, deserves a long and thorough trial. A second encampment will begin at Plattsburg today; it will not receive quite as much public attention as the first, but its work will not suffer on that account.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

A Plan by No Means Unpromising.

According to the latest reports from China, the Government of that remarkable country has decided, "tentatively," to make the Presidency permanent and hereditary! There is no hint of a purpose or thought of asking the Chinese people how they like the plan, but as there isn't any convenient way to get their opinion, or a very great probability that many of them have one, perhaps the failure to follow what is the usual procedure in republics is not open to as much criticism as it would be in most other parts of the world.

And, after all, why shouldn't a republic have a permanent President, with the office and its powers passing on his demise to legal heirs and assigns? With a mere change of name, Great Britain does something very much like that, and is none the less a self-ruling democracy. Mexico, too, did fairly well, at least for the time being, and better than she ever has since, under a President in effect permanent, and the methods by which he secured his successive "re-elections" would have served as well for turning the office over to his son when the time came for doing it.

The dispatch from China says that to make the Presidency permanent and hereditary would save the troubles and difficulties of getting from the other nations formal recognition of a Government with a new title. That statement is an admission, of a naïveté characteristically Chinese, that the present Government is not quite what its name indicates—that is, a monarchy or dictatorship in a disguise so thin that nobody is expected to be deceived.

Nobody is, or has been, as a matter of fact, for the Chinese Republic was set up and has since been maintained by such a small fraction of the Chinese people that it has not been taken seriously anywhere as anything more than a bridge for temporary use while passing from one monarchy to another. Whatever real changes may be effected will be in more or less modernization of the old system and the elimination from control of the hopelessly degenerated Manchus. The permanent President, if there should be one, would be merely the constitutional monarch who is probably just the sort of ruler China needs.

Good Memory, Not a Thin Skin.

As explaining what is said to be the peculiarly strong resentment felt in Italy when the Austrians report as victories of their own engagements in which as a matter of fact the Italians were successful—something which the Austrians are charged with doing habitually and systematically—it is declared that the Italians are notably thin-skinned because they are a young nation.

As European monarchies go, the Italian monarchy of course counts among the newcomers, but the Italians themselves have a race consciousness that is the growth of almost as many centuries as that of their neighbors is of decades, if not of years, and they, if anybody in Europe, have a right to call themselves "old" in all of the senses in which a people like to make personal application of that word. They have lived under about all the sorts of "institutions" that other men have ever tried, as well as under several of their own invention that never won favor elsewhere, and certainly there is nothing new for them in the rule of a King.

If they are "thin-skinned," it must be the result of original and immutable temperament—the one usually called "Latin"—but it is not necessary to look so far to find a reason for the display by the Italians of a special irritability when, or if, the Austrians try to deprive them of glory won on such hard terms in the Alps.

Injuries and affronts have, for us all, a weight or seriousness that depends not a little on the source whence they come. One that is the last of many of the same origin may be comparatively trivial in itself and yet lead to an explosion of savage rage, simply because it is the last of a long series. In other words, the reaction is not to the last wrong alone, but to it and all the others.

This psychological phenomenon is not confined to Italy or to international relations. It is manifest in many a family quarrel, for the bitterest of them may be over something which, if it stood alone, would be passed over as of no consequence or even be regarded as amusing. History contains full explanation other than epidermic tenuity for Italian anger over real or suspected misrepresentation by Austria—an explanation that would serve equally well a phlegmatic nation—if any such there be, which is more than doubtful.

We're Doing More Than Fairly Well.

One of our correspondents bases on the reported increase among us of untimely deaths from the diseases called degenerative the fear that Americans as a nation are falling into or toward a state of physical inferiority and the belief that there is urgent necessity for them to give serious thought to the preservation and betterment of their health and strength.

His advice is good, however it may be as to his premise. Concerning the latter, neither casual observation nor mortality statistics offer much cause for alarm. Urban death rates are going down, slowly but steadily, all over the country, and the rural percentage of deaths per thousand is at least not increasing, in spite of the draining off to cities of a good many who are young and vigorous and the return to the villages of a good many who are old and tired.

As for the increase of deaths from the degenerative maladies, one has to die at last of something, and naturally it is to diseases of this class that we yield, now that we are fairly well secured from those more "acute" that used to be so effective in keeping the population down.

We are steadily producing athletes who break all records made by predecessors who lived in times imagined—with very little or no reason—to have been less strenuous and nerve-racking. That indicates that our physical condition isn't so bad, and it is no misfortune that the participants in the more violent and exhausting games and sports are few. Probably it is more healthful to watch a football game than to play in it, and as between the men who run Marathons and those who ride on street cars, the latter have a considerably better chance to make old bones.

In praise of fresh air too much can hardly be said, but about "exercise" an enormous amount of nonsense is talked and written. For whatever one does habitually, the doing of it is exercise quite enough. More is about as apt to be harmful as beneficial.

OPINION EAST OF ALDGATE.

It Is Not Truly English and Does Not Represent the Whole Country.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I hope it is permissible for an Englishman to offer some comment on C. E. Russell's recent strictures as to our lack of patriotism. Despite his doubtlessly sincere testimonial to his own motives and to our cause, the fact remains that his statements are misleading and unjust. Whatever its countless defects, the population of Great Britain has put forth a greater effort of voluntary enlistment than has hitherto been recorded by any nation.

We may be without an adequate army, but Mr. Russell's "conclusive evidence" is no evidence at all, even if his figures were correct, as they are not. His proposal that any one should spend an afternoon anywhere east of Aldgate to prove the truth of his report is equivalent to saying that any one can find overwhelming evidence of American opinions by spending an afternoon on the Bowery.

To Mr. Russell's question, "Why don't they enlist?" the simple and truthful answer may be made: "They do." Not less than 3,000,000 have done so. We have no material in Britain that can be made equal to professional continental troops in about a fortnight, and it is unfair to judge our military aptitudes by American standards. Put most of our shortcomings down to native and notorious stupidity, (and we will cheerfully admit it,) but don't take The London Times and The Daily Mail as representing the Britisher, nor accept even an American journalist's sweeping generalities without examination.

There are quite a number of inhabitants in the British Isles, and it takes more than an afternoon to find out exactly what they all think, and what they are all doing. But if Mr. Russell had taken a few trips on workmen's trains and developed his views to his fellow-passengers the result would have been interesting.

A Woman as Her Own Chauffeur.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The statement of Judge House in the Police Court, that a woman ought not to be allowed to drive an automobile, is a good example of the old saying that a shoemaker ought to stick to his last. If he was correctly quoted it shows quite plainly that he has no practical knowledge about driving a car, and unless a man has such knowledge his opinion is worthless. He states that a woman has not the strength to drive a car. A little experience would have shown him that very little strength is required and that the operation of an automobile is well within the limits of a woman's strength. Statistics do not show any greater proportion of accidents among women than among men, and that, after all, is the real test. My own opinion, based on actual experience, is that any woman who is physically and mentally able to ride a bicycle, to ride a horse, or to drive a pair of horses is fully capable of learning to drive an automobile with entire safety to herself and to others.

An Unnecessary Detour.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The lack of proper supervision of the State Highway Department has necessitated the détour of hundreds of cars between Windham and Prattsville in the Catskill region during the past week. The sign says "Bridge under construction," but it is not, having been finished for the time mentioned or longer.

CONSISTENCY.

A builder once builded a wonderful car—
Its equal had never been seen;
It could fly up rough hills with the speed of a bird
And glide through the wildest ravine.

At least, so 'twas claimed for this wonderful car,
And the builder pronounced it O. K.
"My motto 'PREPAREDNESS' did the whole trick!"
This is what he was oft heard to say:

"I builded for rough roads, no less than for smooth,
As my car's fine construction can tell;
To ride on the level is all to the good,
But you're bound to strike upgrade, as well."

But, alas! when they asked for his valued advice,
In building the great Car of State,
He scoffed at preparedness—said 'twas
a farce,
Also wicked and quite out of date.

"Just throw it together in any old way,
We are building for good roads, not bad—
This talk of preparing for possible strains
Makes me howlingly, tearingly mad!"

So argued this builder of logical mind,
As he gave of his wealth and his name;
The test of his scheme? Ah, the smashup will tell
Whether we can afFORD such a game!

AMERICA AFTER THE WAR.

Some Things Which May Greatly Influence Our Future Welfare.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I have just read the piece captioned "The War Canker in Preparedness," written by Washington Gladden of Columbus, Ohio.

Mr. Gladden's argument for waiting until the war is over to my mind is just where it would be unwise. How long this war is to continue and how shattered the several nations engaged in it will become is one of conjecture. But one thing is self-evident, and that is that so long as the United States can keep out of it and go on supplying the belligerents with articles they are sorely in need of she will become richer and richer, which, without a big army and navy, means not stronger and stronger, but ever an object of jealousy and envy to the world.

When peace is to be restored it does not mean that all the armies and navies in Europe have disappeared, but simply that they find the debts of such magnitude that the people rebel against further taxation, and therefore come to the conclusion that a peace had best be sued for on honorable terms. If, then, the United States at this juncture comes forward with propositions of an amicable settlement it will at once occur to them that to the United States is due a great part of this debt, which must be paid, and of which, if repudiated, the United States, being unprepared, would not and could not dare to push the payment.

It might now be argued by the pacifist that under such circumstances it would be best for the United States to release them of such obligation.

No! We want a big army and a big navy not to make war on any one, but to make the world respect us and keep us in peace. History of the past tells us of the fate of King Minos, under a civilization, if we are to believe the accounts of excavators, of a people very like ourselves. These revelations tell us there were no implements in his kingdom for carrying on war, not even a fort or gun at the mouth of his peaceful harbor, and yet the kingdom was overrun by men of more warlike disposition, his country sacked, his maidens taken into captivity, and the wealth which peaceful industry had stored up for the use of the people was ruthlessly carried away.

Jealousy and envy are still strong inherent traits in the best of us, and the time has not arrived when it would be wise for the United States to test the nations in battle, out of battle, or after battle unless they were fully and entirely prepared both by land and by sea. Man at this stage of his growth is not controlled, as he should be, by love, but rather, we regret to say, by fear and riches—one producing envy, the other forcing respect, without which the riches become a danger to a nation.

Huasteca Oil Wells Not Shut Down.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Under the caption "Oil Wells Closed Down" in your issue of Monday, Sept. 6, appears a dispatch from San Antonio, Texas, reading as follows:

> A message dated Aug. 31, received here today from Gordon Willard, an American oil operator at Tampico, Mexico, said all oil wells in that section, except the Aguila, have been closed down.
> The operators of the Huasteca oilfields, American owned, closed down with the announcement that they had lost $2,000,000 since the Carranza-Villa revolution began, and that they have exhausted every resource to continue operations. Thousands of men are out of employment.

The Huasteca Petroleum Company is a subsidiary of the Mexican Petroleum Company, Limited, and is the largest operator in the Huasteca region. The management, through Herbert G. Wylie, Vice President and General Manager, denies absolutely that their operations have been closed, and any reference to alleged losses is also unauthorized by the company. Their operations are continuing as usual without any interruption.

The Story of Burgevine.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I noted with some interest an article in your Magazine Section, written by Baker A. Jamison, on Burgevine, a leader in the Tai-Ping rebellion. My father was secretary to General Ward, the Chief in Command of the Imperial forces previous to the coming of General "Chinese" Gordon. I have heard my father speak many times of Burgevine and of his untimely end. His story differed from the one told by Mr. Jamison. His description of Burgevine was that of a daring, erratic leader, and his end was at the hands of the Tai-Ping rebels, who flayed him alive—sending back word to Ward that Burgevine died like a man, mocking them to the last. There may be a man alive in this country today who could tell the story better than any one else—General Forrester, who, if memory serves me right, lived for a time in Washington Heights. Some day some one able to afford the time should look up that history; it ought to make good history, especially as the leading figure in it, an American, is now a Chinese god. My father dying when I was a boy of 11, my recollections are only those of stories told before bedtime, but they were sufficiently blood-stirring.

Misleading Suffrage Quotations.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

During the past week there has been a suffrage van standing at the corner of Broadway and 157th Street. Nearly half of the space on the front side of the van has been covered by two posters containing disconnected paragraphs from speeches by Elihu Root and Mr. Wickersham in opposition to suffrage. Had the full context of the speeches been used they would have been most brilliant and convincing arguments against the propaganda of this van and its occupants. As they stand, they are intended to mislead those who read them. Can the men of this State see any gain in government or politics by giving the vote to women who do and sanction the doing of such things?

Mr. Ford's Peace Fund.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

It is hardly probable that the "setting aside" by Henry Ford, the automobile manufacturer, of a fund for "financing peace" will influence one way or the other the sale of his cars, neither will it affect the thankfulness felt by the majority of reasoning men and women of America that our country has at last awakened to the peril that threatens—the peril that erelong will descend upon us unless we make ourselves secure by being in a position to protect ourselves from it.

Would Mr. Ford place his millions in any bank that was not safeguarded by steel vaults and armed watchmen against invasion?

A Way to be Rid of Cats.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

"M. W. G." is right. It is a disgrace to the city and, above all, to the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals to allow the myriad of half-starved, diseased cats to roam the city streets. That same society will send its ambulance and men for cats if they are caught, but if they are at large, in a yard or in an alley even, they will not remove them. I would suggest paying small boys to bring in the cats on the proposed "Clean-Up Day" to depots in various parts of the city. A small reward would insure their being caught.

WHY GREECE DOES NOT GO TO WAR.

An Explanation of Her Attitude Toward the Entente Powers and of the Present Policy, Neutral and Opportunist, of Premier Venizelos.

By Adamantios Th. Polyzoides,
Editor of The Daily Atlantis.

New York, Sept. 6, 1915.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The return to power of Eleutherios Venizelos was generally hailed as meaning the almost immediate entrance of Greece in the war in favor of the Quadruple Entente, with the certainty that Bulgaria and Rumania would follow her course. This view seems to have been shared by the European press, much to the astonishment of those chiefly interested in the immediate course of Greece's new premier. The name of "War Party" given to the Liberals of E. K. Venizelos has been viewed in Greece in the light of his activities of last March rather than in anticipation of his policy of the future. This is partly so, first, on account of Greece's objection to the war-at-any-price movement, and secondly, because in the face of the tremendous responsibilities that entrance in the field at this time implies, there is no man in Athens who would undertake to force his country in the arena of the world war, whose end is yet far from being in sight.

Italy's intervention, on the other hand, had a most cooling effect on the majority of the Greek people, not only because of the failure of the Italian army to make any impression on the Austro-German troops, but also because of the fact that Italy appropriated for herself most of the compensations that nationally, geographically, historically, and morally belong to the Hellenic nation.

At the same time, the Russian defeat has altogether changed the entire Balkan situation, and the Greek people have been quick enough to realize it. And it must not be forgotten at this point that Russia has been mainly responsible for the failure of the Allies to induce Greece to join in the war last March, at the time when, according to expert opinion, the task of forcing the strait was far easier than it is now. It has been said since that it was King Constantine who rejected the proposals of Mr. Venizelos to enter the war; but the King was not alone in his objections. A large part of the nation shared his views, strengthened by the fact that the Allies, yielding to Russia, did not concede to the Hellenic troops the right to enter Constantinople with their allies, in the event of the Turkish capital being captured by the Entente powers, and also by the knowledge of Russian hostility to every material expansion of the Hellenic kingdom in Asia Minor.

It was on account of these difficulties that the Allies could not offer to Greece any adequate compensations for her participation in the war, while they imposed on her the sacrifice of Eastern Macedonia, including the port of Cavalla, to Bulgaria, in order to secure the latter's co-operation in the Dardanelles. The net result of the allied proposals, should they be translated into acts, would be to create a Bulgarian predominance in the Balkans, while Greece, having once lost her ground on the peninsula, would seek her fortune in Asia Minor, where, by the way, she would have to reckon with the aspirations of such powerful opponents as Russia and Italy, to mention only these two chief foes of Hellenism.

As for England and France, they wished to satisfy Greece in Asia Minor, and I have every reason to believe that their promises to Mr. Venizelos, six months ago, were sincere. But in order to comply with Greek aspirations, France and England could not and would not disappoint Russia and Italy. The first was their ally at the time, and they counted on Italy's assistance in the near future. The pourparlers between Mr. Venizelos and Sir Francis Elliot, the British Minister in Athens, and M. Deville, the Minister of France, could not find a solid basis up to the time when Venizelos resigned from office. Eventually they held out for Greece some compensations in Asia Minor, but these were so vague and indefinite that they could not satisfy Greek public opinion, nor strengthen Mr. Venizelos in the impossible position in which he found himself last March. The Greek people had no objection, as far as entrance into the war was concerned, but they wanted to know beforehand how far the national aspirations would be satisfied, after the country had entered the arena of the biggest of all conflicts in the world's history. Mr. Venizelos could not give an answer to his countrymen because the Allies did not offer anything of real and tangible value to him. Therefore the Hellenic people did not deem it advisable to enter the war in March, and has remained neutral up to the present day.

According to the anti-Venizelist press, the reason why the Allies could not offer Smyrna or any other zone in Asia Minor was the fact that Paris, London, and Petrograd were duly informed of Italy's aspirations and were keeping for their future ally those compensations which originally might have been intended for Greece. Eventually Italy entered the war, and at the same time the question of giving any substantial compensation to Greece in case of her participation in the war almost ceased to exist.

Demetrios Gournaris, the successor of Mr. Venizelos, vainly has endeavored for the last six months to exact a solid promise from the Allies. He therefore came out as an ardent supporter of continued neutrality and based his entire program of foreign policy on the preservation of the territorial integrity of the Hellenic kingdom, until the word was passed around that he was a pro-German; and that was one of the reasons that sent him to his political doom at the recent general elections. The ministry of Mr. Gounaris was defeated at the polls on many other scores besides his so-called pro-German policy. These reasons were mostly of internal character. Mr. Gounaris, politically speaking, is a young man. When he took office he had no followers and no political organization of his own. He had emerged from the fallen old parties, and his ministers were the politicians that were overthrown by the military revolution of 1909, which brought about the advent of Venizelos to power. The Hellenic people were manifestly displeased with their return to political life, and even the most ardent anti-Venizelists did not hesitate to condemn the way in which the Gounaris ministry was constituted on the fall of Mr. Venizelos. Some good, honest, and efficient men took part in the Government formed by Mr. Gounaris, but they were powerless to turn the tide of public sympathy in their favor; the people, although recognizing their good qualities, and their better intentions, could not help thinking that the old condemned régime was coming back, and the Hellenist, Venizelist, or non-Venizelist, would not stand for the resurrection of an anathematized past. The Cretan statesman no doubt knew this popular sentiment, and he struck the right note when, in lieu of any other political program, he declared a few days before the general election that the electorate was to choose between the old parties identified with Mr. Gounaris's ministry and the Liberal party, which came out of a national revolution and helped double the Hellenic realm after two victorious wars.

Besides being closely identified with the new political era of Greece, Mr. Venizelos has been clever enough to build for himself a powerful party organization, having taken as a model the American "machine" and the British political clubs. But still this was not all. Venizelos is very popular in Greece; he is tremendously popular with the masses, and he is particularly admired by the Greeks living abroad, who always exert a strong influence on the opinions of those at home, particularly in times of a national crisis such as the present one. At the same time, it must not be forgotten that Venizelos is the one powerful political personality that Greece possesses today; his hold on the people is absolute; his persuasive qualities irresistible. On this score he is regarded as a most important asset by Hellenic opinion, and as such he was called again to power by popular vote, notwithstanding the fact that the most popular of all monarchs had disapproved his bellicose policies twenty-five weeks ago. The Hellenic people, however, by so doing did not reject King Constantine's peaceful advice. They did not vote for or against the war, because such an issue was not brought forth in the last election. They voted for Mr. Venizelos's return to power, and the astute Cretan was quick to understand that what Greece wanted from him was a continued neutrality, a safeguard of the country's territorial integrity, and finally a straight and explicit policy with the Allies as to the terms of Greece's eventual co-operation in the war.

The result of this tacit understanding between the Greek people and Mr. Venizelos is that the latter became Premier without departing from the neutral policy of his predecessor, much to the surprise of those who expected to see in him a militant leader of an ardent "war party."

Of course, Mr. Venizelos will shape his future policy according to the turn of the circumstances; these for the present impose on Greece a strictly neutral attitude, that is to say, an attitude favorable to Serbia and to the Entente powers, and at the same time friendly, or, rather, not hostile, to Germany, Austria, and Turkey. The recent Turco-Bulgarian agreement renders the situation of Greece with regard to her Serbian alliance extremely delicate, and at the same time the equivocal attitude of Rumania makes it an all important duty for Greece to be very cautious and very careful in its dealings with everybody. Indeed, if there was an unfavorable time for Greek participation in the war of the Allies against Turkey, the present occasion seems to illustrate it.

Mr. Venizelos no doubt would like to see the Hellenic troops fighting against the odious Turk, and the whole of Hellenism shares in this opinion, inasmuch as today the three million Greeks in Turkey are living through the darkest days of their slavery.

But before unsheathing the sword Greece must make sure that she will not have to fear Bulgaria, that Italy is not going to establish herself permanently in Albania and the Greek Archipelago, and that the Allies in general will guarantee her national union and independence, which can only be achieved by the application of the principle of nationality both on the Balkans and Asia Minor. And as long as this principle holds good in Alsace-Lorraine, in Bosnia and Herzegovina and Dalmatia, in Bukowina and Transylvania, in Trent and Trieste, and even in Poland, Greece sees no reason why the contrary should apply wherever Hellenic claims are at stake.

This is the way Greeks think; and Venizelos is too much of a Greek patriot himself to think otherwise. And therein lies the whole explanation of the present attitude of Greece.

The Gettysburg Speech en Route.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

It is gratifying to learn that the executive members of the Lincoln Highway Association are now busily engaged upon plans for the construction and early completion of their important and patriotic undertaking, a continuous roadway across the continent from ocean to ocean, bearing the name of Lincoln.

In this connection, I beg to suggest that Lincoln's words be placed in some one conspicuous place along the highway, as may seem fitting and acceptable, in every State of the Union in which this highway is located. For this purpose it would seem that nothing better could be chosen than duplicates of the bronze reproduction of Lincoln's immortal Gettysburg address as it appears by act of Legislature in the corridor of the Capitol at Trenton, N. J. This tablet, carrying as it does, above the text, the seven corps marks borne by the men of the seven Union army corps engaged on this historic battlefield, forcibly recall the fact that with anything less than the heroism and sacrifice of the men who fought under them, the immortal words of the great emancipator would never have been uttered.

The degree of civilization in any country may be judged by what its people deem great, and by the form in which they preserve its memory.

The Spirit of the Naval Militia.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Anent the letter of "A Petty Officer," appearing in THE NEW YORK TIMES, may I be permitted, through your valuable paper, to add my mite of protest against the insufficient attention given that valuable branch of the national defense? Although only a "rookie" in the naval militia of this State, having enlisted only last July 1, nevertheless I am associated with young men who have been connected with the naval militia for over three years. Each is of the opinion that that branch of the national defense receives but scant consideration at the hands of the officials who have such matters in charge. When a month passed after my enlistment I made inquiry of a petty officer as to when I would receive my allotment of requisites for the service, I was told that a requisition had been filed, (not only for myself, but for others,) but that there was not sufficient material on hand at the Brooklyn Navy Yard with which to honor the requisition. A month and a half has passed, still I am lacking the raiment essential. Of course I have made allowance for the fact that this is the Summer season, and perhaps the officials in whose hands rest such matters have become a bit lax owing to the torrid humidity that has obtained recently. Nevertheless, this is an example of the esprit de corps as found in the naval militia.

REICHER TO FOUND A PEOPLE'S THEATRE

Organizer of the Modern Stage Plans an Auxiliary Society for Wage Earners.

BOTH TO PLAY AT GARDEN

German Actor-Manager's First Production to be Hauptmann's "The Weavers"—Julius Hopp Associate.

Emanuel Reicher, the German actor-manager who organized the Modern Stage for the production of modern plays last Winter, announced yesterday that he would establish an auxiliary society to be known as the American People's Theatre and to be run in conjunction with the parent body this season. The new project will also have for its purpose the presentation of modern plays of all countries, but instead of catering to a restricted public as did the Modern Stage, which gave its performances before audiences of subscribers, it will enroll its members from the great masses of wage earners.

Herr Reicher was identified with the Freie Bühne in Berlin when that movement to give the modern dramatists a hearing was in its infancy, and what the Independent Stage did for Germany he hopes the Modern Stage and its auxiliary, the American People's Theatre, will do for the modern drama in America. He has leased the Garden Theatre for a season of thirty weeks, and here the performances of the two societaies will be given. Björnstjerne Björnson's drama, "When the New Vine Blooms," will be the first offering of the Modern Stage in November.

Gerhart Hauptmann's drama, "The Weavers," which was suppressed when it was first acted in Germany, will be the first production of the People's Theatre. The play deals with the poverty and uprising of the starving weavers of Silesia, Germany, and when the highest courts finally permitted its performance, it was widely discussed and successful, as well. To give the drama adequate production, Herr Reicher has engaged a company of more than forty players. This company will be retained throughout the season, and will alternate in the productions of the two societies.

The rèpertoire will include groups of one-act plays by American authors in addition to plays by foreign dramatists of note. Among the former will be "The Finger of God," "According to Darwin," and "The Noble Lord," by Percival Wilde; "The Dollar" and "The King," by David Pinski, and "The Girl in the Coffin," by Theodore Dreiser. Anton Tschechow's "Uncle Vanja," a drama of Russian life; "Madonna Dianora," a romantic scene by the Austrian poet, von Hofmannsthal, and Ibsen's "Rosmersholm" will be other offerings. Herr Reicher will appear in a number of these, especially in "When the New Vine Blooms," which will be given its first performance in America under his direction.

Julius Hopp, who has for a number of years given performances of plays and many concerts to the masses through the Wage Earners' League, is associated with Herr Reicher in the new movement. A system of distribution of tickets is being developed by which free membership cards will be given to organizations and individual applicants in the order of application. These cards will entitle holders to tickets at reduced prices, the highest of which will be 75 cents. The prices for the performances under the auspices of the Modern Stage, on the other hand, range from $1 to $3.

MEET MUSICIANS' BOARD.

Managers Discuss Their Differences with Federation Officials.

The first of a series of conferences, on the result of which will depend whether or not there will be orchestras in the first-class theatres of the country, was held yesterday in the rooms of the United Managers' Protective Association in the New York Theatre building. The conference was attended by the Board of Directors of the American Federation of Musicians and the Board of Directors of the managers' association.

The importance of the meetings may be gauged by the fact that the nine men who make up the musicians' board came here from all parts of the United States and Canada to be present. The principal points of contention between managers and musicians are the demands of the latter that theatre orchestras shall be hired for a certain number of weeks each year regardless of the time they are used, and the arbitrary naming of the number of musicians that shall make up the orchestras in the various cities.

At the opening meeting there was a general discusion of the differences, and then adjournment was taken till later in the week when the discussion will be continued.

E. A. WEIL A PRODUCER.

Brings Plays from London and Will First Give "A Bare Idea."

E. A. Weil, who for a number of years was H. H. Frazee's general representative, has resigned that position to become a producer of plays himself. Mr. Weil recently returned from a trip to London, where he acquired the American rights to several plays, sketches, and motion picture scenarios.

His first production will be a musical play, entitled "A Bare Idea," with Dorothy Arthur, who in private life is Mrs. Weil, in one of the principal rôles. This play and an adaptation of "La Veille Eglise," by Pierre Berton, will be produced next month. Mr. Weil controls the American rights to "Balthazar," which Pierre Berton wrote for Richard Mansfield; "The Young Bride," a French comedy by Jean Berton; "Her Side of the House," and "Ann," two comedies produced in London by Sir Charles Wyndham, and "Le Mannequin Amoreux," a sketch in which Mlle. Polaire recently ended an engagement in the Coliseum, London.

Mr. Weil made arrangements with Arthur Bouchier to come to New York in January and appear under his management in a rèpertoire of plays.

TULLY TO PRODUCE ABROAD.

Dramatist Forms New Firm with Senator Phelan as a Director.

Richard Walton Tully, the playwright, arrived yesterday from California and is at the Hotel Astor. Mr. Tully announced the formation of a corporation capitalized at $250,000 to produce his plays abroad. He will leave shortly for London, where he will direct rehearsals of his play of Hawaiian life, "The Bird of Paradise." This will be the first venture of the new firm, which includes among its officers and directors besides Mr. Tully, United States Senator James D. Phelan, of San Francisco; Claus Spreckels, of San Diego; James K. Moffitt, of San Francisco, and Harry Chandler, of Los Angeles.

Mr. Tully stated that next year he would have a producing theatre of his own on Broadway. He has two new plays ready to present there, one, a play in which Guy Bates Post will be starred.

Cohan's New Play for the Astor.

George M. Cohan's latest play, "Hit-the-Trail Holliday," will be presented in the Astor Theatre Monday night with Fred Niblo in the principal rôle. "Young America," which Cohan & Harris produced ten days ago in the Astor, will be transferred to the Gaiety, to remain indefinitely.

MISS ELEANOR BOYD WEDS.

500 Guests at Her Marriage to John M. Colt at Oakleigh.

Special to The New York Times.

HARRISBURG, Penn., Sept. 7.—Five hundred guests were present today at the marriage of Miss Eleanor Gilmore Boyd, daughter of Mrs. John Yeomans Boyd of this city, and John Milton Colt of Baltimore at Oakleigh, the Boyd country place.

The floral decorations at the house were elaborate, a color scheme of yellow and white prevailing, with masses of chrysanthemums.

The bridegroom's father, the Rev. Don S. Colt of Baltimore performed the ceremony, assisted by the Rev. Dr. Lewis S. Mudge, pastor of the Pine Street Presbyterian Church of this city.

The bride, whose brother, James Boyd, gave her in marriage, wore a gown of white satin, and was attended by her sister, Miss Louisa Yeomans Boyd, as maid of honor. The bridesmaids were the Misses Dorothy House of Duluth, Minn.; Mary V. Trowbridge of New Haven, Conn.; Margaret Cutler of New York City, Sarah Hastings of Bellefonte, Penn., and Elizabeth Bailey of Harrisburg.

The best man was Allen Dulles of Auburn, N. Y., a nephew of Secretary of State Robert Lansing. The ushers were John Hughes of New York City, Weir Stewart of Auburn, N. Y.; Donald McPherson of Lakewood, N. J.; David Fleming, Jr., and Jackson Herr Boyd of this city.

The young couple will make their home in New York City, where Mr. Colt, a Princeton alumnus, is located.

MARRIED AT COLUMBIA.

Dr. Allen W. Porterfield Weds Miss Elsie de V. Chesley.

The marriage of Dr. Allen W. Porterfield, instructor in German at Columbia University, and Miss Elsie de Valois Chesley, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur C. Chesley of New York, took place at noon yesterday in St. Paul's Chapel, Columbia University, and the ceremony was performed by the Rev. William Walker Rockwell of the Union Theological Seminary. Neither Dr. Porterfield nor the bride had attendants, and none except the family was present.

The bride wore the gown her mother wore at her marriage, a green and white frock topped by a hat to match, and carried a shower of orchids and lilies of the valley. The wedding breakfast was served at the Astor. Dr. Porterfield and his bride will spend their honeymoon in the White Mountains, and on their return will live at La Touraine, 50 Morningside Drive.

Dr. Porterfield was graduated from the West Virginia University in 1901, and did graduate work at Cornell, Munich, Berlin, and Columbia, and in 1911 took the degree of Ph. D. He is a member of the Phi Kappa Psi Fraternity, a contributor to scientific magazines, and has written much on German literature in the nineteenth century.

Mrs. Porterfield was graduated from Barnard in the class of 1915. She took honors in German, and was active at college in the plays given in French, German and Italian.

SUES MAY IRWIN AND PLAYWRIGHT

J. W. Frankel Alleges the Farce "13 Washington Square" Is an Infringement.

ASKS FOR AN INJUNCTION

Writer Contends Le Roy Scott's Entire Plot Is the Same as a Play He Wrote in 1901.

An application for an injunction to restrain May Irwin from presenting a farce, "13 Washington Square," and asking for an accounting has been made in the United States District Court by Joseph W. Frankel. Miss Irwin and Le Roy Scott, the author of the farce, are made the defendants in the suit, which alleges an infringement of the copyright law.

In the petition Mr. Frankel sets forth that in 1901 he wrote a play which he called "Three Months Abroad." In August, 1907, a condensed version of the play was produced as a vaudeville sketch in the Fifth Avenue Theatre. It is averred that Mr. Frankel was in the employ of Miss Irwin and that he submitted the play to her after it had been copyrighted.

In The Smart Set Magazine of August, 1911, a story entitled "Mrs. De Peyster's Idea," by Le Roy Scott, was printed. In 1914 this story, amplified, was printed in book form under the title, "No. 13 Washington Square." A dramatization of this book by the author was produced by Miss Irwin several weeks ago in the Park Theatre under the title "No. 13 Washington Square," which was subsequently changed to "33 Washington Square."

The farce tells the story of the happenings in the house on Washington Square following the determination of the rich Mrs. De Peyster to remain at home instead of going abroad, as she had planned, because of the failure of certain stocks to pay their dividends. Since her trip has been announced, she masquerades in her own house as the housekeeper, and the complications that follow make up the body of the farce.

The plaintiff sets forth in his petition that the play in which Miss Irwin is appearing at the Park differs only in minor details from the play he submitted to Miss Irwin. "The entire plot," runs the petition, "nearly all the dramatic situations, arranged in almost the same order and sequence, nearly all the characters, and nearly all of the ideas invented, devised, composed, and written" by the defendant are to be found in Mr. Scott's play. Supporting this contention thirty-five alleged similarities are paralleled in the petition.

Henry Wolf, a lawyer with offices at 1,480 Broadway, is Mr. Frankel's attorney. Mr. Wolf said yesterday that the defendants had been served through their attorney. Miss Irwin and Mr. Scott both stated last night that they knew nothing of the suit, since they had not been served with any papers, and therefore were not in a position to discuss it.

Rabbi S. H. Glick will deliver a sermon on Thursday in English, and on Friday in Hebrew.

FLOOD IN KANSAS TOWN.

Undertaker Gives Warning, Which Saves Many Lives.

FORT SCOTT, Kan., Sept. 7.—Six hundred persons were taken from dangerous positions today when water from the Marmaton River rose thirty feet in a few hours, flooding the wholesale and residence districts of Fort Scott. Business was suspended, while every available man helped rescue persons who had remained in North Scott. No one was killed, as far as is known. The water was receding tonight, and fears of further damage have passed.

An unnamed telephone operator at Uniontown, fourteen miles away, and four cab drivers employed by George A. Konantz, an undertaker, saved many persons. Uniontown had a six-inch rain, and the operator, realizing the danger to North Fort Scott, telephoned to the undertaker, who, with his drivers, harnessed his horses and drove to the imperiled section. The cabmen shouted a warning that the flood was coming, and several times pounded on doors when their cries were not answered. Fifteen hundred people then fled to safety, and a few hours later many of the abandoned homes were destroyed.

Train service into Fort Scott is demoralized. The water reached six feet in the Missouri, Kansas & Texas Railway depot, and it was necessary to take many passengers from trains in boats.

ZIMBALIST IN AUTO SMASH.

Violinist Suffers Torn Finger and Companion Has Ribs Broken.

Special to The New York Times.

GLENS FALLS, N. Y., Sept. 7.—Efrem Zimbalist, the violinist, had the middle finger of his right hand badly torn today when his automobile overturned at the foot of a steep, sandy hill near Lake George and went over a ten-foot embankment. A telegraph pole stopped the car in its downward rush. Zimbalist's companion, Mr. Archibald, cashier of the Lake George Bank, suffered a fracture of several ribs.

Zimbalist and his wife, Mme. Alma Gluck, have been spending the summer at Lake George. Zimbalist's injury today will not hamper his playing.

Her brother, J. S. Tschirhart, and her two little nieces, Marie Wolf, 10 years old, and Helen Wolf, 6, both of 637 Prospect Avenue, New York, were thrown out, cut, and bruised. Miss Tschirhart died in the New Rochelle Hospital.

COLLECT ON JOHNSON BOND.

Government Holds Up Inheritance of Dead Signer's Daughter.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Sept. 7.—Mrs. Joseph Ritter, a daughter of the late Matthew S. Baldwin, who signed a $15,000 bond when Jack Johnson, the pugilist, was brought before the Federal Court for violating the Mann act, will have to pay over the entire amount to the Government. The bond which was forfeited when Johnson left the country was signed by Baldwin and Mrs. Tina Johnson, the fighter's mother. Investigation disclosed the fact that Mrs. Johnson did not own the property which she scheduled as hers.

Baldwin later died from gas asphyxiation, leaving an estate of $22,000 to his daughter. Today the Trustee of the Baldwin estate paid over $5,000 of the inheritance to the Government on the bond. Two other pieces of property will be sold to pay the balance.

JEAN WEBSTER MARRIES.

Author of "Daddy Long-Legs" Weds Glenn F. McKinney, a Lawyer.

The marriage of Miss Jean Webster, the author of "Daddy Long-Legs," "Much Ado About Peter," and "Just Patty," and Glenn Ford McKinney, a lawyer of 52 William Street, took place yesterday at Washington Green, Conn. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. James O. Emerson, and was followed by a bridal breakfast at the Summer home of Mrs. Joseph W. Lewis of St. Louis.

The bride was attended by little Emily Lewis as flower girl and young Joseph Lewis, who acted as page. Mr. Lewis served as best man.

The couple plan to spend their honeymoon at Mr. McKinney's hunting lodge in Canada. The bride lives at 128 West Fifty-ninth Street, and is a member of the Cosmopolitan, Woman's University, and Pen and Brush Clubs. Mr. McKinney belongs to the University, Princeton, and Larchmont Yacht Clubs. Their engagement was announced to their friends several weeks ago.

EDW. B. MOORE DIES; PATENT DIPLOMAT

Veteran Negotiated Many Treaties Relating to Patents in Foreign Countries.

HIS SUCCESS IN GERMANY

Former United States Commissioner Was with the Patent Office for Thirty Years.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6.—Edward B. Moore, former United States Commissioner of Patents, died at his home here today, in his sixty-fourth year. He was with the Patent Office for thirty years and was Commissioner from 1907 until 1913.

The career of Edward Bruce Moore was a remarkable one and from the time when he became a page in the United States Senate in 1866, his whole life was spent in Government employ. He was born in North Anson, Me., and was a son of William and Almeda Wyman Moore. His education was received at the hands of private tutors and in High School, and except for self-instruction, ceased when he became a page.

In 1881, he was admitted to the Bar and two years later was appointed an assistant exminer in the Ptent Office. Later he became a law clerk and in 1899 was appointed principal examiner, which post he retained until 1901 when he was appointed an assistant Commissioner. In 1907, he resigned to become Commissioner and in 1913 left the Patent Office to become a member of the patent law firm of Moore & Clark of Washington.

In addition to his routine connection with the Patent Office, Mr. Moore succeeded in a number of delicate diplomatic missions to other countries during which he made permanent arrangements for safe-guarding American patents. He was the United States Special Commissioner to the Pari¾s Exposition in 1900 and 1908, was the United States delegate to the International Patent Congress in Stockholm. In the latter part of the same year he negotiated what was probably the most important task ever intrusted to an official of the Patent Office, when he successfully completed the present treaty with the German Government, relating to the non-working of patents in Germany by American investors and manufacturers.

In 1909, he was sent on a mission to Denmark, Norway, Sweden, Russia, Austria, France, Italy, and Belgium as Special Representative of the United States, to make final arrangements for the safe-guarding of American patents in those countries. President Taft, on his return, appointed him Special Expert Attaché to the Fourth International Congress of American States in Buenos Aires and while there he prepared the patent regulations and observances which were ratified by the Congress and are now in force in South America.

In 1911 President Taft appointed Mr. Moore, Chairman of the American Delegation to the Conference of International Union for the Protection of Industrial Property in Washington, at which forty nations were represented. While he was Commissioner of Patents the United States issued its one millioneth patent.

Mr. Moore was a former President of the District of Columbia Society of the Sons of the American Revolution, a member of the Taft Chapter of the fraternity of Phi Alpha Delta, and a member of the Cosmos and Washington Country Clubs. He never married.

Thomas Stokes.

Thomas Stokes, a pioneer in the coal business, and head of the firm of Thomas Stokes & Sons, Inc., coal and wood merchants, died last night at his home, 122 West Seventy-seventh Street, in his seventy-sixth year. He was born in Ireland and came to this country with his parents when five years old. Mr. Stokes had been in the coal business for more than fifty years. He was a Director of the West Side Bank and a Trustee of the North River Savings Bank. Four daughters and three sons survive him.

MISS LISA NORRIS RESCUED.

Philadelphia Girl Narrowly Escapes Drowning at Narragansett.

Special to The New York Times.

NARRAGANSETT PIER, R. I., Sept. 7.—Venturing out into the heavy surf today Miss Lisa Norris, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John C. Norris of Philadelphia, who are members of the Summer colony here, had a narrow escape from drowning. She went down once, and upon coming to the surface her cries for help attracted the attention of several bathers, who swam to her rescue.

With considerable difficulty Miss Norris was rescued by Wister Randolph of Philadelphia and Edward Sullivan of Providence. She was carried on the beach in an exhausted condition and restoratives were given her.

Another woman was also overcome in the surf and was rescued by a swimmer who happened nearby.

MICHAEL JENKINS DEAD.

Baltimore Banker and Philanthropist Was Knighted by Pope Pius X.

BALTIMORE, Md., Sept. 7.—Michael Jenkins, multimillionaire banker and philanthropist, died at his home here today of pneumonia. He was 72 years old.

Mr. Jenkins was one of the chief owners of the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad and was Chairman of the Board of Directors of the Merchants and Miners' Transportation Company. He was a trustee and Treasurer of the Catholic University of America at Washington, and was knighted by Pope Pius X. for his services to the Roman Catholic Church.

His greatest benefaction was his share in giving, with Andrew Carnegie, the site and building for the Maryland Institute, which cost $1,000,000. At the time of his death he was President of the Safe Deposit and Trust Company of Baltimore, and Treasurer to the Trustees of the Peabody Institute of that city.

Mr. Jenkins was a member of the American Historical Association and a number of other organizations. His wife, who died in 1911, was created the Duchess of Llewellyn by Pope Pius X.

His firm built some of the largest factories and churches in that borough. Mr. Anderson is survived by his wife, a son, and a daughter.

HERBERT MAXSON ROGERS, one of the oldest fish dealers of Fulton Market, and a son of the late David Rogers, who was one of the first fishmongers of this city, died from heart disease on Monday at his home, 373 Ocean Avenue, Brooklyn. He was born in Waterford, Conn., seventy-one years ago, and was a member and a former Director of the Fulton Fishmongers' Association, and of Comonwealth Council, Royal Arcanum.

Mrs. ELIZABETH GERTRUDE ELLIS, widow of Richard M. J. Ellis, and an active member of the Sunday School Home Department of the Mount Olivet Presbyterian Church, is dead at her home, 207 Evergreen Avenue, Brooklyn, aged 71 years. She was also a member for twenty-five years of Goddess of Liberty Council No. 9, Daughters of Liberty.

Mrs. CLAYTON R. GROVER, 50 years old, a resident of Islip, L. I., where she was prominent in social circles, died in the Presbyterian Hospital, Manhattan, on Monday. She is survived by her husband, two sons, and two daughters.

CLIFTON FAY DRAPER, a traveling salesman, well known in the business world, died at his home, 149 Milton Street, Brooklyn, on Monday. He left a wife.

Mrs. MARY A. KELLEY, who died at her home, 805 Union Street, Brooklyn, on Sunday, was one of the early parishioners and an active member of St. Francis Xavier's Church. She was the wife of Thomas Kelley, who survives her with two sons and a daughter.

Mrs. MARY CECILIA CUMMINGS, widow of Captain John H. Cummings, a master of harbor craft, is dead at the home of her daughter, Mrs. John F. Rayney, 343 Hoyt Street, Brooklyn, from heart disease. She was born in this city seventy-three years ago, but had lived in Brooklyn for more than sixty years.

WILBUR A. PEASE, a son of the late Rev. John Morris Pease, died on Monday at his home, 342 Lafayette Avenue, Brooklyn, in his seventy-sixth year. He is survived by his wife and a daughter.

HENRY SILBERMAN, who died on Sunday at his home, 1,454 Forty-ninth Street, Borough Park, was a manufacturer of infants' caps and a member of the firm of Silberman & Rosenheim. He was 58 years old, and left a widow.

DAVID GRAY WAY, a retired manufacturer of harness, is dead at his home, 296 Bainbridge Street, Brooklyn, aged 64 years.

FRANK NOBLE, 36 years old, Secretary of the Buffalo (N. Y.) Savings Bank, and for seven years a member of the New York State Board of Bank Examiners, died in Buffalo yesterday.

JOSEPH A. BOYCE, a contractor of Long Beach, L. I., with offices at 110 West Thirty-fourth Street, in this city, died on Sunday at the Flower Hospital in his thirty-eighth year.

GEORGE A. ARNOLD, a retired furrier, died on Monday at his home, 510 West 148th Street, in his seventy-sixth year. He was a native of Germany.

TIMOTHY GILLIGAN, former holder of the Brooklyn checker championship, and for nearly fifty years employed by Richardson & Boynton, died on Sunday at his home in Dover, N. J., in his seventy-ninth year.

HOWARD R. MACCAFFIL, President of the Hotchkiss-Jobs Realty Company of New Jersey, died suddenly on Sunday at the home of his mother in Brooklyn. By error his obituary appeared in yesterday's TIMES with an incorrect first name. He was 48 years old, and lived in Summit, N. J., where he was a member of the Board of Trade and its delegate to the Federation of Lackawanna Civic Societies.

O. R. JOHNSON, 59 years old, business manager of The Indianapolis (Ind.) News, died at a hospital in Indianapolis yesterday. He suffered a paralytic stroke eight days ago while playing golf. He had been engaged in newspaper work in Indianapolis for thirty-five years.

KELSEY HEALTH HEAT

THE Kelsey Health Heat is the noiseless heat. No thumping of pipes. No hissing and sissing of air valves to drive you to distraction.

And while it heats it also ventilates.

Plenty of heat with no noise. Plenty of air with no drafts. Floors as warm as toast.

Less coal burned, more heat secured than from radiator heat.

We can prove it. Want the proofs? Send for Booklet, "Some Saving Sense on Heating."

NEXT MEXICO STEP SOON TO BE TAKEN

CARRANZA ARMIES GAIN

Capture Piedras Negras on Border and Gather for the Assault on Villa's Strongholds.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—Secretary Lansing is arranging for another meeting before Sept. 15 of the signatories of the Pan-American invitation to the various factional leaders in Mexico to participate in a peace conference seeking the solution of the Mexican problem. The conference will be held before that date in view of the fact that Dr. R. S. Naon, the Ambassador from Argentina, one of the signers of the peace appeal, is to sail for Buenos Aires on that day. The exact date of the conference as well as the place where it will be held, New York or Washington, had not been determined tonight. The State Department is still waiting for General Carranza's reply to the Latin-American invitation to send delegates to a peace conference.

It is believed by the Carranzista agents here that all the Villista garrisons are withdrawing from northern Coahuila to attempt to make their way to Chihuahua.

The Carranza agent, Señor Arredondo, tonight gave out this telegraphic report from Monterey regarding the military situation in Coahuila:

"On the night of the 4th Generals Alvaro Obregon, Gonzale Novoa, Luis Guiterre, Rafael Cepeda, Adolfo Huerta Vargas, and Maldonado, with their respective forces, after defeating the Villistas in a simultaneous and combined movement with General Jacinto Trevino and his forces, advanced on the centre and extreme eastern line from Icamole, Llorena, Paredon, and Monclova on all Villista positions in Coahuila. General Obregon and his forces easily defeated the Villistas near Saltillo. General Trevino reports that he personally had charge of the attacking centre forces which took Icamole and Llorena and that he also easily defeated Villistas, while his cavalry division, commanded by General Vicente Davila and General Francisco Gonzales, captured Paredon, the extreme end of the Villista line, Generals Benjamin Garza, Fortunato Zuazua and their troops capturing Monclovo, Villistas were commanded by Raoul Madero, Hernandez, San Roman, and Urbina.

The Constitutionalist forces under command of Generals Hill and Murguia are reported at Jimulco awaiting junction of forces of Obregon and Trevino, as well as the forces of Arrietas and Natera from Durango to make a combined assault on Torreon and final investment of Chihuahua. The troops under General Zuazua occupied Barroteran on the 5th and Sabinas yesterday, and are advancing on Peyotes."

EAGLE PASS, Texas, Sept. 7.—Twelve hundred Carranza troops under General Benjamin Garza occupied Piedras Negras, the Mexican town opposite here, today.

Villa forces evacuated the place and fled to the surrounding hills.

There was little excitement attendant upon the evacuation and few Mexican refugees crossed to the Texas side. This is the fifth time Piedras Negras has changed hands since 1913, and the population apparently had become accustomed to swift changes, which always have been made without a fight.

Last night the Villa commander announced he would make a stand against the Carranza force at Nava, just south of the border here. Apparently, however, he changed his mind.

Thirty wounded Villa soldiers were brought to the Texas side last night. They probably will be sent to the El Paso internment camp as soon as they are able to be moved.

The evacuation today left the Villa forces without a port of entry on the Lower Texas border, Piedras Negras, Nuevo Laredo, and Matamoros now being under Carranza control.

CARRANZA BARS NEUTRALS.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 6, (via Galveston, Sept. 7.)—In a manifesto issued tonight General Pablo Gonzales says:

"I make a final and formal appeal to all classes of society to identify themselves without reserve, if only from the instinct of self-preservation, with the Constitutionalist revolution, headed by the eminent citizen Venustiano Carranza, and co-operate in its triumphs. Foreigners alone have the right, or rather the obligation, to remain neutral.

Mexicans who seek to assume so shameful an attitude now that the country's life depends on the efforts of all its children will be regarded as enemies because the national cause admits of no criminal indifference."

General Gonzales calls the city's inhabitants to bear witness that the Constitutionalist Army has done everything possible for conciliation and to improve conditions here, provisioning the city, feeding the hungry, and providing work for men and women.

The decree of amnesty is extended to Sept. 15, but the General declares that after that date the door will be closed and the following will be regarded as enemies and visited with the severest penalties: Armed rebels, spies, and sympathizers of the enemy sending out intelligence, and all those who directly or indirectly aid the enemy by spreading false reports averse to the Constitutionalist cause, causing alarm by predicting the approaching triumph of the enemy or the pretended weakness of the Carranza forces; merchants who refuse to accept Constitutionalist legal tender or negotiate illegal currency, and "all who directly or indirectly seek to resist the dispositions of the Constitutionalist Government or army, who place obstacles or difficulties in the way of the Constitutionalist revolution's serene march toward the goal of redemption which it is bound to reach."

The manifesto makes exception in favor of enemies out of Mexico City who are unapprised of the amnesty decrees.

A considerable quantity of American and European mail was received here today, and business men say nothing will contribute more to normalize the economic situation. The exchange rate showed a slight improvement, as the mail brought gold drafts which can be negotiated in the next few days. The postal authorities say they will do their best to improve mail facilities.

DENY ANY PART IN RAIDS.

Carranza and Generals Answer Charges of American Officers.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—Major Gen. Frederick Funston, commanding the army patrol along the Mexican border, forwarded no telegrams to the War Department today that were calculated to cause further alarm over the bandit raids and other clashes along the Texas frontier near Brownsville. Reports to the department indicated that conditions along the border had temporarily quieted and that General Nafarette had withdrawn his forces from the boundary.

Carranza officials were strenuous today in their denials that any Carranza troops had participated in or encouraged the border raids, and sought to explain statements to the contrary made by United States Army officers in their reports to the War Department from Brownsville and vicinity. Eliseo Arredondo, the Carranza agent here, issued a series of statements in which he undertook to correct the impression that Carranzistas may have had some connection with the border troubles of a few days ago.

He based his denials upon communications received from General Carranza, as well as from General Nafarette, commander of the Carranza garrison at Matamoras, and General Ricaut, commander of the Carranza garrison at Nuevo Laredo, Mexico. Carranza's telegram says:

"The reports of the press that Generals Nafarette and Treviño are suporting the Texas movement are false. The fact that some of the disturbers may be wearing uniforms similar to those of our soldiers does not indicate any connection between our army and the above-mentioned movement, as the clothes, hats, and shoes used by our troops are the same as those used on the other side of the Rio Grande, as all of our equipment has been bought in the United States. I do not believe the American Government will give credence to the alarming reports of the press, published by our enemies, and lay the blame on the Constitutionalists for any complicity which does not exist, as I have ordered the commanders on the frontier line to maintain strict neutrality, in order to avoid complications. I have withdrawn our detachments from many places in order to avert any international difficulty."

EXPLAINS BRAZIL'S PURPOSE.

Foreign Minister Declares Aims in Mexico Are Wholly Pacific.

RIO JANEIRO, Sept. 7.—Dr. Lauro Muller, Foreign Minister of Brazil, has submitted to President Wenceslao Braz the text of the reply he will send to the National Chamber containing information asked by the Chamber regarding the attitude of Brazil in the Mexican question. In his reply, Dr. Muller shows that the action of Brazil through her Ambassador at Washington was wholly pacific in character and a manifestation of the fraternal sympathy of the American peoples for the people of Mexico harassed through long years by civil war.

The Chamber is informed that upon the invitation of the United States, Brazil gave her Ambassador at Washington authority and positive instructions to take part in a meeting held there to study all possible means to obtain from the leaders of the Mexican political factions a cessation of hostilities pending an honorable agreement of the two parties and the pacification of this portion of the American continent.

The Brazilian Government, it is pointed out, steadfastly and forever maintaining its respect for popular sovereignty could in no way commit Brazil to participation in an international meeting from which would result an attempt against the sovereignty of a fraternal and friendly people.

FOOD PROBLEM UNSOLVED.

Gonzales Warns Merchants—Red Cross Feeds Thousands.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 7.—General Gonzales has sent a communication to the Chamber of Commerce drawing attention to the fact that his efforts to improve the food situation in this city have not been seconded by many merchants who have placed every obstacle in the way of the plans of army headquarters for the benefit of the poorer class. General Gonzales asks the chamber either to call a meeting of merchants or otherwise give to them his decision that if these abuses do not stop within two days he will take energetic measures.

General Gonzales says he has proceeded with the utmost forbearance and will continue to do so until the last moment, appealing to the better sentiments of the merchants, but if he sees the latter obstinately pursue the course of refusing to comply with the schedule of prices for staples issued by the Provost, the General will take means to enforce obedience.

In a statement this morning Special American Red Cross Representative Charles J. O'Connor took occasion to do justice to the Constitutionalist Government, declaring no portion of its supplies had been appropriated by the Government. He said:

"One rumor among the many that have buzzed through the city I take this opportunity to deny. No part of the supplies sent here by the American Red Cross has been taken by the Government. Three separate shipments have been made and all have reached here without the loss of a pound."

Reviewing the work of the first full month, Mr. O'Connor showed that the daily soup distribution had increased from 792 liters on Aug. 5 to 34,683 liters on Sept. 4, the total quantity of soup distributed in that period being 553,575 liters. The number of applications approved is 26,000, each representing an average of four and a half persons.

Mr. O'Connor acknowledges some abuses, saying: "A few men employed have had so little human feeling as to traffic in garbanzas and meat stolen from starving women and children. We have tried to correct such abuses as soon as discovered."

Mr. O'Connor said he regretted that owing to the funds being nearly exhausted it would be possible henceforth to make distributions only three times a week instead of daily except Sundays.

MACHINISTS VOTE STRIKE.

Demand Eight-Hour Day from National Equipment Company.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Sept. 7.—About 250 machinists employed at the National Equipment Company's plant here voted this evening to strike for an eight-hour day, with time and a half for overtime, and the reinstatement of eight union employes. Vice President Frank Jennings of the International Association of Machinists is in charge of the strike.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Sept. 7.—Four rundred employes of the American Graphaphone Company tonight voted to give the company twenty-four hours' notice that they would strike unless a 20 per cent. increase in wages were granted. The company has already granted the eight-hour day and other concessions.

WATERBURY, Conn., Sept. 7.—The American Brass Company announced today that it had increased the pay of its employes 10 per cent. and that the hours which their various mills would run would be fifty-five per week, with time and one-half for overtime. Several thousand men will be affected.

Bulk Sales Law in New Mexico.

A copy of a bulk sales law recently passed in New Mexico has been received at the local office of the National Association of Credit Men, 41 Park Row, in addition to an opinion thereon prepared by counsel. Copies of both may be had from the association by interested credit men. Strangely enough, New Mexico is one of the two States in which the association has no members, the other being Nevada.

Good Greek Currant Crop.

Consul A. B. Cooke, who is stationed at Patras, reports to the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce that there is every prospect of a good Greek currant crop this year, in spite of rumors of injury to the fruit from bad weather and disease. Reports from the principal growing provinces show the crop satisfactory both as to quantity and quality. It is believed that the present year's crop will amount to about 160,000 tons of dried fruit, or about 2,000 tons more than the supply available in 1914. It was expected that all of the 1914 supply would be exhausted by late August.

Americans Buy Crossbred Wool.

LONDON, Sept. 7.—The wool auction sales were opened today with offerings of 9,900 bales. The selection was fair and the attendance was large. There was a good demand for merinos and Cape of Good Hope and Natal, and prices ranged from unchanged to 5 per cent. lower. Crossbreds sold from unchanged to 5 per cent. higher, but slipes declined 7½ per cent. Russians bought scoured and Americans took fine crossbreds with the understanding that export licenses will be granted, although no official announcement has been made yet.

Exchange Holds Back Orders.

The situation in foreign exchange is doing much to hold back orders that the belligerent nations would be only too willing to place here if the rates were not so disadvantageous to them. The French, it is understood, would like to start their preparations for the Winter campaign immediately, but are forced to remain idle until there is an improvement in the situation. Other countries are in the same predicament. If the rates work back any way near to their normal levels the mills engaged in army work believe there will be an unprecedented rush for the necessary supplies.

The Burlap Situation.

Members of the burlap trade are showing quite a little concern over the decision of the British Government to put the same restrictions on shipments of jute and jute products from Calcutta that now are in force in Dundee. Just what effect it will have on immediate trade is said to be problematical. There was not a great deal doing in the market yesterday, following the holiday, though there was a fairly good inquiry reported for odd widths at prevailing prices. Goods of staple width continued dull, and the prices that were quoted yesterday on forty-inch burlaps were practically all nominal. They were: 7½-ounce, 5.40@5.50c; 8-ounce, 5.50@5.60c; 10-ounce, 7.60c, and 10½-ounce, 7.75c.

Prospects for Book Tailors.

The tailors to the trade are in hopes of doing an exceptionally good business this Fall. Owing to the conservative way in which retailers carrying ready-to-wear merchandise have bought for the coming season, the chances are that some of them will lose customers to the book house agents. The reason given for this is that the small ready-to-wear stocks will not afford customers the selection possible through patronizing the tailors. Then again, the point is made that the return to prosperous times will be well under way by the time the book houses begin to sell their merchandise, and that with improved conditions generally there should be more than the customary amount of orders.

Cutting-Up Trades Busy.

The cutting-up trades, both in women's and men's wear, passed a very busy day yesterday. Religious holidays which start at noon today will take up most of the week, and, with last Monday a civil holiday, the time during which business can be transacted has been made very limited. The rush for merchandise in the women's wear line induced many houses to keep open on Labor Day. What action the union will take on such cases remains to be seen, but the Mayor's Council has made no decision on the holiday question, a point in favor of the manufacturers. The coat and suit trade expects a record season once the holidays are over, and the clothing industry is showing an improvement in response to the better tone of general conditions.

A Matter of Preparedness.

With style becoming the main factor in the men's wear branch of the piece goods market, as well as in dress goods, everything favors the alert selling agent who prepares his mill for the sudden changes in the demands which occur. At the present time, for instance, striped goods are in very brisk demand, and the market is not any too well supplied with cloth of this sort to meet the call. The mill representative is finding that his services must not be devoted alone to selling goods, but must cover also supplying his mill with the best information obtainable on the style trend. While he may become discouraged over the slow way in which the mill takes up his suggestions, for his own welfare it is necessary to send on to the mill samples and prices of the cloths he has reason to believe will be needed in the future. In this way, although the mill may refuse to put the goods in work, the organization is prepared in case of emergency.

Identifying the Goods.

The views of a New England clothier, on the question of the mills putting marks on their product which will identify it, are not carrying much weight with the piece goods houses. The mills are of the opinion that the customer does not care to know what make of goods he is getting in his clothing, as long as the clothing gives satisfaction. By trading with a reputable clothier the risk of being victimised is reduced to a very small chance. Furthermore, the contention of the mill representatives on the question of identifying their merchandise is that their own customers, the clothiers, will not stand for it. A mill man, speaking on this matter, gave the instance of one cloth which he produces being made up into garments sold all the way from $15 to $30, by merchants within a radius of ten blocks of one another. If the cloth was trademarked the retail customer who took the pains to compare prices would transfer his trade to the low-priced store, and might get the worst of the bargain through poor workmanship.

Gray Goods Quite Active.

While the gray goods market was a bit slow in recovering from the disturbing influence of the holiday, a pretty good business was done yesterday. Printcloths were again the leaders in the staple end, and if there was any outstanding feature of the day's trading it was the way 38½-inch 64-60s moved for spot delivery at 3⅞ cents and for delivery in the last three months of the year at 4 cents. In several instances the latter price is now being asked for spots, but it is doubted if any sales for spot shipment at that price have been made yet. A fair spot business was done on 39-inch 68-72s at 4½ cents, and 38½-inch 60-48s had a fair movement at 3 7-16 cents. The whole list continued very firm as to price. In the sheeting end some good business was done on 48 square, four-yard goods at 4⅛ cents and on four-yard, 56-60s at 4⅝ cents. For the latter construction many mills will not take less than 4¾ cents. Fancies continued active. Spot printcloth prices were:

39-inch,	80-80s	5¾c	38½-inch,	65-56s	3 11/16c
39-inch,	72-76s	5⅛c	38½-inch,	60-52s	3 9/16c
39-inch,	68-72s	4½c	38½-inch,	60-48s	3 7/16c
39-inch,	56-44s	3¾c	27-inch,	64-60s	2 11/16c
38½-inch,	64-60s	*4c	27-inch,	56-52s	2 7/16c

In Town.

ADOLPH SUESSKUID, proprietor of Terrace Garden, Fifty-eighth Street, near Third Avenue, has made an assignment to Bernard Stahl. Liabilities are between $150,000 and $200,000 and nominal assets are about the same.

SCHANZER BROTHERS.—William Philip and Benjamin Schanzer, composing the firm of Schanzer Brothers, manufacturers of hats and caps at 18 Waverly Place, have made an assignment to Abraham A. Silberberg. They have been in business five years.

JEROME ROSENBERG, theatrical manager, of 112 West Thirty-fourth Street, who formerly had a lease of the Bijou Theatre, has filed a petition in bankruptcy, with liabilities $10,284 and nominal assets of $26,270 in claims of which $25,000 is a suit for damages for breach of the lease of the Bijou Theatre, dated Feb. 11, 1914, and $1,270 is a deposit for rent of the theatre. The principal creditors are the trustees of the estate of Alfred N. Heinsheimer, who obtained a judgment for $7,733 on May 24, 1915, for rent of the theatre; and the City of New York, $522 on a judgment for violation of the Sunday law, prohibiting acrobats from working publicly on Sunday.

NATIONAL SALES AND SUPPLY COMPANY.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against the National Sales and Supply Company, dealer in physicians supplies for hospitals at 9 West Twentieth Street, by these creditors: Fisk Rubber Company, $1,039; Norwich Pharmacal Company, $175, and Miller Rubber Company, $31. The company made an assignment on Saturday. It was incorporated in June, 1914, with capital stock of $500,000 and had a sales office in South Rochester. Liabilities are $30,000 and assets $5,000.

NEW YORK FERROTYPE COMPANY.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against the New York Ferrotype Company, dealer in cameras an dsupplies, at 168½ Delancey Street, by these creditors: Morris Grieff, $1,000; Louis Schneider, $250, and Louis S. Kommel, $250.

DAVID SIEGEL.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against David Siegel, dealer in furniture, at 3,861 Third Avenue, by the Henry Kroon Furniture Company, a creditor for $161, and six other creditors, all the claims aggregating $570.

FLINTOFF & MALAT.—Robert B. Flintoff and Benjamin Malat, who composed the firm of Flintoff & Malat, printers, of 3,305 Broadway, have filed a petition in bankruptcy, with liabilities of $3,679 and nominal assets of $7,570 in claims against the McVickar-Gaillard Realty Company and the New York Real Estate Security Company, of no value.

RAYMOND J. BEECHINOR, bookkeeper, of 132 West Seventy-eighth Street, has filed a petition in bankruptcy, with liabilities of $2,036, and assets of $28 cash in bank. Taylor, Bates & Co. are creditors for $937 for loss on stock venture in May last. Sam Meyer is a creditor for an unknown amount for damages in an automobile accident on June 5 at Tenth Street and University Place. The auto ran into Meyers's wagon breaking a shaft and twisting a wheel. He also owes $67 to four doctors.

WEISEL BROTHERS.—Judge Veeder has dismissed the petition in bankruptcy filed on Aug. 2 against Weisel Brothers, manufacturers of sacqus and kimonos, at 122 West Twenty-seventh Street, on a settlement at 30 cents on th edollar.

FRANCES A. H. COHEN.—Judge Veeder has confirmed a composition of Frances A. H. Cohen, trading as Frances A. Harris, dealer in millinery, at 11 West Thirty-fourth Street, with creditors at 35 cents on the dollar, payable 10 cents cash, 10 cents on Dec. 1, 10 cents on June 1, 1916, and 5 cents on Dec. 1, 1916. Liabilities were $84,000.

RAPHAEL JARET.—Judge Hough has appointed Clifford G. Ludvigh receiver for Raphael Jaret, grocer, at 2,423 Arthur Avenue, in place of Joseph S. Rosalsky, who declined to act. Litbilities are $2,000 and assets $500.

GEORGE WIENER, dealer in millinery goods, at 339 Grand Street, has filed schedules in bankruptcy showing liabilities of $3,629 and assets of $700 in goods assigned to an assignee.

THE SITUATION IN DYES.

More Anilines Being Made Here—Indigo Supplies from China.

Progress in turning out colors to help meet the dyestuff scarcity was reported yesterday at the offices of the Standard Aniline Products, Incorporated, 366 Fifth Avenue. Jacob Hilder of the company explained that this concern was started early this year and is backed by sufficient capital and thorough efficiency. The manufacturing plant is located at Wappingers Falls, N. Y. A competent staff of chemists and technical assistants is now at work producing beta naphtol, a developer for blacks, navy blues, and all shades of red, and in itself an important intermediate product for the manufacture of various dyes; as well as paranitraniline, a much-needed product used for the printing ink trade, dyeing of red, and for making red paint. Mono sulphonic acid, a further developer for reds, is also being produced.

"We have been very successful," Mr. Hilder said, "in selling the greatest part of our possible output for quite a long period to the various users in this country and have booked very important business in England, France, and Italy. This shows the universal scarcity of these products everywhere, and the possibility of supplying the demand with American products.

"In certain quarters we have met with a great deal of encouragement in our enterprise, but in other quarters we do not find the support which this new and much-needed industry deserves. The Standard Aniline Products, Incorporated, intends going ahead, nevertheless, to increase the number of products and to expand in the field of aniline colors as time goes on.

"It is expected that very shortly the plant will be turning out sulphur black and sulphur blue, as well as paraphenylendiamine, which is largely used for dyeing furs and one of the scarcest products in the American market today."

John Lindemann of F. Bredt & Co., had this to say about indigo supplies:

"While it is quite true that there is a scarcity of indigo, both natural and synthetic, it does not necessarily follow, as claimed by some of the manufacturers, that they are obliged to shut down their mills owing to the utter impossibility of securing either one or the other of the above products. As a matter of fact, there has been very little natural indigo consumed by the textile mills since the introduction of the artificial indigo, which now comes into the market and is prepared synthetically from coal-tar, and for dyeing and printing has entirely displaced the natural indigo in every way for the dyeing of wool and cotton fabrics, likewise in printing cotton cloths, producing results superior to the natural indigo, and in normal times at considerably less cost.

"Natural indigos vary considerably in composition, containing in some quantities as much as 85 per cent. and in others as little as 20 per cent. of indigotine, the blue coloring matter which indigo contains; whereas synthetic indigo comes into the market in the form of a dry powder designated as 100 per cent., also in paste 50 per cent., but chiefly in a 20 per cent. paste, the last being the kind used by most all the mills for dyeing fast blue on cotton denims for overalls and by woolen mills for fast color in cloth used for all kinds of uniforms; likewise by calico printers for producing standard indigo blues. But these are abnormal times, and consequently the dyer and printer are up against it good and hard in trying to produce indigo blue dyed and printed goods, unless they raise their figures to meet the present price of synthetic indigo 20 per cent. paste, of which it is possible to get a supply even in these abnormal times, providing they are willing to pay a reasonable price. Synthetic indigo before the war was quoted at from 15 to 18 cents per pound, according to quantity. This same 20 per cent. paste would cost today from 98 cents to $1.05 per pound, and while this price may seem excessive as against the old quotation of 15 to 18 cents, it is not when one stops to consider the great difficulties to be overcome in order to bring this indigo to the States—such as forfeits to be paid, re-exporting, tremendous freight rates, extra insurances, and the scarcity of steamer shipments from China, the largest user of indigo in the world. It at all times carries an excessive stock, so that purely as a matter of luck, owing to present business conditions, do we find China at this time ready to sell, providing the buyer offers sufficient inducement for it to see that it is fully protected against all the above conditions. Let them do this, as many have during June and July, in which time over 700,000 pounds of 20 per cent. indigo paste were placed with several of our friends, and I feel certain they will obtain sufficient indigo to keep them going."

$500,000 High School Dedicated.

Special to The New York Times.

MONTCLAIR N. J., Sept. 7.—More than 1,200 persons attended the dedication of Montclair's $500,000 High School building tonight. The exercises, held in the auditorium, were presided over by Union N. Bethell, President of the Board of Education. Dr. Calvin N. Kendall, State Commissioner of Education, and others made addresses. Arthur C. Harris presented to the school, on behalf of the members of the Board of Education, a bronze tablet inscribed with Lincoln's address at Gettysburg.

BUSINESS NOTES.

Stanley H. Rose, special agent of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, will start shortly on a trip from coast to coast, during which he will outline to manufacturers the best methods for building up an export business, with special reference to Central and South American countries.

Brown & McRay, resident buyers of 1,270 Broadway, have added Walker Brothers Dry Goods Company of Salt Lake City to their accounts.

The regular quarterly meeting of the Board of Managers of the Silk Association of America will be held at the rooms of the association, 354 Fourth Avenue, next Wednesday, Sept. 15, at 2:30 o'clock.

BANKRUPTCY NOTICES.

To the Creditors of International Steam Pump Company:

You are hereby notified that the District Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York by its order entered August 19, 1915, in the Consolidated Cause of Guaranty Trust Company of New York, as Trustee, complainant, against International Steam Pump Company, defendant, in which the undersigned have been appointed Receivers of the property of said company, has required any and all persons, firms and corporations having any claim or claims of any kind or nature against International Steam Pump Company or against the property owned by it (except holders of the First Lien Five Per Cent. Bonds of said Company,) to file statements of their respective claims with Abraham S. Gilbert, Esquire, Special Master, at his office, No. 48 Exchange Place, New York City, on or before the first day of October, 1915, and, on failing to do so, that all of said claimants not filing claims shall be forever barred from asserting any claims, right, title or interest in or to any of the property or assets of said Company in the possession of its Receivers or in or to any other property or assets in the possession of said Receivers. This order has likewise been entered by the District Court of the United States for the Western District of New York, for the District of Massachusetts, for the Middle District of Pennsylvania, and for the Western Division of the Southern District of Ohio, being the courts of ancillary jurisdiction in this matter to said District Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York. Claims filed as above ordered should consist of a brief statement of the items, nature and character of the claim, and the post office address of the claimant, and all statements of claim must be verified by the oath of the person or by an officer of the corporation making such claim, or by some person duly representing such claimant, as to the justness and correctness of such claim.

An Opportunity In Short Term Investments

The demand for short term notes has so diminished the supply and advanced prices that safe offerings on their former remunerative basis have become much less plentiful. We are now directing attention to a Public Utility Note, maturing in less than two years, secured by 125% in general mortgage bonds, issued by a strong, well established company and which can be purchased at the original offering price.

Particulars are given in Circular No. 178.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Stocks Open Off; Recover and Turn Irregular—Trading Very Light—Exchange Lower.

Bulwarked by supporting orders the stock market at the opening of trading yesterday accepted complacently the important news bearing on the international situation, which had come to hand over the double holiday. The initial transactions showed substantial recessions from Saturday's closing prices, but in relatively few cases was the fall carried any further, and there quickly ensued a recovery which in a large number of instances wiped out the opening losses. The market became very dull thereafter, showing a good deal of irregularity, in the course of which renewed selling carried some of the leading issues substantially below last week's final prices, but there were many others which showed net gains for the day. The trading amounted to considerably less than 400,000 shares all told, which is a small total, judged by recent experience.

After the first uncertainty had been met and checked the market showed little or no concern over the possible outcome of the sinking of the Hesperian, or of the serious indiscretions laid at the door of the Austrian Ambassador to the United States. With the course taken by events after the sinking of the Arabic still fresh in mind, the Street assumed a satisfactory outcome of the situation created by the loss of the latest passenger vessel carrying Americans to become the victim of a German submarine. As for the steps made necessary by the acts of Austria's representative in the United States, it was widely assumed that instead of impeding the settlement of questions between the German Government and the United States the logical treatment of this matter would facilitate a definite understanding between Germany and ourselves. There was a body of opinion, however, of more or less consequence in shaping the market's attitude, and which must for that reason be noted in connection with the current course of events in Wall Street, which holds in effect to the view that under the policy which the Administration has adopted, such incidents as figured so largely in the news over Sunday and Monday are not likely to lead to any serious international complications. The conclusion in this case was not the same as that reached less cynically by the large number who count on the good faith of the German Government in its recent assurances that it would not sink passenger vessels without warning, and who feel that no fresh complications will arise out of the logical pursuit of the facts in the situation in which the Austrian Ambassador to this country figures.

With the expected arrival today of the largest consignment of gold and securities yet received from London; with the news that another large sum of gold had been released during the day by the Bank of England, presumably for shipment to New York; with the recurrence of larger scale selling of our bonds from abroad, and in the expectation that the English financial mission would reach New York before the end of this week, the international financial situation commanded a good deal of attention yesterday. Widespread as is the belief that the present inflow of gold and of securities is but a prelude to the adoption of a comprehensive plan for the stabilization of international exchange, the sterling market yesterday was not vigorous enough to withstand the selling of the two days' accumulation of bills without receding to an extent which would have caused a great deal of comment were it not that the financial markets have become accustomed to violent fluctuations in the exchange rate, which in normal times moves by very small fractions of a cent. Sterling closed 3¼ cents under Saturday's final prices, but even after that decline it was more than 13 cents above the low price touched last Wednesday.

Wall Street's interest in the international exchange situation may be somewhat tamer than it was recently, but if that is so it is merely because the matter has lost much of its novelty. It still remains highly important for our own future trade interests that means should be adopted to right the exchange as far as possible. To restore them to normal may be out of the question during the continuance of the trade conditions which now exist, but there are steps which can be taken which would in all probability right the exchange market very considerably, and render it much more orderly than it has been of late. In the absence of any corrective measure, it is very probable that countries importing goods, which purchases were financed in sterling, would perforce restrict their buying in a market where sterling bills could not be employed, except at very great sacrifice. It is much more to our advantage that we should use liberally for the maintenance of our foreign trade, the vast credit resources which are now at our command, than that we should assume an attitude in the international money market which would force our foreign customers to buy less and less from us as time goes on.

LONDON MARKET QUIET.

Trading Dull and Uninteresting—Money in Good Supply.

LONDON, Sept. 7.—Money was in good supply and discount rates were rather harder today. New York exchange was quiet, owing to yesterday's holiday. Rates were a shade easier at 4.66½ to 4.67.

The stock market was dull and uninteresting. Business was confined to the war loan, home rails, Kaffirs, and oil shares at steady prices.

American securities were equally inactive and closed steady, a fraction below yesterday in the absence of a decided lead from Wall Street.

Dull Trading on Paris Bourse.

PARIS, Sept. 7.—Trading was dull on the Bourse today. Three per cent. rentes, 68 francs 50 centimes for cash. Exchange on London, 27 francs 83½ centimes.

Call for Bank Reports on Sept. 2.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—The Controller of the Currency today issued a call to all national banks requiring them to report their condition at the close of business on Thursday, Sept. 2.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE.

The market on the Consolidated Stock Exchange opened under the pressure of the news of the torpedoing and sinking of the Hesperian during the holidays. While prices at no time reached the low levels of the London quotations, there was a feeling of uncertainty which tended to restrict trading in the first few minutes. This was quickly succeeded by a smart advance led by Reading, Colorado Fuel and Chesapeake & Ohio. The whole market was reactionary in the late trading.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Mexican Silver from Spain.

A consignment of about $400,000 in Mexican silver dollars, equivalent to about $150,000 in United States money, arrived here yesterday on a Spanish steamer and was taken to the vaults of Zimmermann & Forshay for the account of clients of that firm. It is understood that the silver came from Spain, and that it is the first shipment of its kind which has come from Spain since the beginning of the war. The coin was in 180 wooden boxes, containing from $1,000 to $5,000 each. The unloading took all afternoon. Reports that new British gold had arrived attracted a large crowd, but in all the crowd there was not one patrolman.

Market Slowing Down.

The volume of stock trading in the sessions preceding and following the holiday was probably affected unfavorably by the absence of a number of traders, but brokers generally do not look for a return of great activity pending the discussions of the foreign exchange problem. Yesterday's sales totaled 380,000 shares, which was the smallest business for a five-hour day in exactly two months. Customers who journeyed to the financial district yesterday with the expectation of being able to pick up low-priced stocks as a result of nervousness over the Hesperian sinking were disappointed, for after an unimportant decline, most shares went back to their former level.

Crucible's Ups and Downs.

He who speculates in Crucible Steel should have a calm temperament or an unusually generous margin up with his broker. The behavior of that issue is so erratic that a nervous holder cannot trust himself more than an arm's length from the ticker. Crucible opened yesterday at 81½, showing a loss over the holiday of 1⅞. After advancing to 84 it seemed for a time to have found its level, but in a few minutes in the early afternoon it went up on successive sales to 88½. As if satisfied with this demonstration of strength, it promptly turned about and as quickly receded to 84¼, so that it closed the session with a net gain of ⅞.

Wabash-Pittsburgh Terminal.

Announcement of the amount of assessments paid on the deposited Wabash-Pittsburgh Terminal Railway first mortgage bonds will be made today by the Wallace committee. It is expected that the announcement will follow a meeting this afternoon of the Ely Bondholders' Committee, which is opposing the plan of reorganization for the Wabash-Pittsburgh as furthered by the Wallace committee. That the assessments paid do not represent the great majority of the bonds which were deposited is indicated by an extension to Sept. 15 of the time to pay the first installment of the $300 assessment. An interesting question arises out of the fact that practically $27,000,000 of the $30,000,000 first mortgage bonds were deposited with the Wallace committee and remained. By the terms of an agreement which was extensively advertised bondholders not desiring to pay the $300 assessment were instructed to withdraw their bonds before Sept. 1. The question arising is; What is the status of the bonds which were deposited but on which no assessment has been paid? This question affects particularly the dissatisfied bondholders represented by the Ely committee. This latter committee is also calling for deposits of bonds, and it is not quite clear how bonds already deposited with one committee but on which no assessment has been paid can be deposited with another committee in the face of the warning to withdraw the bonds before Sept. 1. It is probable this question will be brought up at the meeting of the dissenting bondholders.

War Exports.

In the lists of exported articles which appear from week to week are many which did not appear regularly a year ago. The classifications of goods exported in the last week of August, for instance, contained twice as many entries as the corresponding week in August, 1914. There were no aeroplanes on last year's list for the last week in August, whereas this year the exports amounted to $136,000. There were no auto trucks last year, and this year there was an item of $1,348,000. Other newcomers were guncotton, $302,000; smokeless powder, $1,313,000. Still another item on the latest war list of exports was $8,000 worth of tetanus antitoxin.

2 DIRECTORS RESIGN FROM ROCK ISLAND

Action of James and McLean Said to Indicate That Phelps-Dodge Interests Yield Control.

BOTH ON $1,600,000 NOTE

Report That Chairman T. M. Schumacher Will Refuse to Again Serve as a Director.

Arthur Curtiss James and James McLean, two of the representatives of the Phelps-Dodge interests on the Board of Directors of the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railway, have offered their resignations as Directors of the railway. This move was accepted in the financial district yesterday as a yielding of control on the part of the Phelps-Dodge interests in Rock Island affairs.

A report was current, moreover, that Thomas M. Schumacher, Chairman of the Board of Directors of the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railway and also representing the Phelps-Dodge interests, would refuse to serve as a Director for another year. The term of Mr. Schumacher, as well as the terms of Mr. James and Mr. McLean, expires on Nov. 14, the date of the next meeting of the stockholders of the railway company.

In connection with the withdrawal of Mr. James and Mr. McLean from the Rock Island board it was recalled that both of these men, on March 31, had indorsed the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railway Company's note for $1,600,000, made out to the Bankers Trust Company. Daniel G. Reid, who was not a Director of the railway at the time, and Ogden Mills, a Director, also gave their personal indorsements. The note, of course, was backed by collateral from the railway company's treasury. This note falls due Oct. 1, two weeks before the next election of Directors, and it is the understanding that it will be called and that the personal indorsers will not agree to an extension with their names attached to the note.

The Phelps-Dodge interests gained representation on the Rock Island Railway board through their ownership of a large amount of the preferred stock of the Rock Island Company, the second of the holding companies in the Rock Island financial pyramid. When the Rock Island Company went to the wall the equity of the Phelps-Dodge interests was practically wiped out and the loss was very large. It had been the hope of the Phelps-Dodge interests to reorganize the Rock Island before a receivership would become imminent. Shortly before the European war broke out a voluntary plan of readjustment was brought out. Bankers were not interested in the plan, however, and it was not offered to stockholders. With the passing of the Phelps-Dodge control, it is believed, the reorganization of the Rock Island will fall into new hands. The extensive buying of the stock in the last three weeks has already created the suspicion that new powers have bought up a control with a view of dominating in the reorganization.

A crisis faces the Rock Island between now and Oct. 1. The amount of interest due on bonds by Oct. 1 amounts to $3,100,000. This includes the next interest on the refunding bonds, due Oct. 1, and also the $500,000 interest on the debentures, due Sept. 15. It does not include the 1,600,000 note held by the Bankers Trust Company. In well-informed circles it is contended that the debenture interest cannot be paid, leaving $2,610,000 in interest to meet out of cash. It is said that there will be enough cash available to pay all interest except on the debentures.

"As for the $1,600,000 note," said one man familiar with Rock Island affairs, "it must be paid, and, of course, it cannot be paid out of cash. That means that an application must be made to the court to issue receivers' certificates to pay the note and accrued interest. It goes without saying that the men who once indorsed the note in order to stave off a receivership will not sign any more personal notes in the interest of the Rock Island."

EXCHANGE MAY CUT DUTIES.

Slump Menaces Government Revenue Under Tariff Rules.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—Questions regarding the slump in foreign exchange have been raised by large importers in a way to involve the Government's customs receipts to the extent of almost $500,000 a month. The questions hinge upon a proviso in the Wilson Tariff Act of 1894, under which, when value of foreign money in currency of the United States varies as much as 10 per cent. from its declared value of the preceding quarter, "the Secretary of the Treasury may order the reliquidation of any entry at a different value."

Such a reliquidation, based on the present decline in exchange would mean, it is explained, a reduction of 10 per cent. or more in the taxable value of imports from the countries concerned. Countries with which the exchange rate have fallen 10 per cent. or more, are Italy, France, and Austria-Hungary. Imports from them in June amounted to $10,916,000, including Italy, $5,338,000; France, $5,350,000, and Austria-Hungary, $226,000.

Taking 40 per cent. as the average of customs duties—which is really lower than the average on dutiable articles, but probably higher than the average when articles on the free list are included—the total duties on imports from the three countries for the month of June would be $4,900,000. A reduction of 10 per cent. would mean a loss of $490,000 in revenue to the United States, and as the decline in exchange has, in some instances been more than 10 per cent., the loss in revenue might be still greater. If imports continued for a year on the same scale, with exchange rates unimproved, the loss to the Treasury would be $5,000,000 or $6,000,000.

The importance of the question led Secretary McAdoo to invite an opinion from the Attorney General. This opinion holds that the decline in exchange is a decline in the value of foreign moneys as compared with American currency within the meaning of the Act of 1894. Mr. McAdoo, however, has not yet announced his decision. As the act is permissive and not mandatory, it is believed that Mr. McAdoo is hesitating to issue an order that would further reduce the falling revenues of the Government. Although English exchange has fallen materially, it has not yet approached the 10 per cent. limit.

MAY ELECT L. B. FRANKLIN.

New Yorker Slated for Head of Investment Bankers' Association.

The Investment Bankers' Association of America, which meets in Denver on Sept. 20, 21, and 22, will probably elect Lewis B. Franklin, Vice President of the Guaranty Trust Company, as its next President. He is Chairman of the Railroad Bond Committee, and has been nominated for President without opposition.

The principal address at the convention will be delivered by Senator Burton of Ohio, on "The Effects of the Present Conflict on Rates of Interest and on the Business of the Investment Banker."

E. W. FREEMAN, Treasurer.

The Union Trust Company of New York (established in 1864) has for many years made a specialty of Personal Trusts—under Will or under Agreement—and maintains a carefully organized department for handling them.

Many millions of dollars' worth of property—real and personal—have been entrusted to the company by conservative people, residents not only of New York State but of other states in which the Union Trust Company is authorized to transact business.

Correspondence or interviews with persons considering the formation of trusts of any kind—for themselves or for others—are solicited.

UNION TRUST COMPANY, 80 Broadway

WESTINGHOUSE ELECTRIC & MANUFACTURING COMPANY

To Holders of Certificates of Deposit for Convertible Sinking Fund Five Per Cent. Gold Bonds deposited under the Plan and Agreement of May 12, 1915:

The offer to stockholders to subscribe to the new Convertible Bonds of the Company has resulted in the purchase by said stockholders of all new bonds offered, with the exception of $457,000 thereof. In accordance with the provisions of the above Plan, said new Bonds not subscribed for by the stockholders will be distributed pro rata among the depositing bondholders, who will receive cash for the balance of their deposited bonds at the rate provided for by the Plan, viz.: 105 and accrued interest.

On and after September 10, 1915, as of which date interest on the deposited bonds will cease, depositing bondholders, upon surrender of their certificates of deposit at the office of the Depositary, will be entitled to receive for each deposited bond:

Cash ($967.32 bonds at 105% and interest)	$1,024.96
Fractional Certificate exchangeable for new Convertible Sinking Fund Five Per Cent. Gold Bonds, when issued	32.68

Fractional certificates issued to represent the new Convertible Bonds will not bear interest but will be exchangeable for permanent engraved bonds, bearing interest from July 1, 1915, when prepared and ready for delivery, on surrender of such certificates at the office of the Depositary, in amounts of not less than $1,000 or any multiple thereof; and, pending the date of delivery of the permanent engraved bonds, said fractional certificates may be exchanged for Full Paid $1,000 Receipts for such Bonds. On any such exchange any fractional amount of such certificates over $1,000 or any multiple thereof will be redeemed by the Company at 112% and interest, or, at the option of the holder, a new fractional certificate will be issued therefor.

Full Paid $1,000 Receipts, exchangeable for new bonds when prepared, will be issued direct to depositing bondholders entitled to fractional receipts aggregating not less than $1,000 or any multiple thereof, a fractional certificate being issued for any fractional amount in excess of $1,000 or any multiple thereof.

THE AMOUNT OF FRACTIONAL CERTIFICATES TO BE DISTRIBUTED BEING SO SMALL, THE COMPANY HAS DETERMINED FOR THE CONVENIENCE OF THE DEPOSITING BONDHOLDERS TO MAKE AN ALTERNATIVE OFFER TO PAY CASH AT 112% AND INTEREST FOR THE FRACTIONAL CERTIFICATES DISTRIBUTABLE AS ABOVE RECITED. SUCH CERTIFICATES WILL BE PURCHASED AT SAID PRICE IF TENDERED AT THE OFFICE OF THE TREASURER OF THE COMPANY, NO. 165 BROADWAY, NEW YORK CITY, ON OR BEFORE OCTOBER 10, 1915, AFTER WHICH DATE NO CERTIFICATES WILL BE SO PURCHASED.

COTTON SOLD ABROAD AT 9C.

Exports in 1915 Averaged $45.69 a Bale, Against $63.20 in 1914.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—The usual monthly statement from the Department of Commerce of the export of domestic breadstuffs, food animals, meat, and dairy products, cotton and mineral oils repeats the old story of enormous gains in the sale to the war countries of food staples and the loss sustained by Southern cotton planters on the price of last year's crop.

The statement covers the trade for the seven months ended with July, 1915. In the seven months ended with July, 1914, the United States sent abroad breadstuffs, cottonseed oil, cattle, hogs, sheep, meat and dairy products, and mineral oils valued at $258,095,813, and the cotton crop of 1913, which figured in the trade returns for the same months, brought $235,095,813. The returns from the items first named for the seven months ended with July, 1915, were $595,527,804. The American cotton crop of 1914 brought $271,151,317.

For 3,713,234 bales, or 1,916,690,093 pounds, of cotton shipped abroad in the seven months ended with July, 1914, there was received $235,095,813. For 5,937,361 bales shipped abroad in the seven months ended with July this year there was received $271,151,317. Last year in normal times the average return from an exported bale of cotton was $63.20, an dthis year it was $45.69, about 9 cents a pound. In other words the United States shipped this year in the seven months named 2,224,127 bales more than in the same period the year before and got fo rthis excess only $36,055,504.

Great Northern Railway.

This property has unpleasantly surprised its stockholders during the past few months. Many are puzzled to understand why the June freight earnings of this road were over 20 per cent. below June earnings for 1914. Our special analysis of this road which we are mailing to our clients, with facts and figures, dissipates the mystery. A few copies are reserved for distribution and may be had for the asking.

SAVE AND BE SAFE

For your savings the great consideration should be Safety First.

The old reliable Franklin Society for Home Building and Savings operates under New York's revised Banking Law, which provides the strictest known system of supervision. Thrifty thousands have found the Society a help and a blessing during more than a quarter of a century.

On sums of $10 or over (up to $5,000) the Society has always paid dividends as large, and usually larger, than are paid by the best savings banks. The usual rate has been 4½% per annum. Payments made before Oct. 1 earn from that date.

COTTON IS STEADY IN NARROW MARKET

Trading Seemed to Indicate a Bullish Sentiment Without a Great Deal of Buying.

NET GAIN OF 4 TO 6 POINTS

There Is a Good Demand for Exports and Reports Show the Crop Has Suffered Much Damage.

Cotton was narrow yesterday, but the undertone was generally steady. The action of the market seemed to reflect a good deal of bulish sentiment, without, however, a great deal of buying. Liverpool closed very steady at an advance of 1 to 7 points over Friday's closing, with spot sales of 12,000 bales. The local market was a shade easier in the early trading, but demand was sufficient to absorb all offerings, and the close was very steady at a net gain of 4 to 6 points.

The two Caribbean storms which were forecasted to enter the cotton belt over Sunday and do a great deal of damage failed to furnish anything except some heavy rains and high winds in the Atlantic Coast States of the belt. This, together with uneasiness over the attack on the Hesperian gave the market its uncertain tone around the opening.

Crop reports undoubtedly are showing up more bullishly than at any time during the present season. It had been expected that the rains during August would be followed by an improvement in the crop outlook, but the excessive moisture combined with low temperature has produced a good deal of rust accompanied by shedding. Many complaints are coming from South Carolina, Alabama and Texas.

There appears to be an excellent demand for export account. Galveston advices report forty cotton steamers scheduled for September and October sailing. The sailing destinations include Liverpool, Manchester, Havre, Genoa, Naples, Barcelona, Christiania and Gothenburg.

Southern spot dealers report that offerings of new crop cotton are being readily absorbed. There is an excellent demand for old cotton, but very little of that which was carried over from last season is now being offered for sale.

Dry goods reports for the first day of the new week show a good deal of optimism. New Bedford advices state that sentiment is cheerful among fine goods manufacturers, and the tone of the market is firm.

Southern spot markets as officially reported were unchanged, 6 to 10 points advance. The local market for spot cotton was quiet, 5 points decline, 9.80 for middling. Futures closed very steady.

15 SUGAR MILLS FOR CUBA.

To be Built in the United States at at Cost of $7,500,000.

William E. Gonzales, United States Minister to Cuba, arrived yesterday from Havana on the Ward Line steamer Saratoga for a vacation and will remain until Nov. 5. He will make a short visit to Washington and confer with Secretary of State Lansing before visiting his relatives.

The financial conditions in Cuba, Mr. Gonzales said, were better than they had ever been before. The sugar crop yielded $65,000,000 more than it did in 1914, and if the war in Europe continues the value of the 1916 crop will be $80,000,000 above normal. The United States is sharing in Cuba's prosperity, for fifteen sugar mills have been contracted for in this country at a cost of $500,000 each.

George Reno of the Cuban Department of Agriculture was a passenger on the Saratoga on his way to Washington to consult with the Department of Agriculture on the methods of land conservation.

New Record in Rice Exports.

According to a commerce report, one of the most interesting showings in the trade records of this country for the year ended June 30 was the remarkable amount of rice that was sent abroad, in comparison with that exported in previous years. The record for rice exports in the last six years was made in 1912, when 26,797,535 pounds of the staple were sent abroad. In the year ended June 30, however, this record was almost tripled with 75,448,635 pounds. Requests for American rice have been received from Italy, Spain, Greece, Argentina, Chile, and sections of the West Indies.

COMMODITIES MARKETS.

WHEAT.

Nothing occurred over the holiday to check the movement of Spring wheat in the Northwest, and as receipts for the two days were heavy, selling pressure in the wheat market was in sufficient volume to send values down to new low records for the season. Shorts covered freely on the break, however, and at one time the late positions were back to about the closing level of Saturday, although at the close the market showed net losses of ⅜@1½c. The visible supply in the United States increased 656,000 bushels, against a decrease of 1,516,000 last year. In the local cash market, No. 2 red Winter wheat was quoted at $1.06¾ and No. 2 hard $1.06¾, cost, insurance, and freight, New York, September; No. 1 Northern Duluth, 95¼c and No. 1 Northern Manitoba, 89c, cost, insurance, and freight, Buffalo. Export sales for the day were estimated at 700,000 bushels, mostly Manitobas.

CORN.

The corn market was weak and lower early in the day in sympathy with wheat and under increased selling pressure, prompted by favorable weather for the growing crop and more optimistic private reports on the crop outlook. During the afternoon the market developed a steadier tone, closing irregular at ½c decline to ⅝c advance. The visible supply increased 33,000 bushels, compared with an increase of 1,085,000 last year. Country offerings of old corn were said to be of fair proportions. In the local cash market No. 2 yellow corn was quoted at 86⅛c, prompt.

OATS.

Export sales of oats were estimated at over a million bushels and prices were steady in the face of large receipts and very favorable reports on this year's yield. The visible supply increased 2,872,000 bushels, compared with an increase of 1,331,000 last year. The local cash market was easier; old oats quoted at 50@55c; new No. 2 white, 40@41c; new 3 white, 39@40c, all elevator.

PROVISIONS.

The provision market was again under the influence of heavy selling pressure prompted by the very large stock of product which has accumulated as a result of the liberal run of hogs and the interrupted export demand. Receipts of hogs at Chicago were 13,000, estimated for Wednesday 23,000; Kansas City received 8,000 and Omaha 8,700.

SUGAR.

Opening quiet, 1 point higher to 3 points lower, with no sales on the call, sugar futures remained dull and inactive until just before the close, when reports of granulated having been sold to Great Britain caused active buying by a leading trade interest, and prices advanced sharply, closing unchanged to net advance of 9 points, with total sales 4,700 tons.

BUTTER AND EGG MARKET.

BUTTER.—Receipts for week, 44,691 packages, as compared with 55,758 packages last week. Exports for the week to Europe, 2,600 packages; to other countries, 144 packages. The holiday has interfered with the compilation of receipts, so that the shrinkage has not been as much as is indicated by reported figures. The make of butter is keeping up reasonably well, and there is getting to be a little more stock than consumptive demand requires. At the same time, there has been pretty fair business throughout the week. Both jobbers and retailers were low in stock, and they felt sufficient confidence to take on a fair quantity of goods. Yesterday the publishing of the Warehouse Association figures, which were exceedingly heavy, tended to make a more conservative feeling, and business quieter. There was a gain, however, of about half a cent during the week on most grades of creamery, with ladles and packing stock showing even more of an increase. These goods have sold remarkably well of late. Exporters have taken some creamery and a little ladle butter. Creamery, extras, (92 score,) 27c; higher scoring, 27½@28c; firsts, 24½@26½c; seconds, 22½@24c; thirds, 21½@22c; State dairy, finest, 26@26½c; good to prime, 24@25½c; common to fair, 20½@23½c; renovated, extras, 24@24½c; firsts, 23@23½c; lower grades, 20½@22c; imitation creamery, firsts, 22½@23c; ladles, current make, firsts, 21½@22c; seconds, 20½@21c; lower grades, 18½@20c; packing stock, June make, fine, 20½c; current make, fine, 20c; No. 2, 19½c; lower grades, 16½@19c.

EGGS.—Receipts for week, 48,192 cases. The figures as posted for the week's receipts are short of the fact, because of the holiday on Monday, which has interfered with the complete posting of arrivals. Last week the supply was increased somewhat by shipments of held stock from the West, and this gave us a little easier feeling in the market for undergrades. The medium qualities of fresh gathered were also affected somewhat by the use of storage eggs, and some marks had to be sold at slightly lower prices than previously realized. Higher qualities were firmly sustained, and showed some further improvement, and the whole range of values has been fully supported, highest grades showing the most strength. At the close top qualities hold firm, with the tendency slightly in sellers' favor, but the demand for medium and undergrades is rather quieter. Jewish holidays, beginning tonight, are expected to make a dull market during the last half of the week, but the general situation is considered a firm one. Near-by white eggs in lighter receipt; previous accumulations have been reduced by sales at easy prices, a good many lots going as low as 28@30c, some lower; fancy goods are firm. Only a moderate movement in storage eggs, but the stock is held with some increase of confidence. Fresh gathered, extras, per dozen, 28@29c; extra firsts, 26@27c; firsts, 24@25c; seconds, 22@23½c; thirds and poorer, 19%21½c; dirties, No. 1, 20½@21c; No. 2 and poorer, 10@20c; checks, good to choice, dry, 19@19½c; culls and inferior, 15@18c; refrigerator, special marks, fancy, 24½@25c; firsts, 23@24c; seconds, 21½@22½c; thirds or poorer, 18@21c; State, Pennsylvania, and near-by hennery whites, fine to fancy, 33@35c; ordinary to good, 27@32c; gathered whites, as to size and quality, 25@32c; Western, gathered whites, 25@29c; State, Pennsylvania, and near-by hennery browns 29@32c; gathered brown and mixed colors, 24@29c; near-by refrigerator whites, 26½@28c.

LATEST CUSTOMS RULINGS.

One Case Decided After a Wait of More Than Eleven Years.

The Board of General Appraisers yesterday sustained a large number of protests by many importers and decided that the Collector erred in classifying vanity bags, gun metal mesh bags, hatpins, lace pins, metal pencils, and beaded bags at 85 per cent. ad valorem under the provision in the tariff act of 1909 for "articles of personal adornment." It was held that many of the goods should have been returned at 60 per cent. ad valorem as jewelry, and the rest at 45 per cent as manufactures of metal or paste. Among the importers sustained were B. Altman & Co., Knauth, Nachod & Kuhne, the Pratt & Farmer Company, Davies, Turner & Co., Eugene Hess, J. J. Garvin & Co., P. C. Kuyper & Co., R. F. Downing & Co., E. H. Fielding & Co., Snow's U. S. Sample Express Company, Weil Brothers Company, American Bead Company and the American and European Forwarding Company.

Heavy refunds to importers will follow the action of the board in sustaining protests by merchants dealing with the rate of duty on fish in tins entered under the old tariff law. The merchandise consisted of pickled, salted or smoked herrings, which were returned by the Collector at 30 per cent. ad valorem as fish not specially provided for. After several years' delay the board now finds that the proper rate is one-half of 1 per cent. per pound under the specific provision for "herrings." The protestants included Cusimano & Co., Hensel, Bruckmann & Lorbacher, Meyer & Lange, R. F. Downing & Co., Moos & Co., A. Collora & Co., the Strohmeyer & Arpe Company, American-Hawaiian Steamship Company, William A. Brown & Co., and the Neuman & Schwiers Company.

Davies, Turner & Co. lost in a contention for lower duty on merchandise returned for duty as calcined magnesia at 3½ cents per pound under the tariff act. The claim was for entry at 15 per cent. as a chemical compound. The importers failed at the trial to submit evidence. Judge Brown decided that the official record in the case showed no reason for disturbing the Collector's assessment.

After lying hidden in the files of the board for more than eleven years the tribunal was able yesterday to make a decision in the protest case of Dieckerhoff, Raffloer & Co., relating to the classification of merchandise invoiced as "pearl pins." They were returned for duty at 60 per cent. ad valorem as jewelry under the tariff act of 1897, and were claimed subject to a tax of only 45 per cent. as manufactures of glass. Judge Sullivan decided that the lower rate claimed applied, and ordered a reliquidation of the entries. No explanation was given for the long delay in deciding this case.

G. Hirsch's Sons were sustained in a claim that imitation precious stones perforated at both ends were properly dutiable under the tariff act of 1909 at 35 per cent. ad valorem as beads. The Collector was reversed in classifying the goods as articles designed to be worn on wearing apparel. The board declined to reverse the Collector's assessment of 35 per cent. on loosely strung beads.

EXPORTS STILL HIGH.

Those to the Warring Nations Make Up the Bulk of Them.

Exports at this port in the week ended Sept. 4 amounted to $34,088,892, according to the Custom House report issued yesterday. This was a falling off of about $3,000,000 compared with the week before, when the outward shipments had a value of $37,524,558. In the week before that the exports were set down at $20,594,643. In the corresponding week last year exports were only $12,210,989. Exports from here to date for the year are valued at $958,537,883, compared with $588,907,033 in the same period of 1914.

English shipments totaled $8,055,854, while those to France had a value of $7,364,929. Exports to the British possessions were set down at $3,446,164, while Russia took war munitions worth $3,038,771. War materials for the Russian possessions had a value of $416,192. Shipments to Italy totaled $1,863,644, while the Netherlands took merchandise valued at $1,229,615. Argentine purchases represented $860,919, while those of Cuba amounted to $711,849.

Exports of domestics totaled $378,040, and cotton duck $157,020. The largest single shipment of domestics, valued at $123,257, went to the British East Indies. London led with duck shipments, their value being $64,377.

Better Call for Coal.

The Coal Trade Journal will say today that distribution of anthracite, both at wholesale and retail, is on a considerably heavier tonnage basis than two or three weeks ago, the unseasonably cool weather of late August having given quite an impetus to the demand from domestic consumers. Heavy stocking up by some of the Eastern railroads and a more moderate movement in this direction by a good many manufacturers and public service corporations are the outstanding features of the bituminous trade. In other respects the situation is unchanged or, if there has been a change, it is for the worse. The local spot market is distinctlyweaker than it was a short time back, owing to the presence of quite a quantity of demurrage coal at the piers.

UNCLE SAM BEHIND THE COUNTER

The trade of the world, it may be said, is in the Melting Pot. Old lines of commerce have been impeded by the war and new lines established. It is an era of opportunity in foreign commerce with many collateral opportunities in home enterprise. What has happened in the foreign trade of the United States since the outbreak of the war is very interesting; what lies ahead may prove even more interesting.

THE ANNALIST

in the issue of September 20 will present several articles dealing with the varied phases of our foreign trade since the outbreak of the war and with closely related subjects. It will deal interestingly with one of the very big phases of this country's commercial position.

What has actually happened in our trade since Europe plunged into war?

What are some of the most promising fields for the development of American foreign commerce?

What are we doing to make good the lost supplies of materials much needed in industry?

What part can our new banking system play as the handmaid of trade with other nations?

How is the biggest problem ever encountered in international exchange being handled?

These questions suggest some of the points of view from which the subject is being approached.

TIMES SQUARE — NEW YORK

GASOLINE UP FOUR CENTS.

Price in New York Now 20 Cents a Gallon—Standard Blames War.

Gasoline is selling in New York for 20 cents a gallon, an advance of 4 cents in four weeks, and garage proprietors predict a further increase.

Standard Oil officials deny that the eight-hour day at the Bayonne works, which goes into effect next Wednesday, is responsible for the rise, and say it is a case of supply and demand, in which the increased exportation of gasoline due to the war is an important factor. Conditions in Mexico, which are shutting off the oil supply from that country, are also complicating the situation, they say.

Some garage owners who had a supply of gasoline are still selling it at 17 and 18 cents. In Jersey City and Hoboken the price has not advanced.

Stay for Street Cleaners.

The Street Cleaning Department and the Corporation Counsel have procured a stay of the injunction order which would have prevented the Street Cleaning Department from removing trade waste throughout the city, thus imposing the expense of such removal upon property owners. The order was issued by Justice Whitaker, to go into effect on Aug. 23, but by the stay issued by Justice Ingraham yesterday in the Appellate Division, the injunction will not be put into effect until Oct. 8. The Corporation Counsel's office then hopes to obtain another stay until the points in question can be settled by the Court of Appeals.

Bankruptcy Petition Denied.

Judge Hough, in the Federal District Court yesterday denied the application of creditors for a receiver in bankruptcy for the Nassau Importation Company, dismissing it upon the merits. The concern owns a restaurant and hotel in Seventh Avenue opposite the carriage entrance to the Pennsylvania Railroad Station.

THE CIVIL SERVICE.

City.

The receipt of applications for Lithuanian Court Interpreter was begun yesterday and will be continued until Sept. 21. There is one vacancy in the Magistrates' Court at a salary of $1,200 a year.

The dates for the receipt of applications for Milk Inspector have been changed. They have been extended to Sept. 18.

United States.

An examination for stenographer and typist will be held on Oct. 26. For the departmental service both men and women will be eligible, but for the Panama Canal Service only men will be accepted. The salaries for men are from $840 to $900 a year and for women from $600 to $900 a year.

THE WEATHER

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—The pressure continues abnormally low and the winds high in the region of Bermuda, and another area of low pressure has crossed the Rocky Mountain region, and Tuesday night it was over the Plains States.

Temperatures are unreasonably high generally east of the Rocky Mountains and are considerably below normal in the Northwest. There have been local showers in the last twenty-four hours in the Middle Atlantic States, the region of the Great Lakes, and the Ohio, Upper Mississippi, and Missouri Valleys. Fair weather prevailed in other regions.

Indications are that the weather will be unsettled, with scattered showers in the lake region, the Ohio Valley, and the Atlantic States north of Maryland. In the South Atlantic and East Gulf States fair weather will prevail Wednesday and Thursday.

No important temperature change is indicated for the East and South within the next forty-eight hours.

Winds for Wednesday and Thursday along the North Atlantic Coast will be moderate variable, mostly south and southwest; Middle and South Atlantic Coast, moderate variable.

FORECASTS—TO-DAY AND THURSDAY.

Eastern New York—Partly cloudy on the coast and local showers in the interior Wednesday and Thursday.

Southern New England—Partly cloudy Wednesday. Thursday, partly cloudy, probably local showers in the interior.

New Jersey—Partly cloudy Wednesday and Thursday.

Western New York and Eastern Pennsylvania—Partly cloudy, with probably local showers Wednesday and Thursday.

Northern New England—Partly cloudy, with probably local showers in interior Wednesday and Thursday.

The temperature record for the twenty-four hours ended at midnight, taken from the thermometer at the local office of the United States Weather Bureau, is as follows:

	1914.	1915.		1914.	1915.
3 A. M.	68	70	4 P. M.	80	74
6 A. M.	69	70	6 P. M.	77	72
9 A. M.	74	71	9 P. M.	68	70
12 M.	82	75	11 P. M.	63	70

This thermometer is 414 feet above the street level. The average temperature yesterday was 73; for the corresponding date last year it was 72; average on the corresponding date for the last thirty-three years, 69.

The temperature at 8 A. M. yesterday was 70; at 8 P. M. it was 70. Maximum temperature, 77 degrees at 1 P. M.; minimum, 69 degrees at 2 A. M. Humidity, 97 per cent. at 8 A. M.; 90 per cent. at 8 P. M.

The barometer at 8 A. M. yesterday registered 30.05 inches; at 8 P. M. it stood at 29.98 inches.

EDUCATION NOTES.

The Board of Education this Fall will again give free instruction in drawing and design and practical training in art subjects of an industrial character, at the New York Evening School of Industrial Art in P. S. 27, on Forty-second Street, east of Third Avenue.

Classes in salesmanship and advertising are being formed in the Brooklyn Evening School for Men, Albany Avenue and Dean Street. Pupils are being registered this week.

An association of retired teachers will be formed for the protection of their interests. A meeting has been called for Saturday, Sept. 18, at 2 P. M., in the Hotel McAlpin. Retired teachers are asked to send their names and addresses to Mary M. Lilly, 16 Court Street, Brooklyn, N. Y. There are said to be more than 1,500 teachers on the retired list.

TELEPHONE TO FIND TRANSIENTS FOR YOU

Company Considering Bureau of Registration, as Suggested in The Times.

BIG AID TO BUSINESS MEN

Will Make It Possible to Locate Any Visitor Who Has Given His Address.

A telephone registration bureau, as suggested in many recent letters to THE TIMES, but much broader in its scope, is a possibility of the near future, officials of the New York Telephone Company said yesterday. For several months the company's experts have been looking into the merits of the suggestion and the operating details are now under consideration.

The object of the bureau, as outlined in the letters, is to provide a means of registration for transients who wish to record their temporary addresses and whereabouts. Officials of one railroad having its terminus in this city have estimated that the number of transients traveling on that road alone averages between 50,000 and 75,000 a week. It is suggested that the telephone company, by maintaining such a bureau, could at a nominal charge perform many useful services for business concerns.

"We are already inquiring into the feasibility of such a bureau," R. S. Scarburgh, Publicity Manager of the New York Telephone Company, said yesterday. "We have no announcement to make, however, until our experts have inquired fully into the project. The telephone company wants to do everything possible to increase the efficiency of its service and with that end in view an investigation into the demand for and desirability of a registration bureau was started many months ago. The bureau now under consideration is along much broader lines than that suggested in the letters to THE TIMES. I am not at liberty to discuss the details of the project until there is something definite to announce."

Officials of the telephone company are to confer within a day or two with Henry Gardner, a tile importer, of the Forty-second Street Building, 30 East Forty-second Street, who in a letter to THE TIMES first suggested the telephone registration bureau.

"I became convinced more than ten years ago of the desirability of such a service," Mr. Gardner said yesterday. "When I first suggested it to the telephone company they took the view that the conducting of such a bureau would be more properly the function of a separate organization or private enterprise. It would be necessary, however, to have the telephone company's co-operation to maintain the bureau successfully.

"Such a service is much needed. It would enable merchants to find their salesmen without difficulty. It would bring together friends who had failed to meet at railroad stations or steamship piers. It could be so conducted that it would be possible to get into touch with persons who registered at any hour of the day.

Bureaus along the same lines have been successfully maintained, it has been pointed out, by private interests at expositions and other places where large crowds of transients were brought together.

WHITNEY BUYS NEW AIRBOAT

100 Horse Power Machine Built for Safety Rather Than Speed.

Harry Payne Whitney of Roslyn, L. I., has purchased a 100-horsepower Burgess-Dunne hydroaeroplane, and the machine is expected to arrive this week at his country place at Roslyn. It is on its way from Marblehead, Mass., where it was built and has been tested. Mr. Whitney will be instructed in the use of the machine by Clifford L. Webster, who will accompany it to Roslyn. Mr. Whitney expects to use it on Hempstead Harbor and Long Island Sound.

The air craft was biult under the patents of Lieutenant J. H. Dunne, an English army officer, and is said to sacrifice speed for safety. The machine has an enclosed body between the wings, and there is a seat for one person besides the pilot.

This is the first hydroaeroplane that Mr. Whitney has purchased, but not the first aeroplane he has had. After racing with his fast hydroaeroplane, Dixie, Jr., in the Summer of 1912, he went into partnership with Robert Collier in the purchase of a monoplane, and afterward they each acquired a Curtis biplane. Since that period Mr. Whitney had had other machines which he has tried out at his Summer home in Long Island.

APPEAL ROCK ISLAND CASE.

Minority Charges Abuse of Process of the Court.

CHICAGO, Sept. 7.—Nathan Amster and six other members of the minority Stockholders' Committee of the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railway today appealed from the ruling of Judge George A. Carpenter in the United States District Court that they were not entitled to intervene in the suit brought against the railroad company by the American Steel Foundries. With the record of the case was filed a brief of the argument which the minority stockholders will present.

In the brief the minority committee says that it represents 70,000 shares of stock out of a total of 750,000 shares issued by the company. It is asserted that the suit brought by the American Steel Foundries was not a bona fide proceeding, but "was conceived and instituted in a manner and for a purpose such as to constitute it a virtual abuse of the process of the court."

The controlling interests of the Rock Island did not act in good faith in failing to oppose the petition for a receiver, it is alleged.

The brief charges that the sum of $875,000 in salaries alone was paid to nine officials of the company yearly and that gratuities and bonuses without good reason were handed to officials and lawyers.

ALIMONY PRISONER DIES.

Court Plea to Remove Him from Bellevue Hospital Withdrawn.

The application made to Justice Donnelly of the Supreme Court on Friday to order the removal of John F. Wacker from the prisoner's ward at Bellevue Hospital was withdrawn yesterday because Wacker died on Monday. Wacker, who was a dealer in jeweler's tools at 21 John Street, had been committed to Ludlow Street Jail three months ago for failing to pay $1,000 back alimony. He was determined not to pay, it being a matter of principle with him that when a woman could not live with her husbanl she should not expect him to support her.

Six months in jail would have freed Wacker from liability, and he was resolved to serve this term. In jail he grew ill of cirrhosis of the liver. A week ago yesterday he was taken to Bellevue. Otto A. Glassberg, Wacker's attorney, told Justice Donnelly that Wacker lay in a ward that was so noisy his client could not sleep, and that he was surrounded by drug users and alcoholics who made an inferno of the place. Mr. Glassberg wanted Wacker taken to St. Vincent's or some other quiet hospital.

Counsel for Mrs. Wasker opposed the motion and intimated that the purpose of it was to enable Wacker to escape paying the money he owed his wife. Wacker's son Emil made an affidavit that when he saw his father recently the latter appeared to be in good health. Mrs. Wacker's attorney asserted that Wacker had promised to give his wife $1,500 if she would divorce him. Mr. Glassberg retorted that unless his client was removed quickly from the prison ward in Bellevue he would die. Justice Donnelly reserved decision.

GIFTS FOR BISHOP CUSACK.

Farewell Reception by St. Stephen's Members to Their Old Pastor.

Parishioners of St. Stephen's Roman Catholic Church, in Twenty-eighth Street, between Third and Lexington Avenues, gave a farewell reception last night to the Right Rev. Thomas F. Cusack, whom Pope Benedict XV. recently appointed Bishop of Albany. Bishop Cusack, who has been pastor of St. Stephen's for twelve years, leaves for Albany tomorrow.

Between 2,000 and 3,000 persons attended the reception. Bishop Cusack was presented with a check for $2,500, a solid silver crozier and a copy of illumined resolutions. After addresses by Charles H. Duffy, William F. Foley, Michael J. Corcoran, Dr. John G. Coyle, Dr. William S. Keegan, Dr. Henry P. Swift, and John McDonald, Bishop Cusack made a ferwell speech. The Catholic Oratorio Society sang choruses and Mme. Selma Kronold sang two solos.

Bishop Cusack, who had been an Auxiliary Bishop of the Diocese of New York, goes to Albany to preside over the see left vacant by the death of Bishop Thomas H. M. Burke. The new Bishop is 53 years old. He was born in New York, and entered the priesthood at the age of 23. For several years he was the head of the Archdiocese Missionary Bank.

This afternoon the priests of the Archdiocese of New York will bid Bishop Cusack farewell at St. Stephen's Church. He leaves for Albany in a special car.

Night Schools for City Employes.

It was announced last night that the College of the City of New York, cooperating with the New York University under the auspices of the Mayor's Committee on Municipal Courses will give evening lessons in eighty-eight subjects this Winter. Civil Service employes will be admitted to the courses at a small fee. Classes will be held in the Municipal Building, the City College and the Washington Irving High School. For the first time special courses in Italian, French, German and Yiddish will be offered to city employes. Study will begin the first week in October.

THE REAL-ESTATE FIELD.

Court Rebble, a Six-Story Morningside Heights Apartment House Held at $200,000, Sold to an Investor—Syndicate Buys the Schieffelin-Lawrence Estate in South Yonkers.

Harlem property figured prominently in yesterday's real estate market, the most important transaction being the sale of Court Rebble, a six-story elevator apartment house at 416 to 422 West 122d Street.

The structure, which occupies a plot 100 by 90.11, overlooking Morningside Park, was sold by the Orland Holding Company, Frederick Brown, President, to an investing client of Arnold, Byrne & Baumann. It was held at $200,000.

Another west Harlem deal involved the two four-story private dwellings, occupying a plot 30 by 100.11, at 124 and 126 West 111th Street. They were sold by Mrs. Emma Platt to a client of Hopkins & Boyd.

The property is located just west of the vacant plot at the southwest corner of 111th Street and the junction of St. Nicholas and Lenox Avenues, purchased a couple of years ago by Mrs. Peter Cooper Hewitt, who plans to build a large residence for her own use.

Operators Buy Tenements.

Paul A. McGolrick has bought 171 West Seventy-eighth Street, a five-story single flat, on a plot 22.6 by 102.2, from S. Emilie Schweizer.

The Empire City Mortgage and Holding Company (Samuel Barkin and Adolph Weiss) has bought from a Mrs. Berkowitz 17 and 19 East 117th Street, two five-story triple flats, each on a lot 25 by 100.11. The houses are located 110 feet west of Madison Avenue, and were held at $68,000. Gurlee & Potash were the brokers in the deal.

Resale of Heights Dwelling.

The Lucky Star Realty Company has resold the three-story private dwelling, on a lot 25 by 98.9, at 51 Hamilton Terrace to an investing client of William S. Baker.

Buys to Protect Light and Air.

O'Reilly & Dahn have sold for C. Alfred Capen to Bernard Feifer 116 East Eighty-second Street, a three-story and basement private dwelling, on a lot 14.3 by 102.2. This is a protective purchase, being directly in the rear of the plot from 109 to 117 East Eighty-first Street, which was sold last month to Mr. Feifer through the same brokers.

Bronx Sales.

William J. Gabel sold for Clara E. Brown, Robert C. Brown, and Wallace M. Cox the vacant plot on the northwest corner of 176th Street and Marmion Avenue, 46 by 100, to the Benenson Realty Company, who will improve the property.

Schieffelin-Lawrence Property in South Yonkers Sold.

A syndicate headed by George Howe has purchased the property in South Yonkers known as the Schieffelin-Lawrence estate. The property is bounded by Valentine Lane, Riverdale Avenue, Radford Street, St. Andrew's Place, Radford Place, and Bettner Place. It comprises about seventy-two city lots improved and ready for building operations.

The property belonged to the estate of Henry M. Schieffelin, Joseph B. Lawrence, and Isabella Lawrence Beekman. Some years ago the executors of the above estate decided to improve the property, and accordingly a most comprehensive and complete plan of improvement was adopted.

Brooklyn.

The Samuel Galitzka Company have sold for Tillie Karasik to Theodore Frost a plot, 40 by 100, on the north side of Sixty-eighth Street, 400 feet east of Fourth Avenue; also for Tillie Karasik to a client a plot, 20 by 100, on the south side of Senator Street, 400 feet east of Fourth Avenue. Both plots will be improved by the buyers.

The McInerney Flinck Realty Company sold the business building, containing four stores on the east side of Flatbush Avenue, 120 feet north of Beverly Road, on a plot 40 by 100 feet, for Walter R. Lusher to a client for investment.

F. C. Sauter sold the three-story brick apartment house at 239 Twelfth Street, for Mrs. Metta Dohrmann to Mrs. Margaret E. Stoddard, for investment.

$100,000 Brooklyn Lease.

Pease & Elliman have leased for the Schulte Realty Company, a large portion of the ground floor space in the property formerly occupied by Dennett's Restaurant at 353 and 355 Fulton Street, in the Borough Hall district of Brooklyn, to the Capitol Lunch.

The lease is for a long term of years at a rental aggregating $100,000. Extensive alterations are contemplated. Pease & Elliman recently leased the entire building to the Schulte Realty Company.

Sale of Bayside, L. I., Block Front.

Henry Brady has sold to John Josinsky the entire block on the south side of Ashburton Avenue, from Bismarck to First Street, Bayside, Long Island. The buyer will improve the land with a row of one-family houses. J. Wilson Dayton was the broker.

New Jersey.

H. C. Raynolds has sold for the Herman Walker Realty Company, their hundred acre farm near Morristown, N. J., to A. C. Hensler of the Hensler Brewing Company, Newark, N. J. The property was held at $5,000.

Dychman Flats to Cost $175,000.

Seven five-story apartment houses, estimated to cost about $175,000, are to be erected at the southwest corner of Post Avenue and 204th Street, on the plot of seventeen lots recently purchased by the Preferred Investing Company, Fred F. French, President, from the Altmayer estate. The houses will each measure 50 by 100, and wil be from plans by George F. Pelham.

Weber's Theatre Leased.

William A White & Sons have leased Weber's Theatre, at the northwest corner of Broadway and Twenty-ninth Street. The house will be opened within the next week or ten days with a series of high-class motion pictures.

Commercial Leases.

Cross & Brown Company has leased the building, 40 by 80, 20-22 Worth Street, for M. B. Brandegee to the H. B. Claflin Company. Also the store 94 Leonard Street for M. B. Brandegee to Sachs & Steinberg for a term of years.

George Ketchum has leased for D. C. & I. A. Watts to Louis A. Kalish a store and basement located at 124 West Thirty-fourth Street for a long term of years.

Unger & Watson, Inc., has leased for a term of years the store 137-139 East Fifty-seventh Street to the Ignition Specialty Company.

Corn & Co. have leased for I. D. & W. L. Rothschild the store 1,543 Broadway, in the Gaiety Theatre Building, to the Vassar Apparel Shops; for A Kosower and J. M. Adrian, as agent, the corner store at 115 Delancey Street to David Kronfeld.

Kaufman & Oberleden, Incorporated, for years located in Twenty-fifth Street, have decided to move further uptown, and leased the ninth and tenth lofts in the building now under construction at 29 to 33 West Thirtieth Street by the Wallach Construction Company. Benjamin Englander negotiated the lease.

Private Dwellings Leased.

Pease & Elliman have leased for S. A. Fatman to Frederick Tilney of the College of Physicians and Surgeons the four story and basement dwelling, 45 East Sixty-third Street, between Madison and Park Avenues.

Slawson & Hobbs have leased for the estate of James Creelman to Dr. Thalmeier the four-story dwelling, 9 West Eighty-third Street, for a term of years; and also leased to John R. Moore for Varick D. Martin the three-story dwelling, 129 West Eighty-seventh Street.

The Houghton Company has leased for Charles Gulden the four story and basement dwelling, 118 West Seventy-third Street, to Flora E. Neal for a term of years.

Realty Notes.

A meeting of the West Side Taxpayers' Association will be held Thursday evening at Heinebund Hall, 267 West Thirty-fourth Street.

The Harlem Property Owners' Association will meet Thursday evening at 147 East 125th Street.

The Wall Street Journal Building, at 42 to 44 Broad Street, Pease & Elliman report, is to be modernized from plans by Frederick Putnam Platt, architect.

The M. Morgenthau, Jr., Company has been retained to develop and sell at auction one of the largest tracts of suburban property in Binghamton, N. Y.

As security for debts and deposits, Adolf Mandel, the east side private banker, has transferred to Eugene L. Richards of the State Banking Department, as trustee in bankruptcy, titles to 196 and 198 Broome Street, 120 and 122 Suffolk Street, 240 and 297 East Tenth Street, 152 East Eighteenth Street, 225 East Eighty-second Street, 312 and 314 East Ninety-eighth Street, 207 East 100th Street, 234 East 110th Street, and 1,885 to 1,895 Lexington Avenue.

PERKINS PLANS FOR 1916.

District Attorney Says He Will Present Cases to Judge Swann.

District Atorney Charles A. Perkins issued a statement yesterday denying that he knew anything about any arrangement whereby, if he was defeated by Judge Swann, he would be appointed to succeed Swann on the bench of General Sessions, and in 1916 receive the Tammany indorsement for the same office for the full term of fourteen years. Such a story was told about Tammany Hall on Monday. Mr. Perkins said:

"I have read the accounts published in some of this morning's papers to the effect that, as part of a 'deal' which resulted in the designation of the same judiciary candidates for the Republican and Democratic Parties, I am to be appointed to succeed Judge Swann as a Judge of General Sessions in the event that he is elected District Attorney this Fall.

"There is not and there never was any such deal.

"I am not a candidate, actual or contingent, for any place on the General Sessions bench. I am a candidate only for election to the position of District Attorney, the position to which Governor Whitman appointed me. I expect to be elected, for I do not believe the voters of this city are prepared to see Tammany Hall take possession of the District Attorney's office, even through the instrumentality of an estimable gentleman who owes his present position and all his hopes of future political advancement to the Tammany organization.

"My own plans for next year are to continue to be District Attorney and to present cases for trial before Judge Swann, whom I expect to see still on the bench after Jan. 1, and before the other Judges of our courts here."

Praises Wallstein's Report.

The Honest Ballot Association issued a statement last night commending Commissioner of Accounts Wallstein for the recommendations he made in his report regarding the Board of Elections, and said: "The entire report is a splendid contribution to the better administration of elections in this city"

AN exclusive Wallach-Stetson—a hat that we have been working on for years—made especially for men who are hard to fit. It is a feather-light derby—self-conforming with a new style leather band that makes it comfortable and easy on the head right from the start—just the thing for the man who has quit wearing a derby because it gave him headaches. The new Fall Models are especially attractive. We like to serve the man particular in his selection—and he likes to have us serve him—for we have the largest stock of Stetson hats in New York to select from.

Churchill's popularity for luncheon is but natural in view of the exceptional excellence of its

Special Luncheon 75c
Served in Ballroom With Dancing

To large numbers of Manhattan's smart women, luncheon at Churchill's affords the most delightful episode of the day.

Churchill's Afternoon Tea Dances are held in high favor by those who appreciate the superior conditions under which dancing may be enjoyed here.

Enjoy Dinner Tonight At New York's Premier Restaurant

Enjoy dinner at Churchill's and you experience one of New York's most delightful attractions.

Here, in an atmosphere buoyant in its spirit, distinctive in its charm, one witnesses a scene of metropolitan life not to be experienced elsewhere in interest and pleasure.

Aside from its atmosphere, Churchill's pre-eminent popularity for dinner is due to its famed cuisine in a la carte service—to its unequaled Special Dinner for $1.25—to its inimitable entertainment—Cabaret Unique of twenty acts.

Not only for Dinner but for Supper as well, is Churchill's thronged with New York's smart people. Dancing on main floor from ten o'clock.
